PHOTOGRAPH FOR THE PUBLICATION OF WHICH AN EDITOR OF DENVER ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS WAS INDICTED

The grand jury of Araphoe county, in which the Denver Rocky Mountain News is published, did not like this photograph. The jurors thought it should not be published there, so when the Rocky Mountain News did so, the editor responsible for it was indicted. All of the young women belong in Denver and were photographer while in the boat in bathing costumes near by.

The same grand jury indicted two persons for publishing "September Morn," by Paul Chebas, to which Anthony Comstock objected in New York, and for which Mr. Chebas received the medal of honor last year, the highest recognition which an artist can attain in France.

GOOD PRICES FOR POTATOES PROMISED

PORTLAND, Aug. 8.—Potatoes promise to sell at extremely good prices all over the country this season. Real low prices will in all probability be foreign to the present crop now being dug, and it is more than likely that "spuds" will be considered more in the luxury class than as a necessity during the season.

Everywhere in the United States there is a very serious decrease in the planting of potatoes this season. This, together with the generally poorer crop prospects than last season, will combine to bring out a short crop and long prices.

Along the Pacific coast the most serious shortage will be shown as compared with the output of a year ago. While other sections of the United States will not have as big a crop as a year ago, the decrease will be far less sensational than on the coast. The principal reason for this is that the coast states practically doubled their acreage in potatoes last season, while this season scarcely more than the normal acreage was planted.

California shows the greatest decrease in planting of potatoes this season. Special inquiry among the leading potato interests of the south discloses the very interesting information that in the "river" section alone there is a decrease of fully 25,000 acres from that shown a year ago. There is ample reason for this when it is known that fully half of the crop of the south was never placed upon the market last season, and many of the producers who are merely renters were unable to continue except on a very limited scale.

POSTMASTER OF KLAMATH PROBED

KLAMATH FALLS, Or., Aug. 8.—Postmaster C. K. Brandenburg has a difficult time, since charges were preferred against him by former Chief Clerk J. B. McAllister and Inspector H. S. Durand is making an investigation. Recently Brandenburg discharged McAllister, charging that the clerk was not serving the best interests of the patrons of the office. McAllister in turn charged Brandenburg with general incompetence and partiality in the discharge of his official duties.

Brandenburg is a republican and still has two years to serve before his commission expires, while McAllister is a democrat and has been an aspirant for the Klamath Falls postoffice since the presidential election. He has been in Klamath Falls about one year, having come here as a civil service employe. There are already several local democrats aspiring to the postmastership and it is certain that there will be several more applicants if Brandenburg should be removed.

PUBLIC MARKET CUTS LIVING COST AT INDIANAPOLIS

PORTLAND, Aug. 8.—That the installation of public markets in cities reduces the cost of all foodstuffs and especially fruit, vegetables and meat from 25 to 30 per cent, was the statement made before the council by William L. Taylor, former city attorney of Indianapolis, who is spending a few weeks in this city.

Not only is a public market operated on the basis of the one in Indianapolis a reducer in the cost of living, but it also is a source of considerable revenue to the city. According to his statement, a revenue from $30,000 to $50,000 a year was obtained from the rental of stalls.

"Our market is located in the center of the city," he said, "on a large block of ground dedicated for public market purposes when the city was laid out 100 years ago. It is within easy access of all the street car lines, on which a 4-cent fare is charged. It was built in three units to meet demands from time to time and is now 430 feet long and 200 feet wide, one story high, of steel and concrete. At one end of the market is a large assembly hall for all public gatherings. So great is the demand for additional booths that the city is now contemplating adding another unit to the building.

"The space in the building is divided into booths and these are rented by the year at the average charge of about $100. About 100 of these booths are occupied by butchers and 300 by dealers in other produce. In addition, curb stands at $12 a year where farmers back up their wagons and sell their produce direct to the consumers. A central refrigerating plant supplies all the separate refrigerators in the main building.

"The city absolutely has supervision over all stalls and has the power to revoke a permit when it is discovered that a renter is not conducting his business in a sanitary manner or is attempting to overcharge. In this manner the municipality controls the price of foodstuffs in the city.

"The cost of living in Indianapolis is from 25 to 30 per cent lower on account of our public market than it is in other cities where there are no such markets. Prices in Portland are at least that much higher than in my city."

GIGANTIC PUMP FOR STERLING MINE

The largest pump of its kind in Oregon arrived in Medford Friday consigned to Bullis & Sons for use on the Sterling mine. It is an 800 horse power centrifugal pump and will be used to throw streams of water on the high banks at the big placer mine. It will also be used to hoist the water in the present ditch to a much higher elevation, saving the construction of many miles of new ditch.

The pump is an immense affair and completely filled a freight car.

QUAKER CITY IN ROLE OF NURSE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—Philadelphia has been called a lot of names complimentary and otherwise. The very latest, however, that could be applied to the Quaker City of "Obsteorical Practioner." Philadelphia as a municipality has branched out into the ancient and honorable profession of mid-wifery and there are no charges for services. On the theory that a citizen saved is a citizen earned, Philadelphia has gone into the business of saving its babies by not only looking after their health and welfare after they arrive on this mundane sphere but also by arranging for the arrival of Old Doc Stork the minute they see him flying Philadelphia way.

This comparatively new departure is three years old, but the city is just beginning to realize what an asset the municipal nurse department of the Child Hygiene Bureau is to the city, and many Philadelphians are this summer, realizing for the first time that Philadelphia is successfully acting the role of nurse to the poor and needy. Miss Charlotte Perkins is chief of the Child Hygiene Bureau of the department of health. She explained through the United Press what her staff of nurses does and how they do it. The first and most important thing is education of the mother, according to Miss Perkins.

"The most effective method that can be employed to reduce the alarming totals of infant mortality in big cities," said Miss Perkins," is education of the mother both before and after childbirth. Next in importance is care of the child's food. Milk, of course holds first place as the food which must be most closely watched. Mothers cannot be too careful in preparing it for the little ones. Then comes education of the mother as to what she should and should not eat. It is really astonishing how many mothers and mothers-to-be do not know that they must exercise constant care in choosing their own food. Many babies are killed outright by the mother innocently eating food that agrees with her all right, but which, when made into milk by nature, for the baby, will make the little one ill."

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by your druggist under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.
