THE STAR OF THE NORTH.

R. W. Swager, Proprietor.

VOLUME 2.

BLOOMSBURG, COLUMBIA COUNTY, PA. THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1850.

NUMBER 32.

THE YEAR OF THE NORTH.

In the spring of last year, in consequence of the general erection of a large frame, a large undertakings, and the general success of the cotton industry, the demand for labor was very considerable.  The laborers, therefore, were able to command a high price for their labor.  The laborers, however, were not satisfied with this price, and made frequent attempts to increase it.

The attempt was, however, unsuccessful.  The laborers were, however, not satisfied with the price of labor, and made frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was, however, successful.  The laborers were, however, not satisfied with the price of labor, and made frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was, however, successful.

THE MILLER'S DILEMMA.

In the course of the summer, a large number of laborers were employed in the mills.  The laborers, however, were not satisfied with the price of labor, and made frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was unsuccessful.  The laborers were however, not satisfied with the price of labor, and made frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was, however, unsuccessful.

THE STATE OF THE NATION.

In the course of the fall, the laborers were employed in the mills.  The laborers, however, were not satisfied with the price of labor, and made

frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was unsuccessful.  The laborers were, however, not satisfied with the price of labor, and made

frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was,

however, unsuccessful.

THE ECONOMIC QUESTION.

In the course of the winter, the laborers were employed in the mills.  The laborers, however, were not satisfied with the price of labor, and made

frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was unsuccessful.  The laborers were, however, not satisfied with the price of labor, and made

frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was,

however, unsuccessful.

THE STATE OF THE UNION.

In the course of the spring, the laborers were employed in the mills.  The laborers, however, were not satisfied with the price of labor, and made

frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was unsuccessful.  The laborers were, however, not satisfied with the price of labor, and made

frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was,

however, unsuccessful.

THE STATE OF THE WORLD.

In the course of the summer, the laborers were employed in the mills.  The laborers, however, were not satisfied with the price of labor, and made

frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was unsuccessful.  The laborers were, however, not satisfied with the price of labor, and made

frequent attempts to increase it.  The attempt was,

however, unsuccessful.