WALLOWA VALLEY WATER POWER.

Much has been hinted of the water power running idly away in this valley. Much more may be hinted or stated. Lumped off into one bold statement of fact, it can be said that there is enough water power here to run all the mills of Eastern Oregon.

Taking the river from Enterprise to the lake we have a distance on air line of some seven miles. The lake is approximately 700 feet higher than Enterprise, and the fall will maintain about 100 feet to the mile—in many places considerably more.

It will suffice the water power investor to know that the fall will be adequate to support water power plants every half mile on the average, and that over a dozen water plants could be installed between here and the lake, each using the same stream and the same water. Thus enough power could be derived from this one stream, we venture, to run all the factories of Eastern Oregon.

The first step in this development of water power—and such millions of power!—is to labor for the settlement of the county; to get actual farmers on the crying soil; to increase the population, the industries, the business volume; after which local capital will be evolved to harness water powers and build trolley lines. Let every Wallowa county believer write to his and her friends, get such friends on the ground, and thus aid the growth of Wallowa's population.

NOW FOR A BIG FAIR.

The action of the fair board Thursday night in enlarging the executive committee to 15 members and giving the country precincts the majority of the members, was just the right thing. The fair is to be a Wallowa County Fair, not an Enterprise Fair any more than an Imnaha or Flora Fair, but an exposition of the resources and products of the whole county, held at Enterprise. It is therefore only meet and proper that the whole county should manage it.

Enterprise business men stand back of it financially and will see that all premiums are paid in full and expenses met.

The location of the fair grounds was also a wise move. The Bank addition is nice level ground that can be transformed into an ideal site. The city water mains should be extended to the grounds, which should be fenced. Then with necessary buildings erected and trees planted the Wallowa County fair grounds would be in a few years second to none in the state.

Judge Knowles' rulings were upheld by the Supreme court last week in two important suits appealed from this county. The Judge is adding at each term of court to his reputation as an impartial jurist, and is also very popular with the men who pay the taxes for his business-like administration of his office.

Tom Richardson: "Oregon is growing faster than any other state in the Union, and her cities faster than any other cities of the world."

Let us all boost our respective cities, but let us not forget that all our cities belong to Wallowa county.

In ten years, Mr. Eastern Gentleman, you will regret not settling in Wallowa county where values grow.

Ready For the Next One.
A generous and brave but very eccentric Virginia planter named Hill Carter, who had once been an officer in the United States navy, had a hand to hand battle at Asticuffs one day with his plantation overseer and came off second best. He therefore challenged the overseer to a formal duel, but the latter declined on the ground that, being a husband and father, he was under obligation not to risk leaving his family destitute. Carter at once removed that objection by settling upon the family a comfortable annuity. Then everything was got ready for the fight, but just as the two men faced each other the sheriff arrived on the scene, took them into custody and had them bound over to keep the peace. Mr. Carter did not, however, change the deed of gift with which he had provided for the overseer's family, remarking that he might wish some time to resume the interrupted fight and hence would rather keep everything in readiness for prompt action.—New York Post.

Reckless.
"Aw, come on!" the little boy was heard to remark. "Be a sport. I'll bet yer any amount of money up to 5 cents."—Harper's.

Hit Him Coming and Going.
An attorney went to a livery stable and hired a team for two or three hours and at the end of that time, in a state of absent-mindedness, left the team at another livery stable, where it remained eight days. At stable No. 1 there was no worry about the team. They knew the attorney was perfectly good for the pay. They knew that if he kept the team a month the bill would be paid promptly on presentation. They presumed that he knew what he was about and concluded it was his business and not theirs. At stable No. 2 there was equal freedom from anxiety. The attorney came there, left the team and went away, saying nothing. They put the horse into a stall and "chained it down" on the office slate, knowing him to be a business man who paid cash. Discovery came at last, and the lawyer was presented with two bills, one for eight days' hire and the other for eight days' keep. He paid both bills promptly but it cured him of being absent-minded for nearly a whole month.

Another Great Booth Tarkington-Harry Leon Wilson Story
They said he was the worst man on the river, yet he showed them that the soul of a man and the heart of a man would not perish while the spirit willed that they should live.

THIS romantic novel of life, love, war, intrigue and revenge on the Mississippi in the early Colonial days, captures the imagination, thrills the soul, and illustrates that even an unprincipled gambler and card sharper may yet redeem the life he has bartered for illicit gain.
