

BERBER'S CABINET CHANGE BRIGHT AS F. S. BROWN'S DIMS

Governor-elect Expected to Name Several Members of His Official Family in Few Days.

Governor-elect Brumbaugh will announce several appointments to his cabinet within a few days, according to political observers who have been keeping in close touch with the situation. In the discussion of the make-up of the cabinet interest continues to center about the Attorney Generalship, with former Judge Dinsler being the leading candidate.

Francis Shunk Brown, whom the Vares Wanted Governor Tender to appoint Attorney General and who has been considered a strong possibility, seems to be out of the race. With the Continental Equitable Title and Trust Company he is trustee of the Durham estate, which is heavily interested in Union Traction stock.

Mr. Brown is opposed to the transit plans of Director Taylor. With a constitutional amendment to increase the borrowing capacity of Philadelphia for transit improvements, and other transit legislation coming before the next Legislature, it is not likely that Governor Brumbaugh would want to be in the position of having a trustee of the Durham estate, which is heavily interested in Union Traction.

The Governor-elect has frequently expressed himself as strongly in favor of general improvement for Philadelphia, including rapid transit.

Alexander Simpson, Jr., a law partner of Francis Shunk Brown, has recently been mentioned for the place. The fact that he is Mr. Brown's partner, however, has thrown cold water on his chances. Others who have been mentioned include James Soxist, of Danville; E. B. Cunningham, of Greensburg; at present Deputy Attorney General; William H. Shoemaker, of Philadelphia; and John S. Rhinehart, of Erie.

EASTERN ROADS PLAN INCREASE

suggestion called upon them to make a thorough examination and readjustment of the rates on each specific commodity, with a view to making the rate on each independently remunerative. This, they say, had been done in part when it was learned the 5 per cent. increase might be reconsidered and granted in part.

All revision made between the time of the original suggestion of the Commission and its order, on December 18, which were not suspended by the final order which have not been revived with a view to specific increases on rates at present on a subnormal basis will be readjusted in accordance with the second suggestion of the Commission and irrespective of the 5 per cent. increase granted. In the case of many articles, however, the 5 per cent. increase will be found sufficient to meet the demands of this new basis of tariff estimates.

On other articles on which the existing rates are very low, particularly the stock, dressed meats, packing house products, hay, grain, flour, copper, corn syrup and feedstuffs generally, a readjustment and increase, where deemed necessary, will be sought. The rates for these articles, it is pointed out, had their origin in fierce competition for traffic or under the menace of the big traffic of powerful shippers. Railroad rates also indicate the day of horizontal increases ended with the granting of the 5 per cent. increase, and that from now on whenever advances are sought they will be worked out on a basis of having each article be independently remunerative on a standard basis of return.

WILSON INDICATES BELIEF IN INDUSTRIAL REVIVAL

Washington, Dec. 28.—President Wilson indicated today that he believed industrial conditions in the United States were improving. He said, in answer to a letter sent to him by the Manufacturers Association of Montgomery County, Pa., that there was no truth in the assertion that the industrial position of the United States was growing worse. Further than this he would not comment on the matter.

The President scoffed at reports that the Government would face a deficit of $100,000,000 at the close of the fiscal year, as stated by Representative Mann, of Illinois. If there were any danger of this he would have been informed of it, he said, and no Administration official had brought it to his attention.

WHIMS OF FASHION DISTURB INDUSTRY, SAYS INVESTIGATOR

Women Thrown Out of Work by Hundreds Every Time "Craze" Changes, Miss Poyntz Declares.

The "fashion craze" in America, as a disturbing and highly aggravating factor in industry, was condemned by Juliet Stuart Poyntz, special investigator for the American Association of Unemployment, at the second session of the association, at the Hotel Walton today.

Miss Poyntz said that America was "simply in the grip of an awful fashion craze which makes our women the butt of ridicule on the part of the women of other countries."

The speaker maintained that "every whim and caprice of fashion was directly responsible for throwing one group of workers or another out of employment." She said that the fashion craze was directly responsible in aggravating chaos and disorder in industry.

