

What's the Use of Looking at Something You Never Saw

By "Bud" Fisher

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

In my last I omitted to state that Homer H. Thurnel, John H. Torney, J. R. Anderson and Rev. W. L. Ellis, all of Medford, were at the Sunnyside last Sunday for dinner, and Mrs. Howlett tells me that there was quite a number who did not register. Bert Peckhy of the forest service was the guest of G. W. Daley the middle of the week. Wm. News-trom of Lake Creek was a pleasant caller Thursday. Mrs. A. N. Thomas was visiting Mrs. Howlett about the middle of the week, and Mrs. Howlett and our daughter, Mrs. G. H. Shaw, was visiting Mrs. Wm. Brown. James Ringer and Thomas Riley, Jr., have been painting the Sunnyside hotel and have painted two new signs on the water tower that reflect credit of Thomas as a sign painter. J. L. Hovey, superintendent of the McKnight (the old Dr. Page) orchard, was in our town Friday on business. W. E. Hammel, one of our prosperous young orchardists, was doing business in Eagle Point Friday. G. W. Ayer, school superintendent of this part of the county, except our town school, was a guest at the Sunnyside Thursday night. He seemed to be quite popular with the teachers in the surrounding country. I. C. Moore and his step-daughter, Miss Anna Drake, came in from their home in Ashland Friday, spent the night with us and Saturday morning went on their way up to his farm on Elk creek. T. L. Parton was in town Friday and while here gave me his subscription for the weekly Mail Tribune. Some months ago he settled up for the Mail Tribune, and ordered it discontinued, but he said that his wife was all out of sorts because she did not get the Eaglets, so he thought he had better send for it again. Allison Allen of Spokane, a brother of John Allen of Derby, came in last Thursday and spent the night with P. M. Steward and while here visited the family of J. W. Grover and others and Saturday went on up to Derby to visit his brother and mother. Jeff Pierce, formerly of Elk Creek, who has been back to Pennsylvania to visit his mother, returned Friday and went on up to his old home. Friday night as I received my mail from the postoffice I opened a letter from Rev. Mark C. Davis, Sunday school missionary for the Congregational church, stating that his son Arthur had been blown up with giant powder in a mine that he had just contracted for. The man with whom he was working was getting supper when he heard the blast and as Arthur did not come in a 6 o'clock he went to the mine and found him unconscious and covered with rocks and dirt. Rushing to the nearest phone he raised the alarm, but when help arrived his father soon discovered his way a hopeless case. He was taken out, carried on a litter to a wagon road and taken home. A doctor was on hand but he died in a few minutes after his arrival home. He was a promising young man of strict religious character. His father, who is well known in southern Oregon, dearly beloved by hundreds of church workers, has the sympathy of the entire community. On receipt of his letter I had it read that night in the prayer meeting and on motion of the pastor, Rev. L. L. Simmons, a resolution expressing the sympathy of the body was unanimously adopted. He leaves a father, mother, two brothers and two sisters, but they sorrow not as those who have no hope. The Journeymen Tailors union of America has decided to hold its convention this year in Bloomington, Ill.
