

The Daily Astorian

ASTORIA, OREGON:

FRIDAY, MARCH 23, 1883

- Full moon.
-High tide.
-Good Friday.
-Sunrise at six.
-The Queen is due this morning.

-J. G. Ross advertises a suite of rooms to let.
-The Lillian is carrying lumber from Knappa.

-Ex-Senator Grover will in future reside in Portland.

-All the land offices are doing a land office business.

-Capt. Korts, late of the Tacoma, is on the incoming steamer.

-The new Odd Fellows' temple is assuming an ornate appearance.

-The John W. Marr and Boldon, hence to Queenstown, have arrived out.

-W. E. Dement & Co. advertise a fine display of decorations for Easter eggs.

-Herring are coming in large quantities into Yaquina and Alsea bays.

-E. C. Holden, city assessor, was busy distributing assessment blanks yesterday.

-The Cape Flattery military telegraph line has been completed as far as Neah bay.

-E. C. Holden announces an auction sale of furniture at eleven o'clock to-morrow morning.

-The steamer State of California broke one of the fans of her propeller on her latest trip to San Francisco.

-The Queen like her predecessors, was obliged to leave freight at San Francisco. She has a large crowd aboard.

-Portland post of the G. A. R., proposes to have a grand reunion of soldiers and sailors in that city on the 4th of next July.

-Capt. Whitcomb, of the Gen. Miles, was busy yesterday taking on freight. The boat sails this morning with freight and passengers for Gray's harbor.

-L. L. Clifford, who recently went to Portland to draw $2000 from the A. O. U. W., for a death benefit, and who was reported as having been murdered in that city, has been seen in Jacksonville, heading eastward.

-At a meeting of the Coquille Packing company last evening the organization was perfected; the major portion of the stock is now issued. The officers are D. H. Getchell, president; E. R. Hawes, treasurer; J. W. Hume, secretary.

-The run of smelt in the Columbia reached this place last Friday, and since then ten tons of them have been dipped out of the river along the wharves by numerous boys and men with dip-nets made of netting or bags. The sport has been much enjoyed by all concerned. -Vancouver Independent.

-To-day is Good Friday, the most solemn of all the fasts of the church. On this day is commemorated the crucifixion on Calvary, and throughout the Christian world, in habitments of woe, with darkened altars and penitential palms the faithful fast and pray, that by penance their sins and transgressions may be pardoned.

-They have a peculiar city council in Portland. At its last session the legislature passed a new charter for the city, which granted to the mayor an annual salary of $1,500, and to each councilman $300. Wednesday night, when a formal ordinance was introduced appropriating the amount of their salaries, two of the members protested against receiving pay. Perhaps this action has a precedent in the history of municipal legislation in America, but the fact has never been made public.

-By reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that Mr. I. W. Case is the sole agent in Astoria for several of the leading trans-Atlantic steamship lines. Any person contemplating a trip to Europe, or desirous of sending for any friend or relative can do so with no more expense than in the large cities of the east. Mr. Case issues and honors bills of exchange in the leading cities of the continent and possesses equal facilities in that line with contemporary bankers. The fullest information relative to rates of passage, pre-paid tickets for those in the old country, etc., furnished on application at the bank.

Salmon Packers Union.

The following is a copy of a circular which is to be sent to every packer of salmon on the Columbia river:

We the undersigned committee, being duly appointed at a meeting of the packers held in Astoria, Oregon, on March 13, 1883, for the purpose of corresponding with the packers absent on that occasion, take this mode of so doing and have to request your cooperation on the following subjects:

1st. To organize a "Packers Protective Union" on the river with a view to harmonize amongst ourselves and to adopt from time to time, such measures as may advance our interests and have a tendency to give mutual aid to each other.

2d. To adopt means to send a representative from the packers on this river, to Europe the coming season, in order to protect our interests and look after the inspection of salmon in Liverpool and London, and cooperate with other gentlemen now in England on the same mission.

3rd. To adopt measures of so stringent and effective a character as to protect us from the cutting and stealing of nets, etc.

4th. To instruct the public in the difference between Columbia river and Sacramento river salmon, as numbers of Sacramento river packers use the name Columbia or Columbia river, thereby deceiving the public.

5th. To enable us by a concert of action to propagate salmon in the river and ask the state and United States governments to assist us in the good work.

The O. & C. Extension.

The Red Bluff People's Cause says: "While in conversation a few days since with Gen. Cadwalder, we learned some important facts connected with the Oregon division of the Central Pacific railroad from Redding to the northern boundary of the state. The company is massing men, animals, tools, machinery, etc., on the line of the extension as rapidly as it is possible at this time. A few days since a number of the officers of the company went up and took a bird's eye view of the route and found everything in splendid shape, and ready for active operation as soon as a force of men can be put to work. As soon as the company completes its work on the Southern Pacific, the whole force will be put to work on the Oregon extension. This will be about the middle of April. The General says it is the intention of the company to complete the work this year if possible; if men and money, drive and push will accomplish the undertaking, it will be done. Villard, no doubt, intends to try and reach the Southern Oregon boundary at the earliest possible day, and the Central Pacific people are determined to meet him there.

Past Time.

