

ILLUSTRATED Evening Ledger

FRIDAY
February 18, 1916

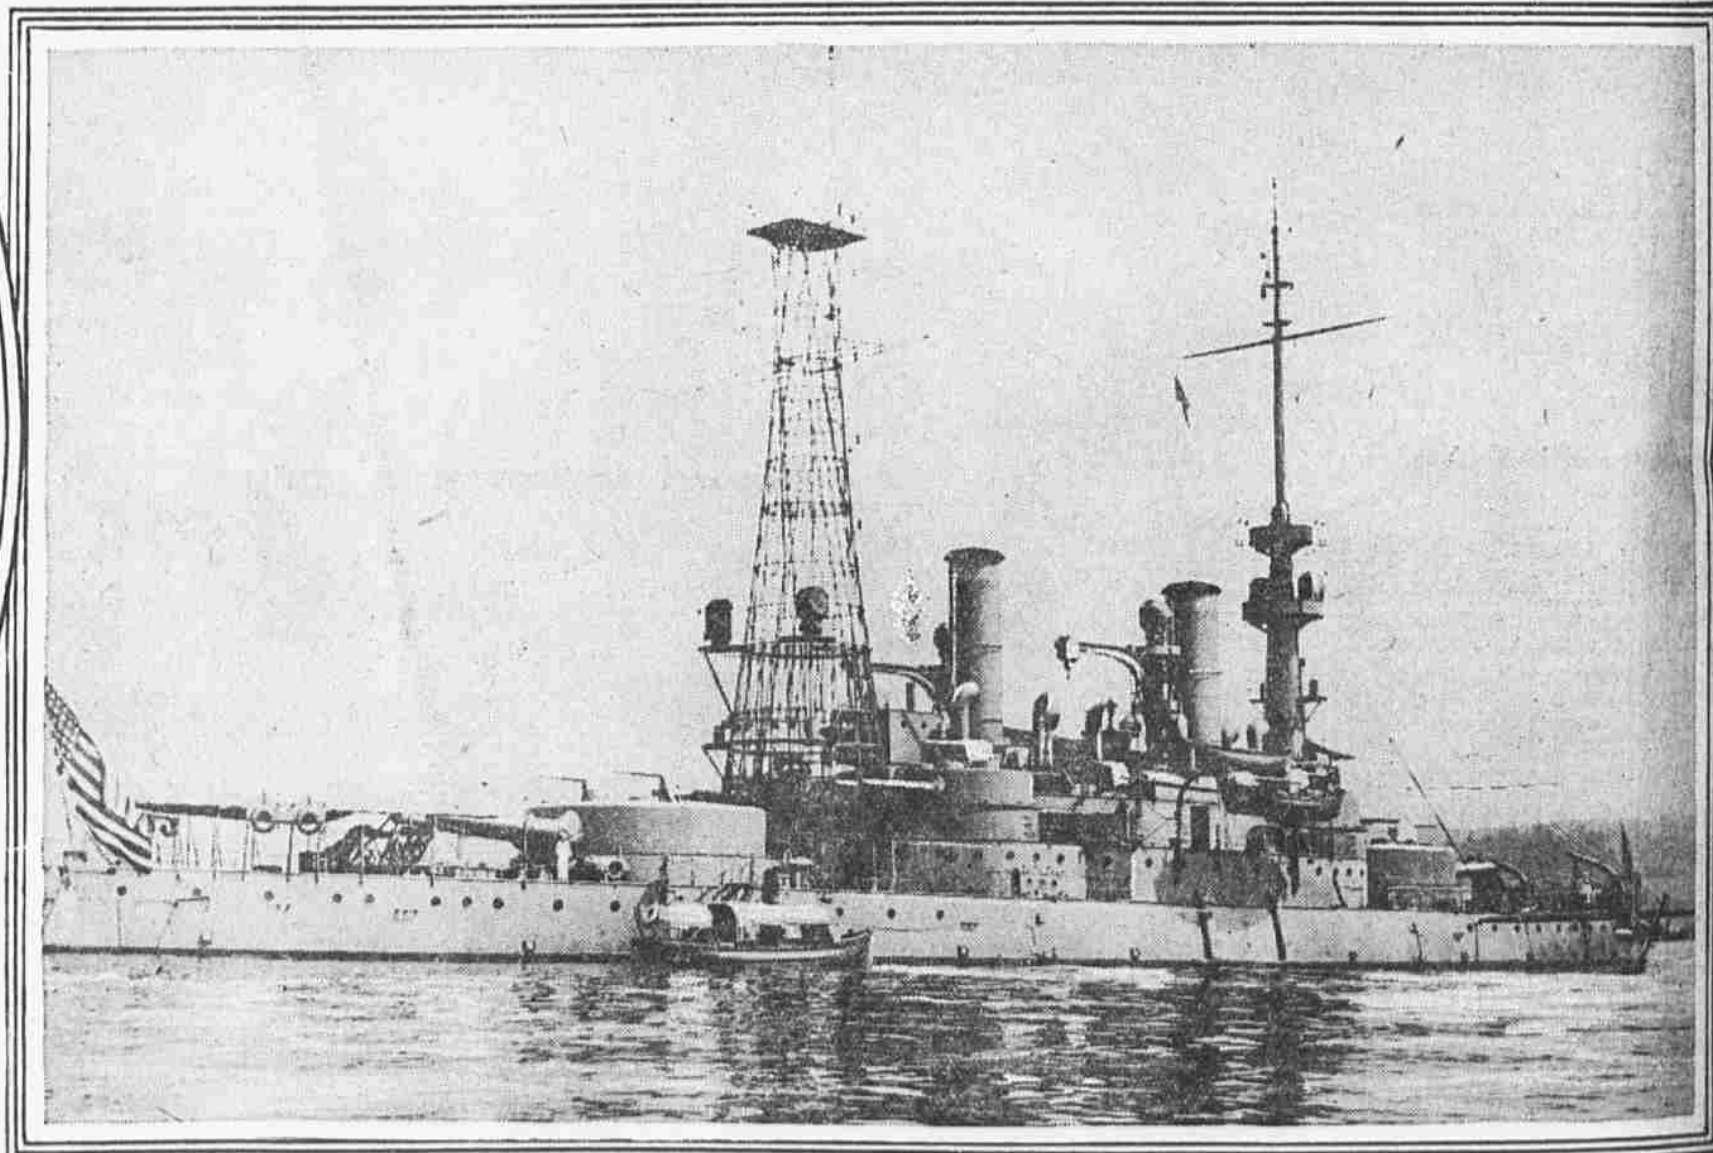

SIDELIGHTS ON THE NEWS OF THE DAY AS GATHERED BY THE EVER-PRESENT CAMERA MAN

CHILDREN LINING UP FOR FREE BREAKFAST EVERY MORNING BEFORE THEY GO TO SCHOOL
The Volunteers of America discovered that the boys and girls of many wage-earners' families were going to their daily studies so hungry that they were unable to keep awake, despite the fact that prosperity is supposed to be on amicable terms with the whole United States. This led to the establishment of these free breakfasts at 259 North 9th street.

BATHING SUITS, EARLY 1916 EDITION
Mrs. James C. Ferrish, Jr., of New York, and Mrs. George Ward, of this city, at Palm Beach.

BATTLESHIP OREGON, ONCE NAVY'S IDOL, NOW SENT TO THE REAR AS TRAINING SHIP FOR NAVY MILITIA
When she made her 50,000-mile trip around the Horn at the time of the Spanish war she was supposed to be the greatest fighting machine afloat, but alongside a modern dreadnought she would look like a pigmy. She displaces 10,288 tons against the Arizona's 31,400.

WOMEN OF MONTENEGRO FLEE THEIR COUNTRY IN THEIR BEST SUNDAY CLOTHES
When the Teutons overran the little kingdom the women of the well-to-do class left for Italy and France. A group of them in their picturesque native costumes are shown waiting to board a ship.

WHAT THE BRITISH ARE UP AGAINST IN THEIR MESOPOTAMIAN CAMPAIGN
The picture shows a British gun stuck in the desert quagmire at Basrah, following a heavy rain, and reveals the difficulties that must be overcome in going from the Persian Gulf to the reinforcement of the force beleaguered by the Turks at Kut-el-Amara.