Fifty American Refugees Reach Coast—Business Interests First Thought—No Change Situation.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 1.—The expected exodus of American residents from Mexico as a result of warnings voiced in President Wilson's message to congress has failed to materialize.

Provisional President Huerta is expected to ignore anonymous charges that a group of Americans here plotted to bring about American intervention.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Sept. 1.—Fifty American refugees are here, and no transport is available to carry them to the United States, and no regular vessel sails for several days.

John Lind, President Wilson's envoy, will spend tomorrow at a plantation near Terra Blanca. He has given no indication here as to what he believes the future holds in the American-Mexican dispute.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The Mexican situation was practically unchanged today. Senator Bacon, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee conferred with Secretary of State Bryan.

Although he was born in Mexico City and bears the same name as the president of Mexico, he is no relation to President Huerta.

OTHER GIRLS MAY TESTIFY AGAINST DIGGS AND PAL

Caminetti Case Threatened by Injury in Auto Accident to Juror Adams—Prosecution Seeks Evidence of More Immorality.

Defense Opens Way for Sensations—Lola Norris' Father to Follow Daughter—Case to Jury Friday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 1.—Due to the rapid recovery from injuries received in an automobile accident near San Jose Saturday by Juror William H. Adams and his determination to sit in the jury box regardless of the pain, the Caminetti trial probably will not be postponed tomorrow when it is scheduled for resumption.

At first it was thought that Mr. Adams' injuries would halt the trial and possibly necessitate the empanelment of a new jury.

The promise of new evidence in the case is hinted at by Special Prosecutor Theodore Roche, who spent Saturday and Sunday in Sacramento interviewing Probation Officers M. J. Sullivan and Mrs. Moore regarding complaints alleged to have been brought against Maury Diggs and Drew Caminetti in connection with two young Sacramento girls other than Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris.

Because of the admonition of Judge Van Fleet that neither the prosecution nor the defense must make problematical speculations on the evidence in the case Roche has refused to state definitely what his mission to Sacramento accomplished.

The young girls whose experiences are said to bear directly on the Caminetti white slave trial and who have several times been referred to during the proceedings are declared to have given the government additional evidence. Whether it will be admitted remains to be seen.

Attorney Marshall B. Woodworth for the defense raised the bars for the government in this connect Friday when he asked Probation Officer Sullivan if complaints had not been made against Diggs and Caminetti in the Sacramento juvenile court by their wives.

Sullivan stated that no complaint had been lodged against the men in connection with the Warrington and Norris girls but that accusation had been made against them in behalf of the other two girls.

Marsha Warrington will complete her testimony under re-direct examination when the trial is resumed, and she will be followed by Lola Norris, the chief witness against Caminetti.

The government's case will close with the testimony of the Norris girl's father.

Day Observed in Cities of Land with Parades and Speeches—Public Offices and Banks Closed Locally.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Thankfulness for present well being and prophecy for greater good to come for the toilers of the United States and of the world was the keynote of a Labor Day message issued here today by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"Though the common people still dig and delve, go down into dark and weary places and do the work necessary to that intricate organization which supplies our social needs, yet many of them are comfortable and happy beyond the conception of former ages. How? Through the labor movement. In some guise, despite its varying ideals, that movement has existed wherever there has been need and oppression of workers.

SUFFRAGE PERIL OF ANGLO-SAXON SAYS ALABAMAN

LYNCHBURG, Va., Sept. 1.—Bitter denunciation of the equal suffrage movement was voiced here today in a Labor Day speech by Representative Heflin of Alabama.

"The suffrage movement," he said, "is the greatest peril threatening the English speaking people. Harmonious relations between the sexes will disappear with equal suffrage—sex antagonism will spring up and the American home will be doomed."

"To be a mother of a voter is greater than to be a voter, and to train a voter properly is more important than to vote. What thoughtful man or woman would have the American woman exchange her robes of gentleness and refinement for garments of boldness and officious parade? It will be a sad day for the American home when the women pay more attention to ballots than to their babies."

PRISON WARDEN FACING HANGING THREATENS QUIT

SALEM, Ore., Sept. 1.—That before he will execute Robert Morgan, sentenced to hang here next Friday, for killing his sweetheart, Virgie Hart, at Condon in October of last year, he will resign his position, was the ultimatum delivered to Governor West by Colonel Lawson, warden of the state penitentiary, according to an authoritative source here today.

Since his imprisonment Morgan has been a model prisoner, and this and the fact that he is but a boy, and that his crime was committed while he was insane with jealousy has caused the warden to reach a decision that he would rather resign his position than hang the boy.

Stones, brickbats, and bottles were hurled by the infuriated rioters and the streets were soon covered with prostrate forms.

LEACH CROSS EXPECTS TO WIN OVER CANUCK

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 1.—Considering the fact that neither had time in which to train properly, Leach Cross and Frank Barrieau, the northwest lightweight, were in good condition for their scheduled twelve round bout at Brighouse this afternoon. The advance sale was a trifle disappointing on account of the match being arranged at such a late date, but the indications were that a goodly crowd would be on hand when the boys entered the ring. All ears headed for the arena were jammed.

"I do not anticipate having any difficulty in disposing of Barrieau within the twelve rounds, although I understood he is a clever and strong boxer," said Cross today. "The training I did at Los Angeles for the bout with Johnny Dundee, which was called off on account of Young's death, has stood me in good stead, and I am in fine fettle."

Freddie Welsh and Willie Ritchie, who will box here September 20 for the lightweight championship of the world, were at the ringside.
