A SIX-INCH SNOW

The River Flood at a Standstill—Other News.

While it is rather uncommon for snow in Oregon, yet late Monday afternoon the thermometer suddenly fell and the wind shifted to the north, and before 10 o'clock Monday evening the walks and buildings were covered with snowflakes. By Tuesday morning, the snow had attained a depth of about six inches. Should the weather suddenly become warmer thus causing the snow to melt rapidly, a further raise of several feet is expected in the stage of the river.

ON THE RIVER.

The Willamette river attained the remarkable height of 27 feet above low water mark at an early hour Tuesday morning, but at 10 o'clock it was on a standstill and, if anything, was slowly falling. The boats will be unable to run below Salem, at least until the river has fallen several feet, since they cannot pass under the big steel bridge, owing to their tall smokestacks. Besides, the locks at Oregon City cannot be opened until the river falls considerably. The many creeks, etc., that pour into the Willamette were also on a standstill Tuesday morning, and the danger of further damage to bridges and residence property adjoining, is thus averted.

STREET CARS RUNNING.

Notwithstanding the amount of snow to be contended with by the street car companies, both lines were running Tuesday morning as per regular schedule some difficulty was experienced in getting the cars started, but after one trip had been made no further inconvenience was had in operating the cars.

ON CLACKAMAS BOTTOM

Monday evening the Salem Local had considerable difficulty in reaching Salem. On Clackamas bottom just below Oregon City, the engineer was obliged to pass over about a mile of track that was under water to the depth of about two feet. The water reached the firebed and extinguished the fire. Reaching Oregon City the train was delayed for over an hour during which time a second fire was kindled and the train resumed its run to Salem, arriving here one hour and thirty minutes late.

AWNINGS DAMAGED.

The awnings at 94, 96 and 98 Court street were badly damaged as a result of Monday night's snow fall. Other awnings attached to other business houses also suffered damage from the heavy snowfall.

BRIDGES DAMAGED.

It was reported Monday evening that the bridge over the Santiam at Jefferson had been washed away but it seems the report was false since only the approach to the bridge was washed away.

A section of some bridge, supposed to be that of the approach to the Santiam bridge at Stayton that was reported to have been washed away, passed Salem about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Owing to the weak condition of the Clackamas bridge near Oregon City, and also to the flooded condition of the roadbed for several miles below that city, it was impossible for either the Salem local or the Roseburg mail to run as per daily schedule. Passengers and baggage were transferred from the Roseburg mail at that point just opposite Gladstone Park, by means of electric street cars to Oregon City, where they boarded the local and continued on their way to Salem, arriving here at 1:40 p. m., nearly three hours late. All damages to the road between Salem and Albany, were reported as repaired this noon, and the Salem local proceeded on up the valley expecting to meet and transfer its cargo to the Roseburg mail and then return to Salem bound for Portland, as the 2:20 Roseburg mail but owing to the unsettled condition of affairs she is not expected to pass through Salem for Portland until about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Reaching Oregon City the Salem local will transfer its cargo by means of the electric cars to the Roseburg mail below Oregon City and then return to Salem in order to make her regular run tomorrow.

Tonight's southbound California overland will leave Portland this evening, via the West Side, striking the main overland, of Monday and Tuesday mornings reached Portland also via the West Side from Albany. Freight trains have not yet and will not resume their schedule until the railroad is in a satisfactory condition.

TELEPHONES KNOCKED OUT.

Owing to the heavy, damp snowfall Monday evening, a number of telephone wires were detached and the local telephone system was impaired not a little.

LATER—RAISING AGAIN.

At 11 o'clock this morning the Willamette at Salem began to rise, and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon the gauge at the O. R. & N. dock registered 27.2 feet above low water mark. This rise is attributed to the partial melting of the snow, and a raise of several feet is yet expected. Should a warm rain follow and melt the great amount of snow in the mountains, we would have another such a freshet as we had in the spring of 1890. The lower west end of the Polk county approach to the big steel bridge, is covered to a depth of several feet, making it almost impossible for teams to cross. A raise of several feet is expected before morning.

er to a depth of several feet, making it almost impossible for teams to cross. A raise of several feet is expected before morning.

BOAT MOVEMENTS.

Steamer Ramona left this morning for lower river points. Steamer Gypsy arrived down this afternoon from Harrisburg. With the exception of these the Willamette river craft is not being operated.

FABIO ROMANI.

Reed's Opera House Friday November the 20th.

Alden Benedict's Fabio Romani is one of the strongest, best acted and best dressed plays ever presented in Salem. "Fabio Romani" is a tale of the dead founded first and last upon the duplicity of woman. Mr. Alden Benedict as Fabio Romani the wronged husband gives a powerful representation of the part. Miss Olive West as "Nina," the wife does some exceptionally fine acting, and is said to be one of the most remarkable impersonations ever seen on the stage. The company is reported by the press of recent dates to be a strong one with the assurance Manager Patton should meet with the encouragement he deserves in bringing so clever a company to this city.

SCHUBERTS' CONCERT—Will be a great event. The Schuberts have a splendid program to render, all of their encores are full of fun, and you will be highly entertained if you attend. Master Tony Purcell the Wonderful Child Artist is worth alone the price asked. The press throughout the country speaks very highly of this concert. General Admission Prices will be 25 & 50 cents.

POSTPONED.—The funeral services of the late Miss Grace Newton could not be held at 2:30 this afternoon owing to railroad washouts in Washington, which have delayed the corpse. The funeral has been postponed until 2:30 Wednesday.

The Discovery Saved His Life. Mr. G. Caliloute Druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Fred A.

Immediately following the ceremony, the party repaired to the house of the bride's mother, Mrs. Rich, where congratulations were extended the happy couple. The newly wedded couple left this morning for Wilsonville.