The steamer Wide West left Portland at 5:30 yesterday morning and blew her whistle in front of the dock at this place at 12:15 p. m. It was purely an experimental trip. For some time past the grate bars in this and other of the O. R. & N. river steamers have been under change for the purpose of hereafter burning coal, and yesterday's run was for the purpose of seeing how the boat behaved herself. The result was in every way satisfactory. Among those on board were F. T. Dodge, superintendent river division; John Gates, chief engineer river division; and D. P. Keene, secretary for C. H. Prescott. Captain Babidge brought her down. Further improvement in speed is expected when the boat goes on the route under the new time table, a time which is as yet undetermined. The Wide West left on her return trip at 2 p. m.

A WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE.

What a Lady of Great Prominence Has to Say About Her Sex. (Boston Globe.)

On a recent trip by a representative of this paper to the city of Lowell, Mass., a most important incident occurred, which cannot fail to be of the greatest interest to all, and especially to our lady readers. The newspaper man met a lady a trifle past middle age with luxuriant white hair that contrasted strikingly with piercing black eyes. She possessed a straight, full habit, womanly but commanding, combined with manners wholly lady-like, and yet pronounced. Any acute judge of human nature could see at once that he was in the presence of an unusual personage--one destined to accomplish more than most of her sex, and to exert an influence far reaching in its power. This lady was Mrs. M. W. Wingate. Almost from childhood she has taken a special interest in the bodily troubles of her sex and has probably been more successful in relieving suffering and saving lives than any other woman in America. Indeed, she seems to have been to women what Florence Nightingale and Dorothy Dix were to the suffering soldiers. The instances of women who were in the greatest agony and apparently beyond the reach of human aid, that she has restored to health and happiness, are almost innumerable, and it was only natural that the scribe should become specially interested and wish to converse with her more in detail.

"How long have you been engaged in the practice of medicine Mrs. Wingate?"
"For more than 25 years."
"A long time certainly. How did you happen to enter the field of a daily day when you were only a young girl?"
"Very specially frowned upon?"
"I think I must have inherited a taste from my father, Professor J. C. Wood, of Harvard college. He was eminent in the profession, a hard worker, and equally earnest in his recreations. He hunted considerably and I remember when only nine years old I used to dissect the birds and animals he had killed. I felt infatigably brought so closely in contact with them and have learned to anticipate their needs and sympathize with their sufferings. After the opening of the Boston Medical College I applied before the faculty, passed easily, graduated and received a diploma. I had practiced for years previous to that time but thought it desirable to receive another diploma, which I did without any effort."

"Your experience with the many and serious diseases of women having been so extensive must also be valuable? Can you give me some facts regarding them?"
"I find that woman seems born to suffering, and where she avoids it, it is by reason of some care on her part or owing to some special renewing power. It is true some women go through life without unusual suffering, but they are none the less in danger, for there are critical periods all along their pathway when the utmost precaution is required. The innumerable complaints called female weaknesses; the irregularities of life and changes of the system all indicate the perils which hang over every woman's career, and which, unless attended to, may result disastrously.
"Is there any way by which these terrible troubles can be avoided?"
"Such has been the problem for years. The habits of life and the demands of fashion are clearly at war with the health of women. I have been, perhaps, unusually successful in my treatment of their troubles, but there have been many cases that seemed specially stubborn. I recall one in particular, a lady and exhausted all the usual expedients and the results were not satisfactory. I became worried over the case and really did not know what to do, but finally thought I would try something out of the usual line. I had heard of a certain remedy recommended very highly and so I procured some and made a chemical analysis of it. I found it was perfectly pure, and that the ingredients were unusually valuable. So I began giving it to my patient, changing it, however, into a bottle of my own. To my great joy it seemed to have an almost immediate effect and a complete cure was the result. Since then I have used it constantly in my practice and have cured every form of female weakness, as well as displacements, dropsical tumors, cellular dropsy and all such troubles. I have also used it with the best of results in cases of pregnancy and gestation. Indeed I have found it of untold value and benefit."

"Have you any objection to giving me the name of this remedy of which you speak?"
"None whatever. It is Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure."
"Why, that is a proprietary medicine."
"Certainly, but what of that? I have but one end in view in the treatment of my patients namely--their restoration to health. In the accomplishment of this end I prescribe what I believe to be beneficial, no matter what the professional consequences may be."
"Notice in the New York papers that Doctors Haunmond, Agnew and other prominent physicians are taking a similar stand Mrs. Wingate?"
"Yes and all independent thinkers in the profession are bound to do so. I am, however, on the best of terms with my professional brethren as you see, and the lady produced a beautiful gold medal mottoed in the form of a badge which had been presented her by the medical society, known as the Ensign of the Humble Family, of which she was a prominent member. After examining it closely, the reporter remarked that the medical profession evidently were proud of what she had done, as she might well be in the possession of such a medal."
"I am proud of that," she replied, "and I was also pleased a short time since to receive an offer at a large salary to take the professorship of the new medical college at Walla Walla, on the Pacific coast. I do not know how they heard of me out there, but I was obliged to decline their offer."

"And so in your experience with the diseases of women, you have found success, and that Warner's Safe Kidney Cure has been a most efficient remedy?"
"Yes, I have had unusual success and the remedy of which you speak has been proven of great benefit. There are, however, some base imitations of it to be found in the market; these are bad and should be avoided, but the genuine is one of the very best."
"Has not the practice of your profession injured your health?"
