Entered at the Ashland, Oregon, Postoffice as Second Class Mail Matter.

COMING TO THE FRONT
Not at any time during the eight years the writer has known Ashland has the city been as good commercially as now. All merchants are enjoying the largest trade in the history of the city. The increase in business extends to every line. Every available furnished home in the city is taken. The only unfurnished houses now vacant are those badly in need of repairs. When repapered, repainted and repaired dozens now stand ready to occupy them.

Ashland is now getting a tremendous amount of advertising through the efforts of Secretary Mowat of the Commercial Club. Citizens may feel assured that next year will bring forth a greater demand for houses. Persons investing in new modern cottages and bungalows can rest assured that they can be profitably rented, if conveniently located to the park. Rents are advancing and will advance during the coming year so that it will prove exceedingly profitable to invest in houses to be rented.

Many of the newcomers are purchasing residences because they can not find suitable ones for rent. It is our judgment that citizens with money to invest could not do better with the money than to buy Ashland houses at the present prices, paint, paper and remodel them into modern homes and hold them for rent. A well kept property will command twice as much rent as the same sized house, as well located, but run down, and will find a taker. Fix up your rent property.

OREGON ROADS

Pioneer Rogue River Valley Newspaper Launched as Daily

(From the Oregon Journal)
The Ashland Tidings, one of the pioneer papers of Rogue river valley, Monday became a daily.
Fred D. Wagner, whose father, Jacob Wagner, crossed the plains in 1851, settling on what is now the townsite of Talent and for whom Mount Wagner and Wagner creek were named, was connected with the paper for more than 30 years.
The paper was established in 1876 by James Sutton and the printing press was moved from Jacksonville by Eugene Walrad, who lives in Ashland. The paper has been printed in the same building until moved last week to the Camps building on Main street. Captain O. C. Applegate was associated with Sutton for a while.

Big Tie-Up Recalled
In 1879 W. H. Leeds bought out Sutton and when in 1894 Leeds was elected state printer he left the office in charge of Wagner, who ran it until 1911, having bought it in 1902. Wagner put in the linotype and other improvements. In 1911 Wagner sold to Bennett Brothers who in less than a year sold to the present owner, B. R. Greer.
Wagner was with the paper during the famous blockade of 1889-90 when for six weeks, beginning the latter part of January, all train service to Ashland was cut off by heavy floods on the south, which washed down debris from the Siskiyou over the railroad track, making a lake, and rains in the north, which made Cow creek canyon impassable. Passengers were marooned in Ashland.

People Wanted Paper
The Tidings was printed daily during the six weeks and Wagner said people grabbed it at 10 cent a copy and men on horseback carried the papers over the valley.
Less than a year after taking over the paper Greer initiated the plan of mobilizing the mineral waters and improving the parks, which four years ago resulted in the city issuing bonds for $175,000 and making the park one of the most beautiful spots in the state, bringing thousands of people to drink the mineral waters.
The Tidings will be an afternoon paper with United Press service.

THANKS, NEIGHBOR
The city of Ashland at last has a daily paper all its own. The Ashland Printing Company, Bert R. Greer, editor, has begun the publication of a very creditable daily paper.

From the amount of advertising carried it seems to have the support of local advertisers, which is the right thing.
Ashland as a business center has long been running in low gear because of the lack of a good daily paper that Ashland people could really call their own. A daily paper will grow into the size of the town where it is published, and city will grow to the size of the paper published there. The one depends on the other.
Ashland people should support every effort which is made to make condition better in the city, and the publication of a daily in Ashland marks the time when Ashland enters the city class, and Southern Oregon can be proud of the enterprise and business ability which makes the publication possible.
We wish the Daily Tidings the success which Ashland people can make possible.—Ashland Record.

KINDLY WORDS
The Ashland Tidings, a semi-weekly publication by Bert R. Greer, has blossomed out into a daily paper. During the war the Tidings was published once a week. Ashland is forging ahead, every residence is filled, business is reported good, and Mr. Greer, alive to the needs of the prosperous little city, has decided to enter the daily field. The Daily Tidings carries the United Press service and is a new, attractive looking sheet.—Grants Pass Courier.