"If every woman in the grip of the fashion craze," she said, "knew that every change in the style of her shoes or dress causes untold suffering to hundreds, and perhaps thousands of workers, she would be less enthusiastic in her adherence to style."

The enormous amount of shifting from place to place and from job to job by workers driven by the lash of necessity was described by Mrs. Irene Osgood Andrews.

The speaker pointed out the gravity of the problem of unemployment in the fact that, although great masses of men and women, through no fault of their own, are thrown out of their jobs, yet employment does not radicate, not only for work and for food, clothing and shelter. The entire session was devoted to the consideration of reports of special investigators of the Association of Unemployment Bureau.

"In the course of my investigation," said Mrs. Andrews, "the head of a great metropolitan establishment told me that he employed 12,000 persons during a year to keep up a force that was never larger than 5,000. In ten confectionery establishments 238 persons were employed to maintain an average force of 953. The net result of this irregularity is a still further reduction in earnings that are low enough at best."

"Out of over 100 women workers in the better candy factories of New York two-thirds lost more than 10 per cent. of their rate, while in Philadelphia more than one-quarter of their supposed earnings on account of unemployment."

Juliet Stuart Poyntz, a collaborator with the famous English economist's Sydney and Beatrice Webb, also spoke.

Her subject was "Seasonal Trades." The speaker said she recently completed a study of this problem through the cooperation of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Association of Unemployment Bureau, and that her investigation had revealed widespread irregularity of employment among workers in the building, boot and shoe, printing, cigar making and other trades.

The percentage of union workers in the building trades unemployed in Boston has fallen below 10 per cent. in any winter since 1907, according to her investigator, and has usually reached or passed 30 per cent. For unskilled labor the conditions are much worse, said the speaker.

"Employers," she added, "can do much to increase the regularity of employment. Several are making this a special object of assistance in the near future, with a specially trained employment manager at their head. One is even contemplating unemployment insurance for his workers."

Frank O'Harris, of the Catholic University of America, who directed the investigations in 1914 of the Oregon Committee of the Association of Unemployment Bureau, spoke on "Public Work."

"It is the duty of those charged with the expenditure of public money for labor," he said, "to study the conditions that have fallen upon the workers. Even where the cost of executing public work is slightly higher in industry's dull season, it will be found that in the long run it is true economy to furnish the workers of the nation with a steady opportunity to earn a living rather than to furnish them with intermittent doses of charity."

Charles B. Barnes and Walter L. Sears, directors of the New York State and New York City Employment Bureaus, respectively, spoke on the opportunity for constructive work and accomplishment through these channels.

"The times are out of joint through no fault of their own," declared T. S. McMath, of Seattle, in speaking of the number of willing and able workers now out of employment on the Pacific coast. "They argue that this workers are abundant plenty for all and are willing to continue to produce, but are not given the opportunity."

"They refuse to beg. They demand work, and, falling to obtain it at a fair wage, they quietly walk into the restaurants, order a meal and walk out with the suggestion that society pay the bills."

REJECTED SUITOR SHOOT AT GIRL AND KILLS CHILD

Millville Police Say John Horn Confessed Murder, Declaring Bullet Was Meant for Girl of 17.

MILLVILLE, N. J., Dec. 28.—John Horn, 28 years old, is in the jail here charged with the murder of Beatrice Bailey, 8 years old, of Millville. The child was instantly killed at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Alice Pettit, in Buckschutem, when a bullet, fired through a window at Miss Alice Pettit, 17 years old, daughter of Mrs. Pettit, penetrated her brain.

According to the police, Horn confessed the shooting at the Pettit home some hours after he learned that the child was his victim.

Detectives Lora and Brady, who made the arrest, said that Horn declared he was jealous of Miss Pettit, and when he found his attentions were rejected declared to avenge his wounded feelings. Horn will be arraigned today.

