DEATH OF WELL KNOWN STOCKMAN

CHARLES G. HOLMES PASSES AWAY AT COW CREEK RANCH—FUNERAL TODAY.

Charles G. Holmes, one of the best known stockmen of Wallowa county, died at 3 o'clock Monday morning at his stock camp on Cow Creek, about 60 miles northeast of this city, of uraemic poisoning. Dr. J. H. Thompson of Joseph, and nephew, Fred Holmes, of this city, were with him when he passed away. The doctor came up the trail to Innaha bridge Monday morning and phoned the sad message to W. R. Holmes.

News soon became known around town, and caused a shock for it was heard of his illness.

Mr. Holmes was ill of kidney trouble a couple of weeks ago, but sent out for medicine and recovered so well that he spent most of last week on horseback, tending to his cattle. He took ill again Friday noon, and a man working for him came to Innaha bridge and telephoned W. R. Holmes who sent out the doctor and his son Fred. They arrived at the camp Saturday night and remained with him to the end.

The deceased was not only well known but was universally esteemed and his many friends expressed deep sorrow.

The men at the camp started up the trail out of the canyon, bearing the body. They were met part way out by J. A. Funk, who had been phoned the news. A hack was also sent from this city, and by constant traveling the party reached Enterprise at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning with the body.

Funeral will be held from the home of W. R. Holmes at 1 o'clock, this Wednesday afternoon, and will be buried with Masonic honors, Wallowa lodge 82, of which the deceased was a member, having charge of the rites.

Charles Gabriel Holmes, son of L. R. and Jane (Gabriel) Holmes was born in Memphis, Tenn., February 17, 1861, and shortly after his birth his parents removed back to the North on one of the last boats to make the up-river trip before the outbreak of the great Civil war.

In 1863 the Holmes family came across the plains to Bannock and Virginia City, Mont., where there was great mining excitement at that time. Afterwards the family removed by wagon to Salt Lake City, Utah, thence to Walla Walla, coming thru southern Idaho, cross the Snake, up Powder Valley into the Grande Ronde and across the Blue Mountains. In 1868 the elder Holmes brought his family to Cove and there made his home until his death about 20 years ago. His widow died in 1899.

Charlie Holmes came to this county first when only 18 years of age. His father and older brother were running stock in this county. He took up land on Alder Slope a little later on, the place now owned by Sam Litch. Afterwards he went into the cattle business—about 22 years ago—buying his brother George's place on Cow Creek, and has followed the business ever since with good success. He built himself a fine new home on his ranch a year or so ago.

The deceased was never married. He had great affection for his nephew

THEY ALL TELL THEIR TROUBLE TO THE SHERIFF

Manuel Lopez, a well known sheep herder, came to Sheriff Marvin Tuesday night in great excitement, saying he had shot a man and had come to give myself away."

The story as near as can be learned is that Manuel, herding for the D. & M., got into an altercation with a herder, Frenchman, name unknown, of Baudon's. Manuel says he is a big fellow and threatened to whip him, so he pulled a gun. The fellow ran but Manuel's afraid he shot the herder in the foot.

Manuel was allowed to go on his own recognizance to await developments.

Sheriff Marvin received word from Flora, Wednesday, that two youths named Arthur Slay and Ernest Coulton stole a pair of chaps from another youth named Curry, who followed the kids to Astoria, recovered his chaps but having no warrant the youths escaped over into Idaho.

Baptist church ladies will hold an apron sale and serve refreshments Saturday afternoon, December 17, in the room just east of Weaver & Weavers.

ASSESSED VALUE OF VALLEY TOWNS

ENTERPRISE MAKES NEARLY TWICE INCREASE OF OTHERS COMBINED.

The total valuation of the four valley towns is almost one-fifth that for the whole county. The total for the towns is $1,883,423, excluding railroads, telephones, etc. Last year the total for the four towns, including railroads, etc., was $1,649,650.

Following is the assessed valuation of the towns for 1910, together with the increase over 1909, bearing in mind the 1909 figures included the railroads, while this year's do not:

Town	1910 Valuation	Increase
Enterprise	$807,446	$156,225
Joseph	588,975	31,625
Wallowa	386,478	67,373
Lostine	100,525	*2450

*Decrease.

A motion in a suit by W. R. Kivette vs. J. D. Struble was argued before Justice Smith, Monday, by attorneys Corkins and Boyd, for plaintiff and defendant respectively. The motion was denied.
