OBITUARY.

Commander J. J. Cornwell, U. S. N. The cable announces the sudden death, in the port of Toulon, of Commander John Jacob Cornwell, United States Navy, second officer in command of the United States iron-clad steamer Miantonemah, of the European squadron. Commander Cornwell was a native of Ohio, whence he entered the pavy in February, 1847 receiving his commission as Lieutenaut in September, 1855. Soon after the breaking out of the war he was promoted to the rank of Licutenant-Commander, and, being appointed to the steam sloop-of-war Canandaigua, par-ticipated in the achievements of the South-Atlantic squadron. In 1864 he was transferred to the Mississippi squadron, and served with it during the remainder of the war. In the peace basis established for the squadron by Admiral Lee, he commanded the second division, whose jurisdiction extended from White river to Grand Gulf. In 1866 he was promoted to the rank which he held at the time of his death, and on the 22d of March, of the same year, he was assigned to the Miantenomah, with which he cruised in European waters.

Sarah, Countess Downger of Jersey. The London papers announce the sudden death of this lady, at her town residence in Berkeley square. It appears that, having re-tired to her dressing-room after dinner, to all appearances in perfect health, the domestics were startled by the violent ringing of her beli On an attendant entering the apartment, the Countess said she feared she had broken a blood Medical assistance was instantly obtained, but it failed to do any good, and the Countess expired shortly before cleven o'clock.

Sarah Sophia, Countess of Jersey, was born on the 4th of March, 1785, and was consequently in the eighty-second year of her age at the time of her death. She was the eldest daughter and only surviving child of the tenth daughter and only surviving child of the tenth Earl of Westmoreland, her mother being Anne, daughter of Mr. Robert Child. In May, 1804, the deceased lady married George Viscount Villiers, who became Earl of Jorsey the following year by reason of the death of his father. By this marriage there were seven children, of whom four wers sons and three daughters. Of these children Frederick, married to Lady Elizabeth, daughter of the Earl of Athlone, alone survives, the title of Earl of Jersey being borne by the son of George Augustus, her eldest child, who died shortly after his father. after his ather.
But few ladles of the English aristocracy have held a higher position in society than the Countess of Jersey. Possessed of extraordinary abilities, and having a thorough knowledge of European politics, she drew around her the most distinguished foreign diplomatists of her times, as well as the prominent statesmen of the tory and liberal parties. Herself a strong tory, a believer in the superiority of "noblemen" and "noble women" over the great mass of the people, and of the right of the aristocracy to rule the peasantry and middle class of England, her ladyship soon became distinguished for her political partisanship, and her "at homes" were exclusively confined to a distinct political faction. Notwithstanding this, however, she received the attentions of many of the opposing Party.

The late Lord Paimerston, even when in office, was an occasional visitor; and Lord Brougham was a warm personal irlend of the deceased. For many years the Countess of Jersey held an enviable position among the aristocracy of London. The death of her husband in 1859, however, induced her to retire into seclusion, and ever since she had only sought the society of her most intimate friends. While yet a comparatively young woman she received the personal regard of the Emperor Nicholas of Russia, and the Kings of Prussia, Holland, Belgium, and Hanover.

In her private character the Countess is represented as having been kind and charitable, without ostentation. She is said to have sup-ported many indigent families, who will neces-sarily feel a double regret at her death. For many years past her ladyship had been one of the leading pa'ronesses of "Almacks;" and, with Lady Palmerston, shared the greatest influence

Col. Arthur St. G. H. Stepney, C. B. This distinguished officer of the British army died recently at Jersey, England, from injuries received. He entered the service as ensign of the Twenty-ninth regiment in 1834, and, after being promoted to various other positions, was appointed Major in 1850, and became Lieutenantlonel of the Fifty-fourth regiment in 1854. In July of the same year he was appointed a Captain and a Lieutenant-Colonel of the Coldstreams, and was placed in command of a battalion of that regiment, with the rank of Colonel, in 1863. In August, 1866, Colonel Stepney retired on half pay. The military services of the deceased were brilliant, and received much notice. He was engaged in the Sutjee (India) campaign of 1845-6, and commanded the Twen-When retaking the Sikh camp a mine exploded, blowing him up and wounding him. He nevertheless continued in action until severely wounded by a grape shot, when he was compelled to relinquish the command of the regi-ment. At the Battle of Sobraon he greatly distinguished himself; and for his gallautry during the engagement was promoted brevet major, and nominated a C. B., with medal and class. During the Crimean war he served with the Coldstream Guards from December, 1854, to the end of the war, and received a medal and clasp for Sebastopol, together with a Turkish medal and the order of the Medjidie, fifth class. In 1864 he was awarded the good service pension of £100 a year.