REPRINTS STORY OF EDITORS' VISIT
The Tidings received a clipping from the Sunflower Tocsin of Indianola, Miss., containing the same article in full that was scooped in yesterday's issue from the Schamokin, Pa., News, concerning the national editors' trip to Ashland and Crater Lake. Publicity of this sort and of such a wide range shows that Ashland is becoming known the length and breadth of the land.

EXPECT GOOD TEAM AT U. THIS YEAR

(By the United Press)
EUGENE, Ore., Sept. 4.—With several veterans of the 1916 team, which defeated the University of Pennsylvania 14 to 6, returning to college, Coach "Sny" Huntington expects to build another formidable gridiron machine for the University of Oregon this season.
Huntington, himself, was a member of the 1916 eleven which walloped Pennsylvania and won football renown for the western colleges. This is his second year as coach at Oregon. He made a good showing last year with entirely green timber, while the Oregon veterans were battling against the Germans.
The Oregon schedule is as follows: October 11—Multnomah Athletic club, at Eugene.
October 18—Idaho, at Moscow.
October 26—Open.
November 1—Washington State, at Portland.
November 15—Oregon Agricultural college, at Eugene.
November 22—Stanford, at Palo Alto.
November 27—Multnomah, at Portland.

LIKES ASHLAND; MAY LOCATE HERE
W. A. Crandall, assistant postmaster of Aberdeen, Wash., and wife are in Ashland spending their vacation and looking after their orchard beyond the Granite City hospital. Mr. Crandall has owned this orchard for a number of years and has made frequent trips here, but this is Mrs. Crandall's first visit to Ashland. She is very favorably impressed with this section, and is highly pleased with Ashland as a home town. If conditions work out favorably they may return in the future and locate here permanently.

FOOTBALL STAR HOME
(Special to The Tidings)
EUGENE, Sept. 5.—Lieutenant Bob Maloney, star half back of the 1915 football team, is back from France, where he was badly gassed while scrapping the boche. He will leave Warrenton, where he is with his parents, in a few days for the Letterman hospital for treatment, and if he can receive his discharge from the hospital in time will enter the University of Oregon this fall and add much strength to the squad which is no worrying out for the football team.

A pretty frock that will serve equally well for afternoon or evening wear appears among new arrivals. It has a full skirt draped at the hips and gathered in about the waist. The short sleeved, square necked bodice is draped with lace and there is a wide crushed girdle of the silk.

The Social Realm
Climbed Mount Ashland
A party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McNair, Misses Helen Moore and Ora Patrick of Palo Alto, Calif., spent the day at Mount Ashland yesterday. They went in a car as far as Long's cabin where they called on the various Ashland people who are camping there, among whom are Homer Billings and family and Mrs. C. L. Spindler and children. On account of the rain that was falling on the mountain Mrs. McNair and Miss Patrick chose the exploring of the Wagner canyon rather than encounter the inclement weather on the summit, but Mr. McNair and Miss Moore reached the top where a regular blizzard of snow and hail was raging. Dr. G. H. Johnstone and a party were also mountain climbers yesterday.
Word was received in Ashland this week of the marriage of Leo Trefren, formerly of Ashland, and Miss Mary Swigget, which took place in Washington, D. C., about two weeks ago. The bride is secretary to Congressman Ayres of Kansas, while the groom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Trefren of this city, is in government service at the capital and had returned about six months ago from Sweden where he had been sent on a diplomatic errand. Formal announcements of the marriage will arrive later from the bride's home in Kansas.

WORK ON HIGHWAY MAKING PROGRESS

News from the highway construction south of Ashland indicates that progress is being made on the paving, and that upwards of a mile and one-half has been laid. This work has been put in above Stiman, coming this way, but the construction crew expects to change and head toward the Siskiyou later. The culverts being built by Frank Jordan are nearly completed.

WILL INCREASE FEES
SALEM, Ore., Sept. 5.—Fees of physicians for caring for persons entitled to benefits under the workmen's compensation acts of Oregon and Washington will be increased within the next few weeks, according to a tentative agreement reached at a conference attended by representatives of the state medical aid board of Washington, state industrial accident commission of Oregon and Oregon Medical society, held in Portland Monday.
