BARTLETT BRIEFS.

Bartlett, Nov. 7.—The weather fine with no signs of snow. School has opened for the winter in district No. 44, with Mr. Johnson as teacher. Miss Fannie Chitwood returned home last week, having been away all summer. She was accompanied by her sister and brother-in-law from Reubens, Ida, who came in to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Chitwood. Literary will commence next Saturday night at the Forest Home school house. School started in district No. 43 Monday with a pretty good attendance. Roy Smith, who has been away for quite a while working as U. S. ranger, has returned home for a while. Lafayette Wilson has just returned from Enterprise where he took the ballot boxes. Joe Young is wearing a broad smile on account of the arrival of a big boy. Hurrah for Taft!

ENTERPRISE BANQUETS O. R. & N. OFFICIALS

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS ARE RIGHT ROYALLY ENTERTAINED

One Hundred and Fifty Guests and Home Folk Celebrate Advent of Railroad

GOOD FELLOWSHIP MARKS AN EPOCHAL GATHERING

Greatest Galaxy of Railroad Stars Ever in Eastern Oregon Meet Ranchers, Stockmen and Merchants.

Better understanding between the railroads and the people, promoted by better personal acquaintance was the keynote of the after dinner talks at the banquet to the railroad officials and guests from over the county, given by the citizens of Enterprise, Thursday night.

Gathered around the head table was a party of prominent railroad managers, builders, financiers, and superintendents, the brightest and largest lot of stars in the railroad world ever congregated in Eastern Oregon. Opposite to them sat leading business and professional men of La Grande, and at the three long tables stretching from the head table the entire length of the spacious banquet room of Fraternal hall, sat 150 representative farmers and stockmen from over the county and citizens of Enterprise, who gave the banquet in celebration of the completion of the railroad into this city and county.

The railroad party included Vice President and General Manager J. P. O'Brien of the O. R. & N., W. W. Cotton, general attorney; M. J. Buckley, general superintendent; G. W. Boschke, chief engineer; Wm. McMurray, general passenger agent; R. B. Miller, general freight agent; J. M. Scott, assistant superintendent; D. W. Campbell, division superintendent; E. A. Chipple, superintendent of telegraph; J. F. Graham, master mechanic; W. H. Morrison, publicity agent; Wm. Bollons, division engineer; H. A. Brandon, assistant engineer; John D. Matheson, general road agent; Myers, traveling agent; J. H. O'Neill, traveling passenger agent—all of the O. R. & N.

In addition were L. R. Fields, general superintendent of the Southern Pacific; E. E. Lytle, builder of the Columbia Southern, and president of the Nehalem road now building to the coast from Portland, and F. S. Stanley, one of the best known capitalists of the northwest, Oregon lumber king and president of the Deschutes irrigation project.

Guests from La Grande were John Collier, president of the Commercial club, F. L. Myers of the First National bank, Senator Turner Oliver, Col. F. S. Ivanhoe, Fred Holmes of the I. C. M. & M. Co., William Miller, H. R. Hanna, and Lytton Ivanhoe. Judge Knowles was unable to be present on account of illness.

Stockmen and ranchers from the North Country, the Innaha, Prairie Creek and the hill country were present in large numbers, guests of the Enterprise Commercial club.

The railroad officials came in a special train of three private cars, and after an inspection of the road to Joseph returned to Enterprise in the evening. By 9 o'clock when D. W. Sheahan, president of the Commercial club, announced the beginning of the program, the large and beautiful lodge room was comfortably filled with guests who spent a half hour or more in getting acquainted with one another. After an opening selection by the Enterprise orchestra, Miss Joyce Craig sang the lullaby from Joceyn and the enthusiastic encore told of the appreciation of her splendid, well-trained voice.

Mayor Hyram Mayfield welcomed the guests in a brief but happily worded address, in which references to past hardships of travel up Wallowa hill and across Cricket Flat, brought laughter, light because the troubles are past.

Vice President O'Brien in his reply told of the inception of the road, the big expense both because of natural difficulties and high labor market and finally of the financial panic. "But we began as soon as possible," said Mr. O'Brien and "finished the work." Mr. O'Brien received a flattering reception and his words were cheered to the echo. That he appreciated the genuine cordiality with which he and his party were greeted and made to feel they were among friends, was evident in his response. He is a good talker and at once put himself in touch with the crowd and the spirit of the occasion with a witty reply to Mr. Sheahan's introduction as his "Irish friend."

Ira Pratt sang in his inimitable style, "Gypsy John," and his splendid voice was never better. The audience insisted on an encore. Miss Edna Browning sang a selection from Esmeralda and fairly captured the audience with "Coming Through the Rye," given in obedience to the plaudits of her delighted hearers. This concluded the brief program and adjournment to the banquet hall followed, where two hours were happily spent in disposing of this menu:

- Olives
Baked Royal Chinook
Chicken Pie
Baked Sweet Potatoes
Roast Turkey, oyster dressing
Roast Duck
Roast Goose
Mashed Potatoes
Mashed Turnips
Lobster Salad
Plum Pudding, wine sauce
Mince Pie
Pumpkin Pie
Edam Cheese
Lemon Ice Cream
Assorted Cake
Fruits
Coffee
Cigars

The orchestra enlivened the meal with music and now and then the happy throng sang a few lines of some familiar air that was being played.

