THE CITY BEAUTIFUL CAMPAIGN.

MOST commendable is the action of the Greater Medford club in inaugurating a rose planting campaign to make Medford the real city beautiful.

Nowhere does the rose grow to greater perfection than in the Rogue river valley—not even in Portland.

In neglecting the beautification of Medford, we are neglecting a natural asset. Streets should be lined with shade trees and curbs with roses.

Nothing is more repellent to the homeseeker than neglected lawns, treeless and shrubless streets.

There is no reason why Medford should not be the most beautiful of cities. The soil will grow anything and an abundant water supply removes the last vestige of excuse for failure to make the most of opportunity.

The beautification campaign should not stop with the city. A few trees and rose bushes, a little lawn, will add immensely to the attractiveness of the farm house and amply repay the little care.

A SATISFACTORY APPOINTMENT.

THE appointment of Will G. Steel as superintendent of the Crater Lake Park is highly satisfactory to all sections of Oregon.

Crater Lake is a part of Will Steel's life. For upwards of 30 years he has labored in its behalf—and the labor was one of love.

Year after year Mr. Steel has devoted his time, energy and money to the lake and its development.

Now that his life time efforts have been crowned with success, now that the government is spending nearly a million in park improvements, now that highways are being constructed to it and railroads approaching it, what more fitting than that Mr. Steel be selected to aid in its development, in a position where he can do much to enhance its attractiveness.

Senator Chamberlain and Lane are to be congratulated in stepping outside party lines and naming the man of all men best fitted for the place.

Turn Out for School Election

To the Editor: May I call your attention to the fact that there is no more important day in the year, as far as our state is concerned, than the Annual School Meeting day, which occurs this year on the 16th day of June?

A few schools last year made much of the Annual School Meeting day; took time to look over their property, suggest improvements, and plan for the future.

May I ask you to publish an editorial calling attention especially to the Annual School Meeting, and asking that the whole population go to the school house, look into conditions and make plans for the year?

spend but little, if any more, money. It is not all a question of expenditure; it is a question of looking after things and having the right kind of co-operation.

I assure you that your co-operation in this matter will be appreciated. Very sincerely yours, L. R. ALDERMAN, Supt. Public Instruction.

To Eradicate Chickweed From Lawns

The common Chickweed (Stellaria media) is a serious weed in lawns, soon running out the grass and clover. It can be eradicated by the use of iron sulphate (copperas).

The iron sulphate solution should be made up as follows: For a 20 per cent solution use one-fifth iron sulphate and four-fifths water by weight and stir until the iron sulphate goes into solution.

Suffragettes Talk Armed Rebellion

LONDON, June 10.—"To use force to subvert a popular rising and at the same time to make no effort to remove the grievances causing the rising is to stoke the fires of rebellion while sitting on the safety valve."

This is how the British government's attitude toward the suffragette problem is characterized today by Lady Sybil Smith, one of the most zealous among the small group of titled women in England who are devoting their time and energies to the advancement of the feminist cause.

"Suffragists like myself," she said, "who find themselves conscientiously unable to subscribe to real, as opposed to technical violence (official or otherwise) can nevertheless feel respect and admiration for the character of those who, like Joan of Arc, Hampden, Garibaldi and a host of heroic souls in the past, think violence justifiable in the service of a great end and have lately acted upon this belief to the public inconvenience, it is true, but terrible cost to themselves."

"Notwithstanding the outcry against the militants, the average person appears to be as far as the members of the government themselves from appreciating the true gravity of the situation. The enfranchisement of women is fast becoming the one object of the most highly educated and advanced section of the womanhood of the country, and their demand is backed by an evergrowing body of opinion.

Hundreds of women of more than average talent and character have been rendered desperate by long continued repression, injustice and political quibbling.

"There is one thing and one thing only that drives naturally law abiding and well disposed people to violence, and that is oppression. All popular turbulence is a symptom of undue pressure, due to bad government upon some part of the community."

"For the honor of England, the government should put a stop to a deplorable state of affairs for which it is immediately responsible. There is only one way of doing so, and that is to give votes to women. For years there has been nominally a large majority in the house of commons in favor of woman suffrage. Who, then, but the government is to blame for the fact that women are still unrepresented?"

litical quibbling. Moreover, denial of free expression, torture of political prisoners and severe punishment of malecontents are turning the long sufferings into rebels and the rebellious into dangerous conspirators.

