DELAWARE ACADEMY.

The Trustees of this Institution, have the pleasure of announcing to the public, and particularly to the friends of education, that they have engaged IRA B. NEWMAN, as Superintendent and Principal of their Academy.

The Trustees invite the attention of parents and guardians, who have children to send from home, to this Institution. They are fitting up a new building in the first style, and its location from its retired nature is peculiarly favorable for a boarding school. It commands a beautiful view of the Delaware river, near which it is situated, and the surrounding scenery such as the lover of nature will admire—it is easily accessible the Eason and Milford Stages pass daily, and only 8 miles distant from the latter place, and a more salubrious section of country can nowhere be found. No fears need be entertained that pupils will contract pernicious habits, or be seduced into vicious company—it is removed from all places of resort and those inducements to neglect their studies that are furnished in large towns and villages.

Board can be obtained very low and near the Academy. Mr. Daniel W. Dingman, jr. will make several boarders, his house is very convenient, and students will there be under the immediate care of the Principal, whose reputation, deportment and guardianship over his pupils, afford the best security for their proper conduct, that the Trustees can give or parents and guardians demand.

The course of instruction will be thorough adapted to the age of the pupil and the time the designs to spend in literary pursuits. Young men may qualify themselves for entering upon the study of the learned professions or for an advanced stand at College for mercantile pursuits, for teaching or the business of common life, useful will be preferred to ornamental studies, nevertheless so much of the latter attended to as the advanced stages of the pupil's education will admit. The male and female departments will be under the immediate superintendence of the Principal, aided by a competent male or female Assistant. Lessons in music will be given to young ladies on the Piano Forte at the boarding house of the principal, by an experienced and accomplished instructor. Summer Session commences May 4th.

EXPENSES.

Board for Young Gentleman or Ladies with the Principal, per week, $1 50
Pupils from 10 to 15 years of age from $1 to $1 25
Tuition for the Classics, Belles-Lettres, French &c., per quarter, 2 00
Extra for music, per quarter, 5 00
N. B. A particular course of study will be marked out for those who wish to qualify themselves for Common School Teachers with reference to that object; application made for teachers to the trustees or principal will meet immediate attention.
Lectures on the various subjects of study will be delivered by able speakers, through the course of year.

By order of the Board,
DANIEL W. DINGMAN. Pres't

WILLIAM EASTBURN.
Stroudsburg, Jan. 15th, 1840.

From the Louisville Journal.
The spoilsman came down like the wolf on the fold,
And their train-bands were rev'ling on ill-gotten gold,
And Benton's hoarse howl on the gale did resound
Like the deep deadly yell of the blood scenting hound.

Like leaves of the forest when summer is green.
In the year 'thirty-nine' their bought banners were seen,
Like leaves of the forest when autumn hath blown,
In March "forty-one" they lay withered and strown.

For freedom's proud bird spread his wings on the blast,
And the breath of his wrath laid them low as he passed,
And the eyes of the Vanites grew deadly and chill,
And Sub-Treasurers legs forever grew still,

And there lay sad Amos distorted and pale,
With a curse on his lip and a gripe on the mail,
And there lay Calhoun with his nostrils all wide,
And the "galvanized corps" lay stark by his side.

And there lay poor "Pickin" and Duncan hard by
With the Globe in his hand and a drop in his eye
And the kitchen was silent; the cabinet flown,
The cravat of the humbugger hung there alone.

And the wail of the Scullions is loud in their wo,
The "footstep" is vanished, the "follower" laid low,
And the popular might hath the spoiler expunged,
The might of the freemen hath freemen avenged.

Taking the Census.

"Do you live here sir," said a gentleman of easy address, and of some official importance, who carried a blank book in one hand and held a silver pencil in the other—"do you live here sir?" said he addressing the male occupant as he unceremoniously poked his head into an Irishman's shanty in the suburbs of the city, yesterday.

"Do I what said the Emerald somewhat surprised.

"Do you live here sir?" said the gentleman. "Why this sweet bad luck to you every day you see a wooden pavin stone, you spyin spalpeen," said Pat, apparently much enraged—"where else would I live? Isn't this me own house, and isn't me house me castle? What right have you to trespass on my prmissis, and step in without saying 'be yer lave,' or 'God save all here,' just as if ye were an estated gintleman?"

"My dear sir" said the visiter. "I did not come here with the view of unnecessarily intruding on you, I am employed to take the census, and came to take yours and your family's." "To take me sinsis!—give me a charm I suppose—put your combether on me! Oh! pur-symmin' to you, you decavin rascal! do you want to make an onadhavan or an idiot of me? Clear out of me concerns, or I'll be after giving you a polthogue, that'll take your sinsis," and he made a scientific move at the stranger in true Donnybrook fair-style, who requested him not to put his threat into execution but permit him to explain.

He told Patrick that he was employed by the people to ascertain the number of people who reside in the city, and that he merely called in pursuance of his vocation, to learn how many his family numbered.

"And is that all you want?" assuming a less bellegirent tone.

"No more" said the gentleman with the book. "And why the devil didn't you say so at first?"

said Pat and I'd tell it while a cat 'ud be atin' a ha'porth o' butther. Stay,—let me see and he (began to scratch his head to assist his memory:) there's meself and Nelly—that's one."

"You and Nelly are two said the gentleman making his memorandum at the same time.

Well there's more of yer assurance said Pat. Do you know better than the priest! Didn't he tell us the night that we wor married that we wor one?"

Well, I'll not argue the question with you said the gentleman—"proceed."

Well thin said Pat, there's the four gossins that's livin', and Brian and Teddy that's dead; there's Nancy that's at home with her grandmother in Ireland; and the two colleens that's wid us: there's pig and the ould mare and—

"That will do sir" said the census taker stopping him at the same time who had taken a note of the actual number of Pat's family, "Good bye sir."

"O safe journey to you me darlin!" said Pat. "Won't ye take somethin'?"

"Nothing said the stranger and he vanished."
N. O. Picayune.

"What would you take," said a chap lately to a waggish friend, "to read the speeches which have been delivered in Congress during the last winter?"
"What would I take?" replied the wag.
"Yes."
"I'd take about two years."

An Incident.

NEW CUMBERLAND, (Pa.) June, 1.

A laughable incident occurred in this county some time since, the circumstances of which we give just as we got them from one who professed to be acquainted with the transaction. An old gentleman farmer who had two or three very pretty daughters, was so very cautious of his charge that he would not permit them to keep company with the young men; however, they adopted the following expedient to enjoy the company of their lovers, without the knowledge of their father.—After the old man had retired to rest, the girls would hang a sheet out of the window, which was quite a distance from the ground, and the beau would seize hold of the sheet, and with the assistance of his lady-love, who tugged lustily at the sheet above, would thus gain an entrance; but it so happened that one evening the girls hung out the sheet rather too early—for the old gentleman, by some ill-wind was blown around the corner, and spying the sheet could not conjecture the meaning of its being there—so he took hold and endeavored to pull it down; the girls above, supposing it to be one of their beaux, began to hoist, and did not discover their mistake until the head of the old man was level with the window sill, when one of them exclaimed "Oh! Lord! —it's Dad!" and, letting go their hold of the sheet, souse came the old man on the hard ground and stoned below, dislocating one of his shoulders, which convinced him that his efforts to make old maids, out of his daughters was a matter not so easily accomplished, and withdrawing all further opposition to their keeping company, he was soon a father-in-law—Freeman's Advocate.

History is the epitaph of nations, serving not alone to honor the memory of the dead, but pointing, if rightly read, a pregnant moral to the living.