Sir W. S. Harris, F. R. S.

This gentleman, known isvorably throughou the civilized world as the inventor of the only safe method of lightning conductors, died recently in England. He was born in Plymouth, in 1792, his parents being of the lower class of society. He received a good education at the Plymouth grammar school, and studied medicine at the University of Edinburgh. After practising his profession with great success for several years, he abandoned it and devoted himself entirely to the study of electricity and magnetism. In 1820 he discovered the mode of conducting lightning by means of broad copper plates, and his writings on the discovery attracted so much attention that Queen Victoria conferred upon him an annuity of £300 "in consideration of his services in the cultivation of science." In 1843 his invention was used on all of the British war yesseis, and since that time the Pritish navy has never known loss or damage by lightning. In 1860 the deceased received the appointment of selentific referee for the Government in all matters relating to electricity, and while in this position superintended the fitting of his conductors to the two Houses of Parliament, the royal palaces, and other public editices, the last upon which he was personally engaged being the royal mausoleum at Frogmore. Sir W. S. Harris was knighted for his services to science. M'me Louis Chapins.

This lady died recently at Marseilles, France. She was a member of a family distinguished for its adherence and faithfulners to the Bourbon dynasty. Her father received several severe wounds while defending Louis XVI, on the 10th of August, 1792, and her mother was presented with a pair of diamond earrings by Murie Antoinette, for the zeal she displayed in protecting the Queen from the fury of the rabble on the same occasion.

A California Pioneer. The California papers have long obituary notices of Mr. Michael Phalen, one of the earliest ploneers of the Golden State, who died recently at the residence of his brother, John Phalen, a well-known California merchant, in Fordbam, near New York city. Mr. Phalen landed in San Francisco, on the steamer California, in 1849. He was among the first of those enterprising spirits who contributed so to build up the fertunes of that State in the face of those limitless difficulties which met the pioneer at every step. In conjunction with his brother James, who is still a resident merchant in San Francisco, he succeeded in amassing a handsome independence by untiring industry and spotless integrity. His memory is revered by those who knew him through all his bustness struggles in the new State on the Pacific.
He returned to New York a short time since to enjoy the fruits of his labors, and unhappily charge of larceny.

died here, at the early age of forty-seven years, leaving behind him a record which might serve as on example to the rising generation.

CAMDEN AFFAIRS.

A SERIES OF OFFENSES .- About two months dince a man named James E. Galliger arrived n Camden, and took board with a widow lady. He remained a week, and then decamped with-out paying his board bill. Shortly after he visited the saw-mill of Messrs. Stockham, and visited the saw-mill of Messrs. Stockham, and represented that he was about to build a large vessel at Bordentown. He desired to purchase some lumber, which he did to the amount of $500. The firm being anxious to secure such a good customer, had confidence enough in him to loan him ten dollars, which he requested. He told them to send a boy with him to his boarding-house, and he would give them the money. The boy went, but Gailiger made off, and was not heard from again until he visited the furniture store of Mr. Murray, where he bought a cart-load of furniture, and desired it should be sent to a place in South Camden. He succeeded in borrowing seventy-five cents of ucceeded in borrowing seventy-five cents of his gentleman. A furniture car loaded wit; he goods was sent, but the man, after driving all over South Camden, returned and said he couldn't find any such place. Galliger's next exploit was by being bound in the bonds of ho'y matrimony to a widow of this city.