It was near midnight when Toastmaster Sheahan introduced the first speaker, A. C. Miller, who responded to "Our Opportunity." The opportunity presented itself said Mr. Miller, in the improved transportation facilities, that would remove the old barriers to development, and end the isolation of this rich county from the world.

"Relation of Farmer and Railroad" was ably handled by General Freight Agent Miller. He said the basis of all business was the farmer and farming. After the timber is cut from the hills, and the minerals exhausted, there still remains old mother earth giving forth year after year from her inexhaustible bounty. Mr. Miller is a clear-cut speaker who presents old truths in a catchy, business like fashion.

Daniel Boyd said the principal and greatest of "Our Capital" was the manhood, the self-reliant men and women who will develop the latest capital of the country now that transportation facilities were furnished.

W. W. Cotton talked up to his reputation as one of the most polished orators in the northwest. His tracing of the genesis of "The Interests," was lucid, and he presented some new thoughts for his hearers in his presentation of the case of the railroads vs. commissions. Applause greeted his declaration that the O. R. & N. was not in politics and that it depended upon the people for fair play in the matter of regulation of rates. Mr. Cotton gave the "other side" in fair terms and won respectful attention and hearty applause. This ended the program of announced toasts but Mr. Sheahan called on his French friend "Mike" Buckley, who countered neatly and didn't have to make a speech at that. Chief Engineer Boschke was invited to sing and he was so enthused with the music of the orchestra he almost consented.

General Passenger Agent McMurray made one of the hits of the evening by a happy little speech in which he promised every aid of the Harriman system to the advertisement of the beautiful scenery of Wallowa county and the development of the splendid resources.

Mr. O'Brien then asked that the railroad men stand up and he led in three rousing cheers and a tiger for the city of Enterprise. Everybody else stood up and fairly shook the roof with three and one for good measure for the O. R. & N. This ended a night of great pleasure and no doubt profit to all. The railroad officials returned to their train which at once pulled out for La Grande.

Banquet Notes.

It was a glittering success from start to finish, and best of all everybody entered into the spirit of the occasion. The railroad men especially were pleased with their reception and were not slow to say so. They had many words of praise for Enterprise.

General Freight Agent Miller was glad to make the personal acquaintance of so many of the stockmen and other big shippers of the county. Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Cotton accompanied.

Strictly Enforce Prohibition Law

Judge Knowles Calls Special Attention of Grand Jury to Liquor Statute.

Strict enforcement of the prohibition law was the keynote of Judge Knowles' charge to the grand jury Monday. The law was adopted by a majority of the voters of this county and endorsed by a still larger majority when re-submitted last June, and should be enforced as is any other law, says the court.

The following grand jury was sworn: J. M. Casteel, Olof Anderson, E. F. Sargeant, T. J. Dryden, G. W. Neil, Albert Wilson, D. D. Brock.

Judge Knowles especially charged the jury in regard to the local option law. He cited the fact of its adoption by this county by a vote of 315 in favor to 532 against prohibition at the election in June, 1906, and its re-submission in June last, when the majority was 415. He then read Sections 15 and 17 of the local option law of 1905, which have heretofore been published in full by this paper. Concluding, the Court said:

"As long as this law is upon the statute book of this state it should be enforced with the same rigor as any other law. If it is a good law (and the people of this county seem to think it is by the increased majority they gave to prohibition at the last election) it should be enforced on account of the good its enforcement will do the community. Upon the other hand, if it is a bad law, the best and quickest way to get rid of it is to enforce it to the letter."

The grand jury has been in session all week and has returned indictments against Moxley and Howard and one or two others not made public. It is expected to make final report today.

CRIMINAL TRIALS IN CIRCUIT COURT

ONE VIOLATOR OF PROHIBITION LAW GIVEN $100 FINE—COURT RECORD.

The trial of George Tucker, jointly indicted with Norfleet Bogan, A. W. Kinney, Tom Tucker and George Logan for participating in a riot is being held Friday and Saturday. Some difficulty was encountered in securing a jury owing to the notoriety of the case and because of the previous trial of Kinney on the same charge. A special venire of 10 men was needed after the regular panel was exhausted. J. L. Rand of Baker City, Burleigh & Boyd and C. R. Eberhard District Attorney Ivanhoe conducts the prosecution.

Circuit court convened Monday Judge J. W. Knowles presiding. O. W. Pagin was appointed court bailiff. J. B. Ready grand jury bailiff and H. C. Cramer petit jury bailiff.

Owen Jones was found guilty of giving away whisky and was fined $100. He is boarding it out at the rate of $2 a day. This trial caused considerable fun. The whisky was passed around to the jurymen to prove it was the real stuff. One jurymen said he couldn't tell whisky by tasting it, had cataract and couldn't smell it and could only know it was whisky if it would burn. It burnt all right.

Dan Clark, charged with assault with dangerous weapon, pleaded not guilty. His trial went over to the next term, as did also that of William (Coyote Bill) Cottingham.

J. A. Moxley and J. H. Howard, indicted for larceny of a gelding, were arraigned Thursday. Moxley pleaded not guilty, but Howard said guilty.
