For Vice-President:

GUILTY AS CHARGED.

A contemporary quotes and endorses this statement from the Detroit Free Press: "The Philippine insurgents possibly are inspired to greater activity by the fact that their fate is a political issue, but under a republican form of government that cannot be avoided." Here is a frank admission of a fact that Mr. Bryan has sought to conceal with all the equivocation and adroitness of which he is master. "The Philippine insurgents possibly are inspired to greater activities by the fact that their fate is a political issue." Who made this question a political issue? Mr. Bryan. Then the Philippine insurgents are inspired to greater activities through the efforts and encouragement of Mr. Bryan. To give aid and comfort to the enemy is treason, as defined by Webster. Mr. Bryan is on dangerous ground. The Press undertakes to excuse the fact that the fate of the insurgents is a political issue, by explaining that "under a republican form of government that cannot be avoided." It may be true that any question may be made a political issue, but decency, patriotism and common sense teach us that some questions are not debatable, and therefore have no place as issues in a political campaign. Decency would not admit of an issue looking to the re-establishment of slavery, patriotism would demand that we part with no territory under the flag, and common sense would dabar an issue questioning the laws of gravity.

When the attention of a Bryante is called to the increase in price of nearly all farm products during the past four years—and none but the halt and blind deny this condition—he meets you with the answer "Oh, the price is determined by supply and demand." Four years ago, when the prices of these commodities were down to bed rock, the reason for this condition, as interpreted by Mr. Bryan and his disciples, was "the crime of '73." Mr. Bryan so far lost sight of the law of supply and demand in 1896, that he said "If we have the gold standard prices are as certain to fall as the stone which is thrown into the air." The gold standard is more firmly established now than it ever has been and the rise in prices during McKinley's administration—whatever the cause—brands Mr. Bryan as a false prophet, or unprincipled political agitator.

In its last issue our contemporary gives facts and figures showing the increase in our trade with Oriental countries during the years from 1895 to 1899, and says, "Why change our policy when we are doing so well?" We won't.

For the Orient.

Mention has been made at various times of the opinions of men versed in the matter regarding the opening up of a fruit market in the Orient. It seems at last that a movement is under way which will result beneficially to our fruit growers. The telegram is authority for the following:

One thousand boxes of apples and a shipment of prunes will leave on the next steamer for the Orient. This, together with a partial crop failure in the East will serve to stiffen the local market for apples, which is already quite firm. Apples now bring from 75 cents to $1.25 per box.

The shipment to the Orient is in the nature of an opening wedge for a new and extensive market for Oregon apple. While partly an experiment, the shipment is warranted because a former shipment of 200 boxes several weeks ago, met a friendly market. The apples were wrapped and packed under the supervision of Colonel Dosch, secretary of the state board of horticulture, who is instrumental in having opened the market through previous correspondence. The man making the shipment has arranged with a firm here to send other shipments in case the present one meets with the success that is expected. Colonel Dosch persuaded the shipper to take along a consignment of the smaller varieties of prunes as an experiment.

As shown by the correspondence mentioned, and by letters received from United States Consul Miller, there is a good market for certain grades of Oregon fruit in China and Japan. Shippers must learn, however, the needs of the market. It is necessary to cater to the Chinese tastes and fall in with their ways doing business in order to secure their trade. Those who know, say that it would pay the fruitgrowers to send a reliable representative to study the needs of the Oriental trade. Then shipments could be made with an intelligent understanding, and sure results, which, when sent otherwise, must be somewhat in the nature of an experiment.