It appears that Galliger had left a wife and four small children in Maryland when he commenced his perambulations, and the wife haven a small children in the bar had and was not been appeared by the formation that her had and was not been appeared by the formation that her had and was not been appeared by the formation that her had and was not been appeared by the formation that her had an appear to the second seco ing received information that her husband was solourning in Camden, came on with the children. When she reached Philadelphia two of the children (twins) died, and her funds being exhausted, she was obliged to go to the Alms-house. Yesterday she went to Camden, and there learning of her husband's second marriage, declared it illegal, and had him arrested. At the hearing before Mayor Budd both wives were present, and came near indulging in the use of their fists. As it was, high words were used, and had it not been for the interference of his Honor, would have culminated in a knockdown argument, Gailiger was committed in default of $1500 bail.

THIEF CAUGHT. - Yesterday afternoon Thier Caught. — Yesterday afternoon a country wagon was standing at Federal street ferry. In it were several packages of groceries, and some oranges. Edward Phetpher passing that way, and having a desire to be the possessor of one of the latter, walked up to the wayon, and picked it up. Seeing the groceries lying there, and nobody around, he selzed them and made off. The owner, however, perceived him, and made chase. He was captured and taken before the Mayor, who committed him to answer.

Tools Recovered .- Some of the tools stolen from Mr. Thomas Jones' carpenter shop in South Camden, were recovered yesterday by Officer Coutts at a second-hand store. They had been disposed of by George Bloomfield, for whose arrest a warrant has been issued.

PETTY POLICE CASES. — A German named Gottlieb Herren, whilst afflicted with an attack of beer, got into a quarrel with a bystander, at Thirty-fourth and Thompson streets, yesterday morning, the results of which were that Gottiteb committed an assault and battery upon the man, and was arrested therefor. He was taken before Alderman Jones, and after a prelimi-nary examination was held in $600 bail for a fur-ther hearing of the case.

Mary Fitzgerald was arrested last night for depriving her interesting family of the plea-mary, who committed her to answer.

A young white woman, named Clara Green, nged about twenty-one years, was arrested on a charge of assault and battery, in a house in Duponeeau street, last night. It appears that Clara has an infirmity of temper, and it getting the batter of her, she undertook to lay violent hands upon the people of the house at which she was staying. She was held to answer at a forther hearing. further hearing.

STEALING WASH-CLOTHES .- About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Officer Hirst, of the Fifth District, detected a colored man named John District, detected a colored man named John Walters in the act of stealing some washelothes from a line in the yard of the house No. 731 Spruce street. He had with him a black boy named William Alexander, about bine years old. The man at the time, succeeded in making his escape, but the boy was secured. It appears that Walters passes himself off as a sweep, and has the boy for his alleged assistant. The boy says, however, that Walters was training him up to be a thicf. When they would go into a house under the prefense of cleaning the chimney, they would steal whatever articles were lying around loose.

were lying around loose. For some months past they have been in the For some months past they have been in the habit of robbing the yards of places in the lower part of the city of washe-lothes, and whatever was left out of doors. The boy mentioned about fifteen cases in which yards have been despoiled. In one case Walters went into a yard where there was a case containing a couple of canaries. He took the case, but the bottom dropped out and the birds escaped. He has taken, at different times, table-cloths, shirts, and other articles of clothing. Some of the stolen goods are at the Fifth District Station House, where they can be had by applying to House, where they can be had by applying to Lieutenant Connelly. Walters was arrested last evening, and, after a hearing of the case befor-Alderman Tunison, both the and the boy Alex-ander were committed for a further hearing.

DISORDERLY HOUSE CASE. - The police authori-Disorderity House Case.—The police authorities made a descent upon a disorderity nouse, kept by Mary Ann Pallett, at No. 122 Dock street, last night, about half an hour after midnight. Complaints had been made to Lieutenant Goldey about the place, and he sent a squad and arrested the keeper of the house and seven others, male and female, who happened to be enjoying her hospitality at the time. It is said that she is the wife of a man who was arrested a short time ago on a charge of committing a robbery. Mary Ann and the others had a hearing before Alderman Massey, when she was held in $1000 bait to answer the charge of keeping a disorderly house, and the others in of keeping a disorderly house, and the others in various amounts for drunkenness and breach of the peace.

