The Giant Bible. There is in the Royal library at Stockholm among other curiosities a manuscript work known as the giant Bible on account of its extraordinary dimensions. It measures 90 centimeters in length and is 50 centimeters in breadth—that is, about 35 by 19 inches. It requires three men to lift it. There are 309 pages, but seven have been lost. The parchment of which the book is composed required the skins of 100 asses. There are two columns on each page, and the book contains the Old and New Testaments, with extracts from Josephus. The initial letters are illuminated. The binding is of oak, four and one-half centimeters in thickness. The book narrowly escaped destruction in the fire in the royal palace of Stockholm in 1697. It was saved, but somewhat damaged, by being thrown out of a window.—London Globe.

Entered as second-class matter January 2, 1909, at the postoffice at Enterprise, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.
Subscription Rates: One year $2, six months $1, three months 50c, one month 20c. On yearly cash-in-advance subscriptions a discount of 15c is given.

SATURDAY, JULY 16, 1910.

Didn't Like Course Dinners. A colored woman, native of the south, had been working for a fat dwelling family of moderate means to the east end, but resigned recently to accept a place bringing higher wages with a wealthy family who live in a large house on Euclid heights and have their dinner served in courses every night just as if there was company. This colored woman had been brought up to put everything on the table at once, with the exception possibly of the dessert, and did not take kindly to the course system. A few days ago her former mistress met her on the street and inquired how she liked her new place.
"Oh, not very well," she replied. "I don't like this way of eatin' nothin' in courses. The's too much shiffin' of the dishes for the fewness of the vittles."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Scotsman's English. A true specimen of the highland man's difficulties with the English language:
Farmer (who had instructed his Gaelic shepherd to look for a number of sheep that had wandered from the fold)—Well, Donald, have you found them?
"Aye, mister."
"Where did you get them?"
"Well, got two by itself, one together and three among one of McPherson's."—London News.

Growing Bananas. Bananas are, as a rule, planted out systematically in rows, the "stuckers" being placed at an average of ten feet apart. The banana plant bears only one bunch at a time, but it is a quick grower, yielding its fruit in twelve to fourteen months. When the plant is about six months old a second "stucker" or shoot is allowed to spring from the root, a third after the ninth month, and so on, so that after the first year there is a continuous crop being reaped.

Books. For the greater part of its life a book is an article of furniture and stands upon the shelf to decorate the library with its patch of color and glow of kindly associations, but from time to time there occur those crises of its existence when it is taken down and read.—London Athenaeum.

Repertee. "But why are you in mourning?"
"Oh, for my sins."
"Gee! I didn't know you'd lost any!"
—Cleveland Leader.

NEWS PARAGRAPHS FROM OTHER CITIES IN OREGON

Hood river ranchers in the Oak Grove sections have cut the wages of the Japanese laborers and agreed not to pay more than $1.35 a day.

The association formed for the purpose of holding a carnival on Coos Bay during August is planning the largest public entertainment that has ever taken place in that county.

The Rogue River valley will ship 1000 cars of fruit this year, of which 400 cars will be pears, and 500 cars will be apples. The present crop is pronounced the finest in the history of the valley.

The detailed crop report of the department of agriculture shows the condition of winter wheat in Oregon, at harvest this year, to have been 83, or 8 per cent above what it was last year. This is a decline, however, of 4 per cent since June 1, last.

L. W. Clapp, stage line operator, has established an automobile service between Klamath Falls and Crater Lake. Mr. Clapp has the contract with the Southern Pacific to handle the through passenger service from San Francisco to Crater Lake.

Jesse Powers escaped from his nurse at the Prineville hospital and ran for 25 miles over sand and stony ground bare footed and in his night clothes before being overtaken by Sheriff Elks in his auto.

The largest influx of settlers ever known into the Northwest, and especially Oregon, is expected this fall. Some time within the next few weeks a conference of the Transcontinental Passenger association will be held in Chicago and arrangements will then be made for the fall colonist rates.

J. S. Trumble, a small dairy farmer of Forest Grove, has received word that he is one of about 20 heirs to a $400,000,000 estate located in heart of Baltimore. There was a 99 year lease on the property, which has just expired, the property having belonged to Mr. Trumble's great grandfather.

The Willamette Valley Applegrowers' association adjourned at Salem, after selecting directors and naming a committee of three to draft a bill for presentation at the next legislature. The bill will ask for an appropriation to be used under the direction of the experiment station in investigating horticultural troubles, particularly as to fungus growths.

The convention of the National Association of Wool Growers, which will be held in Portland in January, 1911, and which should bring between 15,000 and 25,000 visitors to this city, will do more to advance the sheep growing business in Oregon than anything else that could be brought about, is the opinion of Dan P. Smythe, secretary of the Oregon State Wool Growers' association.

