When purchasing a side hill combined harrow, see that it has roller bearings on the cylinder, side shake double-shoe cleaner boarded up outside of the shoe, preventing all waste and leaking of grain; and the header equipped with an angle steel sickle-bar, which will last a lifetime. Another test of the city water works was made the other day to determine the length of time the tank full of water would last in case of fire. Two fire hoses were attached to the hydrants on main street and turned loose for exactly 15 minutes and it was found the water in the tank was lowered just six inches. No water was gumped in during the test and at that rate the tank full of water would last just eight hours but of course, when additional power is put in and the pump run to its full capacity, the supply will be largely increased.