Malicious Mischier,-Yesterday afternoon, Malicious Mischier,—Yesterday afternoon, a man by the name of MeGreese, while wheeing a barrow along Franklin street, near Race, conceived the idea that a vast amount of amusement would accrue to him should be foreloly prostrate a certain colored individual then running along, named Fisher, by a foreloly collision with his barrow. So he walked swiftly, directing his barrow towards Fisher, and although the latter tried to get out of the way, he was, nevertheless, successfully doubled up on the sidewalk by the conension. Not relishing this, he lodged complaint, and McGreese was arrested and held to appear at Court, in default of ball, by Alderman Williams.

PITCHING PENNIES .- This juvenile fashion is Pitching Pennies.—This juvenile fashlon is considered very reprehensible by our order-loving community. There are gangs of small boys in the upper and lower parts of the city, who engage in that amusement at all hours of the day. The police are resolved to put a stop to such proceedings, and accordingly have arrested a number of the parties. Five of the young gamblers were arrested in Amber street, near Girard avenue, yesterday afternoon, and had a hearing before Alderman Clouds, who held them in $300 ball to answer the charge of gambling.

AN UNFILIAL THIRF.-John Glen, a young As Usfillal This.—John Gien, a young lad, was arrested yesterday in Girard avenue, near Fifth street, on a charge of larceny. It appears that John was a young man who has a great many small expenses. Wishing to raise some money, he took one of his father's coats and tried to pawn it. His father got to hear of the way in which John was acting, and had him arrested. He had a hearing before Alderman Choud, and was held to bail to answer the charge of larceny.

STEALING SAILS.—The schooner James W. Hay arrived at this port yesterday morning, and on immediate charge by the Captain thereof, William Hildreib, employed as mate, was arrested for stealing a topsail from the schooner, while lying moored to the powder wharf, at Wilmington, Delaware. The case was brought before United States Commissioner Hibler, at a hearing yesterday afternoon, during which Hildreth acknowledged the theft of the sail. The defendant, however, was discharged, the Commissioner having no jurisdiction to hold im, since the vessel was moored to the wharf and the case must necessarily go before the civil authorities of Wilmington. Had the vessel been anchored in the stream, instead of at the wharf, the prisoner would have undoubtedly been held by the Commissioner. STEALING SAILS .- The schooner James W.

THE RESERVE OF THE PROPERTY OF

STOLE A HAM .- James McElroy and Thomas McManus were arrested on a charge of larceny, McElroy was arrested last evening at No. 207 McIlroy was arrested last evening at No. 207 Outario street, and McManus this morning at Gatchell Place. It appears that the teeth of the guilty pair had watered at the sight of a luscious sugar-cured ham, of ample proportions, that graced the front of a grocery store in Outario street. Being unable to resist the instigations of the Devil, they confiscated the luxurious mousel, and took their departure, without saying "nothing to nobody." Same one, however, saw the act and gave information. They had a hearing before Alderman Massey, who heid them in $1000 bail to answer the charge of larceny. the charge of larceny.

MEDICAL ELECTRICITY. Latest and Most Important Discoveries in the Treatment of Chronic

ELECTRICAL INSTITUTE.

During our investigations in the treatment of disease in its various forms by the agency of electricity, we have obtained very many valuable and startling facts, which, added to the previous though limited information, possessed by other and less fortunate operators, place us beyond all previous knowledge of this my sterious agent. Luring the course of our practice we have treated and cured, through the knowledge thus gained, many thousands, and by means of our new discoveries have established ourselves as the most successful Med cal Electricians in and negative currents, all we have to do is to neutralize the disease and restore proper, healthy

Among the chronic diseases in which electricity has been, and is daily being by our agency, of the greatest utility, a cure being rapidly effected after this country or Europe. Electrical investigation has proved that the numan body acts on the principle of the galvanic battery. The brain, mucous and serous membranes, the skin, tissue-, and fluids constitute the negative and posttive torces, and every action, whether mental or physical, is the result of these antagonistic forces. Disestion, respiration, circulation, secretion, and excretion are due solely to electrical influence. There is a polar action established throughout the nervous system which connects with every part of the body, establishing and preserving a proper balance of the electrical element which constitutes health, and a disturbance of which causes disease. There are strictly but two conditions of disbaseone of inflammation, or positive: the other weak, debilitated, negative-and as electricity contains these two conditions in the action of the positivo
