The LONG FIGHT FOR SUFFRAGE

Women's Capture of Empire State Great Hope of More Victories

By ELEANOR K. McCONNELL

New York and the last month or so indicate that the women of New York have made a determined effort to capture the Empire State. The movement has been going on for several months, and as a result of the recent elections, there is now hope of success.

The movement started with a demonstration in which the women of New York took part. They marched through the streets, carrying banners and flags, and shouting slogans. The demonstration was well received by the public, and the women were able to attract a lot of attention.

In the following weeks, the women continued their efforts, going to great lengths to create awareness of their cause. They held meetings, gave speeches, and wrote letters to the newspapers. Their efforts were not in vain, as the public began to take notice of their cause.

In addition to the demonstrations, the women also worked on a legislative front. They lobbied the state legislature to pass a suffrage amendment. They worked tirelessly, and their efforts were finally rewarded when the amendment was passed.

The capture of New York is a significant milestone in the movement. It is a testament to the determination and hard work of the women. It is a sign of what can be achieved when people band together and work towards a common goal.

The capture of New York is also a reminder of the importance of voting. It is a reminder of the power of the people. It is a reminder of the strength of women. It is a reminder of hope. The capture of New York is a victory for the women of New York, and it is a victory for all women.
