RAILROAD COMPANY IS SUED

FOR BIG DAMAGES

JAMES F. WHITE ASKS $40,251.50 DAMAGES FROM OREGON ELECTRIC FOR INJURIES — KNOCKED FROM TRESTLE.

(United Press Leased Wire.) James F. White, a laborer recently employed by the Oregon Electric Railway company, brought suit this morning against the company for $40,251.50 damages for injuries sustained while working on the railway trestle near Lake Labish last February.

The complaint alleges that it was the habit of the painters employed by the company to transport their painting materials from one depot to another by means of three-wheeled velocipedes propelled by hand and foot power, and that the workmen on the trestle were accustomed to step to the edge of the ties, giving the vehicle a clear space of one foot in which to pass.

On February 5, according to the complaint, one of the painters by the name of Spicker came down the trestle with a board which projected some two feet, attached to his car. White says that he did not see the board, but that he stepped aside as usual. Spicker, he claims, gave no warning, and was coming at a dangerous rate of speed. White was struck down and thrown from the bridge to the ground 18 feet below, spraining his back, paralyzing his legs, and injuring him internally.

The complaint further states that White has been unable to work since the accident, and that he will always be a cripple. White demands damages in the sum of $40,250 besides his physician's, surgeon's and hospital fees. Frank Holmes is the attorney for the plaintiff.

WHIPPED DAUGHTER WITH A BLACK-SNAKE

(United Press Leased Wire.) Fresno, Cal., July 10.—With tears rolling down her cheeks, pretty 17-year-old Della Fugate stood up before a jury in the police court and bared her shoulders to expose red welts and deep gashes put there with a black snake by her father, F. G. Fugate.

The girl told the court that she did not want the trial to go on because she was afraid that her father would whip her again. When she was directed to tell her story to the court, however, she said that her father had forced her into a bedroom and whipped her with a black snake. Fugate was found guilty. He will be sentenced Tuesday.

Auditorium, Denver, July 10.—John W. Kern, of Indiana, was nominated by acclamation the Democrats' nominee for the vice presidency at the convention this afternoon. After Clark, Howell, of Georgia, Charles A. Towne, of New York, Judge Gray of Delaware, and McNeil, of Connecticut had been named and afterwards withdrawn from the race. The convention adjourned at 4:24 o'clock sine die.

How It Proceeded.

It was a question of "Where, oh where are the delegates?" when the clock struck one this afternoon. Long before that hour the galleries had filled with the same cheerful lot of curiosity seekers that have been present ever since the opening day. But at 1 o'clock, the hour set for the delegates to re-assemble, there were less than half a hundred in their seats. But these few were a busy lot of men. They realized their responsibility and showed it by their utterances. As Delegate McNeil, of Texas, put it:

"Why this is the first time in my memory that the delegates themselves have actually had a chance to name a candidate for vice president let alone president. It is refreshing in its uniqueness."

Other delegates said the same thing. And so they gathered in little knots of two and three and discussed their individual candidates while the "fair women and brave men" in the spectators' seats munched gum and passed sarcastic comments on the appearance of the timid little courtiers of Miss Democracy who were slowly straggling in.

The decorations in the hall were also showing signs of wear as a result of last night's demonstration. The eagles suspended above the speaker's rostrum were bent out of shape and many of their pin feathers had been torn out by souvenir hunters. But the big, smiling pictured face of the leader of the party still hung undisturbed in its place just above the speaker's stand, the most conspicuous fixture in the hall.

Atwood for Chairman.

Denver, Colo., July 10.—An apparently reliable report was circulated that J. H. Atwood of Kansas, is the man selected for chairman of the Democratic national committee to succeed Thomas Taggart of Indiana. It is understood that Atwood is satis-
