EUGENICS AND MARRIAGES

Wisconsin Law Has Materially Lessened the Number of Weddings.

There were 154 fewer weddings in Wisconsin during the first five months of this year than during the corresponding period of 1913. This decrease is laid entirely to the new "eugenics" marriage law, says the Chicago Journal. Probably the effect of that law is even greater than these figures indicate. Until the outbreak of the war, this year has been a more prosperous than last, and good times always mean an increase in the number of marriages.

What has happened to the 200 or 300 young people of Wisconsin whose natural and proper desire to found new homes has been checked by this new law?

The well-to-do among them have made a little excursion, and been married outside the State. That is a very easy method of evasion for those who have the price.

A certain number of others have contracted common law marriages, which, in the opinion of at least one judge, are not affected by the new law.

A few more have decided to delay their nuptials for months and years, either in the definite hope of being married outside the State or in the vague expectation that "something will turn up."

A few have broken off their engagements altogether.

And some—let us hope the number is not large—have formed irregular, clandestine unions.

The mating instinct is too strong to be curbed by any law. It can be guided and regulated only; and even this cannot be done with advantage unless the law is backed by a strong, enlightened public opinion. The attempt to improve the race by legal enactment instead of by education is foredoomed to failure.

"Who is that social lion in the music room?"

"Between ourselves, he's a nobody and has a bad reputation, but he's a magnificent tanager."—Jugend.

THE DRAMA

GRACE GEORGE. COMING TO THE ADELPHI IN A NEW PLAY

THEATRICAL BAEDEKER

ADELPHI—"The Revolt" by Edward Locke, starring Helen Ware. Should a wife take the same liberties as her husband? She should not! A sermon for derelict benedicti.

BROAD—"Drugged," melodrama by Owen Davis, with John Mason as railroad magnate with a penitentiary past. As like real life as the novels of Hall Croyall and Marie Caine. Shows why you shouldn't accuse another man of murder if you've done the deed yourself.

CHESTNUT STREET OPERA HOUSE—"Cabrera," moving-picture drama, by Gabrielle D'Annunzio, of the third century B. C. A truly marvelous feat on the reel, with a convincing volcanic eruption.

FORREST—"Ziegfeld Follies," a potpourri of songs, jokes and spectacular effects; entertaining without consuming brains-phosphorus.

GARTICK—"Adelo," French operetta, with sparkling music. Revueville in love, with a husband falling in love with his wife.

KEITHS—Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle—their dances are the music of motion.

WALNUT—"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," by Kate Douglas Wiggin. Return of this popular, simple and appealing play.

FLASHES FROM "STARS"

A few weeks ago Miss Margaret Anglin, who will shortly appear at the Broad Street Theatre, visited the studio of a well-known New York photographer. The young woman in charge of the ladies' department was a stranger in the studio and unfamiliar with theatrical celebrities. She was instructed to take the name of each visitor before they posed, as well as the name of the company and management.

When Miss Anglin arrived she was ushered to the dressing room. "Name, please," said the young woman. "Margaret Anglin," answered the actress. "Would you please mind spelling it," said the young woman. Miss Anglin did.

"The name of your manager?" queried the young man. "My own," replied Miss Anglin. "And the name of the company?" continued the young woman. "My own company, please," said Miss Anglin, highly amused. The pictures were made. When the bill came to Miss Anglin's office it was made out to "Margaret Anglin, My Own Company, Please, care Margaret's Own."

"What is fame," asked Miss Anglin, "when one is unknown to photographers' clerks?"

One night last week Daniel Frohman attended a performance of "Coroedia Hibernica" at the Gaiety Theatre, New York. Upon leaving the theatre during the first intermission he caught take a return check, being known to every doorkeeper in New York. When he came back, after getting his glass of soda, he absent-mindedly wandered into the Fulton.

The curtain was up when he entered the house, disclosing a pair of beds on the stage. "Great Adolf!" he exclaimed. "The 'Cordelia' authors have swiped the 'Twin Beds' idea."

When Mr. Frohman reached his seat he found a stranger sitting in it. Instead of protesting he slipped into the seat adjoining. A moment later another stranger claimed that one. The Mr. Frohman began a personal investigation and to his amazement discovered that he had entered the wrong house. Mr. Frohman admits that even managers sometimes make mistakes.

An English comedy in three acts, entitled "Consequence" is now in rehearsal, and will shortly be produced by the Shuberts. It is by H. F. Rubenstein, and was first produced at the Gaiety Theatre, in Manchester, by Miss Horniman's company, and was then taken to London, where it was successful at the Coronet. The play deals with the subject of intermarriage between Jew and Gentile.

Miss Frances Starr will be presented by David Belasco late in December in a new play by Edward Knoblauch. Miss Starr, who spent the summer at Pine Lake, Wis., and Lake George, N. Y., is now rehearsing for "The Secret" in which Mr. Belasco will send her on a 19 weeks' tour of the large Eastern cities. She will appear at the Broad in this city.
