THE NEW REBELLION.
The rumors of a Northwestern Rebellion which have lately been floating in the air, take a certain shape in a despatch from St. Louis, this morning printed, summarizing an account published in the Missouri Democrat of yesterday.

It is alleged substantially that there is an organization known as the "Order of American Knights," whose members are confederated with the rebels, and that the Government in its prosecution of the war, and with the incident of resulting object of setting up a Northwestern Confederacy, is in a conspiracy, however, to follow in its character and conduct with a remarkable flexibility, inasmuch as it comprehends the members of a party in Illinois, and the great V. V. Belmont, who was installed Supreme Commander of the Order at a recent convention, in consideration of the fact that the Order is now being divided into two sections, one for the West, and the other for the East.

The extreme energy which is thus manifested by the rebels, and which is a direct result of the efforts of the Government, is a very striking feature of the present situation. It is a fact which cannot be denied, that the rebels are now in a position to do more than they were at any previous time. They have now a large army in the field, and they are in possession of a large number of fortresses. They are also in possession of a large number of ships, and they are in a position to do more than they were at any previous time.

It would not be difficult to make the worst of it. It would not be difficult to find any Southern Rebel, and to find any man who is a worse man than the other. It would not be difficult to find any man who is a worse man than the other.