Umatilla county will produce this season between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 bushels of wheat. Not only will this be done, but the quality will be the best ever sent forth. This alone is a factor of considerable importance. Last year the total wheat output of Umatilla was about 3,500,000 bushels, although some interests were inclined to figure that the production was considerably above this.

It cost the state of Oregon $522 to bring the Grant county murderers to the penitentiary, one of whom is to be executed, the other four to be incarcerated for life. It is the greatest cost for bringing prisoners to Salem in the history of the state. The prisoners are Joseph H. Caseday, former deputy sheriff of Grant County, sentenced to death; Bert Green, Ben Hinton, Emmet and Earl Shields.

To obtain for Oregon a pure drug law was one of the principal subjects considered at the 21st annual convention of the Oregon State Druggists' association, held July 12 to 15, at the Gearhart Hotel, Seaside. Final report was made at the convention by a committee appointed a year ago to prepare a bill. A campaign will be taken up for bringing the bill before the legislature at its next session. The bill is to be patterned after the United States pure drug law, and will enable the druggists of this state to regulate the purity of their drugs according to the United States pharmacopoeia.

A peculiar coincidence came to light at the executive offices when extradition papers were issued for Jesse Burleson, at the behest of the governor of North Carolina. Burleson is held at the Coos county jail on a charge of murder. An extradition was issued for George Holder, also for the North Carolina governor. Holder was also wanted on a charge of murder. The crimes were committed at different times and in different parts of North Carolina and had no connection with each other. One was committed in the fall of 1907 and the other in 1909.

Union Will Market Apples. TOLEDO.—The board of directors of the Lincoln County Fruit Growers' union met in Toledo and made arrangements for the handling of the apple crop this fall.

Only Wanted His Consent.

He was well dressed and breezy, and when he entered the private office of the great tea merchant he looked capable of doing anything from selling books to writing up insurance.

"I have come, sir," he announced without hesitation, "to get your consent."

"Consent for what?" demanded the old man without looking up.

"Well—er—you see, your daughter"—"Oh, I understand now. So you like my daughter, eh?"

"I think she is the finest young woman I have met in many moons. As I was saying, if you'll give your consent she will have the handsomest"—

"Come, come! Don't get vain and say she'll have the finest husband if she accepts you."

"I'm married, sir. I'm trying to tell you that if you give your consent she'll have the handsomest auto in town. She's dead stuck on it, and if you'll consent and put up $1,000 cash we will"—

But the great tea merchant had collapsed.—Chicago News.

A Selfish Proposition.

A gentleman, resident at Harrow, made frequent complaints to the masters of the great school there of his garden being stripped of its fruit, even before it became ripe, but to no purpose.

Tired of applying to the masters for redress, he at length appealed to the boys, and, sending for one to his house, he said: "Now, my good fellow, I'll make this agreement with you and your companions. Let the fruit remain on the trees till it becomes ripe, and I promise to give you half."

The boy coolly replied, "I can say nothing to the proposition, sir, myself, but will make it known to the rest of the boys and inform you of their decision tomorrow."

Next day came and brought with it this reply: "The gentlemen of Harrow cannot agree to receive so unequal a share, since Mr. — is an individual and we are many."—London Sketch.

Our Elastic Globe.

Nothing seems more rigid than the crust of the earth, but scientific men tell us that it bends and buckles appreciably under the pull of the heavenly bodies. Careful observation has also shown that the shores on opposite sides of a tidal basin approach each other at high tide. The weight of water in the Irish sea, for instance, is so much greater at that time that the bed sinks a trifle and consequently pulls the Irish and English coasts nearer together. The buildings of Liverpool and Dublin may be fancied as bowing to each other across the channel, the deflection from perpendicular being about one inch for every sixteen miles. It has been shown, too, that ordinary valleys widen under the heat of the sun and contract again at night. We live not on a rigid but an elastic globe.

Saving the Oil.

"In Cairo," said a journalist, "I heard a queer yarn about the fellahin. They are very poor, well, when the British built the Egyptian state railway the officials were astounded at the enormous quantities of train oil that disappeared. They knew that all this oil couldn't be used for lubricating purposes, so they made an investigation and found that it had become the staple food of the poor fellahin. The railroad detectives reported that the fellahin all over Egypt were using the Egyptian state railway's train oil as their chief support. They buttered their bread with train oil. They fried their fish in train oil. They made a kind of suet pudding with train oil as a base. They drank train oil heated as a flesh producer or builder up. So the railway officials missed motor oil with the stuff, and the fellahin after a year's torturing and vain effort to ventilate their systems to the mixture decided to give train oil up."

I never knew an early rising, hard-working, prudent man, careful of his earnings and strictly honest, who complained of bad luck.—Addison.