"The courage, public spirit and intelligence that should be helping to build up the prosperity of a nation have been turned toward destruction and their possessors broken by suffering and strife, and all because a reform that even its opponents begin to regard as inevitable is wantonly withheld."

"In this case a large number of thoroughly patriotic and high minded persons, believing themselves, and what is more to the point, believing many other helpless women to be suffering under an intolerable grievance, have resolved at all costs to make manifest the truth that government rests upon the consent of the governed."

"The government should put a stop to a deplorable state of affairs for which it is immediately responsible. There is only one way of doing so, and that is to give votes to women. For years there has been nominally a large majority in the house of commons in favor of woman suffrage. Who, then, but the government is to blame for the fact that women are still unrepresented?"

Baron Rothschild Fights for a Butterfly

BUDAPEST, June 10.—A veritable cyclone in a coffee-pot which has received almost as much attention as the Scutari incident and the Albania affair, has broken out between Baron Charles Rothschild of London and the Hungarian National Museum officials in Budapest.

Baron Rothschild is famous for two things—money and fleas. He inherited the former, but acquired the latter. Collecting fleas of the rare variety is an expensive hobby. One must be unusually fond of a collection of fleas to have spent as much money on them as the Baron has.

Baron Rothschild is married to the daughter of a wealthy Austrian landowner, Alfred von Wertheimstein. Recently the Baron and his wife came to visit his father-in-law at Groswarden in Hungary. Always on the lookout for butterflies, the Baron made the acquaintance of several officials of the Entomological department of the National Museum.

Schmid, honored by the acquaintance of a Rothschild, confided to the Baron that he had discovered an entirely new species of butterfly—the "savarovius melanargia japygia"—on the Austrian emperor's domains near Peszer. Rothschild was as delighted as a child to learn of the new species and very anxious to get a specimen.

Baron Rothschild, it is claimed, will not admit defeat.

Co-operation as Practiced in Italy

FLORENCE, Italy, June 10.—At the beginning of its investigation of co-operative banking societies, the American commission on agricultural co-operation, assembled by the Southern Commercial Congress, has had the advantageous experience of first visiting a part of Europe where co-operative banks have not made much headway.

Agricultural co-operation is practiced in only one form in the country about Florence—co-operative societies for the purchase of agricultural machinery, fertilizer, seeds, etc. This is chiefly due to the fact that in the early days the merchants of Florence were the landowners and their estates were farmed on a share basis by the peasants, the landlords furnishing the house, cattle, machinery, fertilizer and seed, and the farmers furnishing the work.

Comparing Italian conditions with American, one of the Florentine experts who appeared before the commission suggested that in the United States the solution of the problem of farm finance, so far as money for operating the farms is concerned, might be found in an enlargement of the operations of existing banks. Signor Martelli, president of the Savings Bank of Florence, described a practice common with banks about Florence, whereby the farmer gives a mortgage to a bank and receives in return an open account for a certain amount of credit. Thus a farmer who considers that he needs a credit of $10,000 to operate his farm gives a mortgage for that amount to the bank. But he does not draw out the entire $10,000 at one time. As he needs money he draws on the bank. If he wants $500, he draws only that amount. He pays interest only on the amount which he borrowed from the bank. In this way a farmer can secure a credit for any amount of money, always readily available, and only has to pay interest on the amount which he actually uses.

What Every Womanly Woman Wants

One of the fondest desires of millions of women is to have beautiful hair.

This desire can be gratified without the slightest risk, for druggists everywhere, and Chas. Strang sell a hair tonic called Parisian Sage for 50 cents, will turn dull, lifeless unattractive hair into lustrous and attractive hair in two weeks, or money back.

Put the name on your shopping list right now, and be sure and get the genuine. Every package has the girl with the Auburn hair upon it.

Since its introduction in America, Parisian Sage has won unstinted praise from women of refinement who have learned what a delightful and refreshing hair tonic and dressing Parisian Sage is.

Just because the makers are absolutely certain that Parisian Sage is the only preparation that kills the pernicious dandruff microbes, they are willing to guarantee it to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and 'tebing scalp, or money back.