The Pettit family was seated at the dinner table, little Beatrice chatting and laughing with the others. She was seated next to Miss Pettit. Suddenly there was the report of a revolver, accompanied by the crash of a window.

Little Beatrice fell from her seat at the dinner table and the family rushed to her side. They found she was dead.

Some hours after the shooting, when the news reached the house where Horn was hiding that little Beatrice was dead, he ran to the Pettit home. As Horn strode into the room the detectives were telling of their efforts to find the slayer.

With tears streaming down his face, Horn walked up to Mrs. Pettit and said, according to the detectives:

"I did the shooting; it was all a mistake."

According to the police, he then told of being crazed by the fact that Miss Pettit had refused him.

"CHRISTIAN ENGINEER" FAILS TO ATTEND SOUL LUNCHEON

Fellowship Solicitors Wait in Vain for Loring R. Fulmer.

Again Loring R. Fulmer is trying to evolve a plan by which he can carry out his Christian fellowship luncheon idea. Mr. Fulmer is the man who presided at tables with 100 covers and waited in vain for his guests to arrive some weeks ago in a Market street restaurant.

Since that time he has been persistent in his endeavor to make his dream of "soul feeding" with stomach feeding a reality. Time and again he had the tables arranged and waiting. But never did the men he invited attend. A few did drift in—and out again.

After trying this method without success he tried a new scheme. He advertised for soliciters, explaining that "Christian men of gentlemanly address" were wanted to "solicit contributions in order to supply poor families with things to eat and wear, on a commission basis."

There was a ready response to this advertising, and Mr. Fulmer found there were plenty of men willing to take up the work, but only a handful were willing to supply the money for the price of a "fellowship luncheon" each day, which was a requirement. However, the hands were to have met today to further the plan, as Mr. Fulmer had confidence that the food would be enlarged and the "fellowship luncheon" would be so fruitful that his idea would meet with approval.

Now his hopes he shattered, and he is not able to decide a means of continuing his luncheon, he insists, "they cannot be a failure." His hope is so because of the refusal of the proprietor of the restaurant to permit advertising, and Mr. Fulmer found there were plenty of men willing to take up the work, but only a handful were willing to supply the money for the price of a "fellowship luncheon" each day, which was a requirement. However, the hands were to have met today to further the plan, as Mr. Fulmer had confidence that the food would be enlarged and the "fellowship luncheon" would be so fruitful that his idea would meet with approval.

KILLED BY P. R. R. TRAIN

Man Struck by New York Express Near Front Street.

A man about 60 years old, believed to have been Samuel Strange, 218 East Cambria street, was struck and killed by an express train on the Pennsylvania Railroad, east of Front street, today. The train was stopped and the body carried to North Philadelphia Station.

A letter found in the man's pocket addressed to Samuel Strange led the police to believe the victim lived at the East Cambria street address. It is the theory of the police that the man was returning to his home after searching for work.

HOMELESS SEEKING WORK GET ASSURANCES OF AID

Emergency Aid Committee Receives Many Applications for Assistance.

Hope burned afresh in the breasts of homeless men who applied for work today at the offices of the Emergency Aid Committee, 1423 Walnut street. They were not given the opportunity to labor today, but they were assured of some sort of assistance in the near future.

Their names, their trades and their references were noted and they were advised that they will be notified when there is work for them.

It was the first day the Emergency Aid had been able to give a genuinely hopeful and fairly definite answer to the scores of pleas for assistance. The committee's arrangements with Director Harris, of the Department of Public Health and Charities, had so far progressed that the committee felt itself in a position to promise the men good news before many days.

Applicants today were well recommended. For the most part they were sea-faring men or others whose work was gone when the war paralyzed shipping.

As soon as the plans now forming are completed these men will be given city work and will be paid from the $30,000 special appropriation made by Councils at the instigation of the Emergency Aid for the relief of suffering in Philadelphia.

Women applicants for work continue to be provided with sewing at the Home Relief division headquarters in the Lincoln Building. Here more than 1200 a day is paid to women that in the pinching times are almost the sole support of their families.
