LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

E. D. Parker, Esq., is putting up a new office building. The Presbyterian church at Millerstown has a 600-pound bell.

A turtle was caught in Brishin's mill dam in Madison township, Perry county, that weighed 19 pounds.

Look out for the "bluffed Mail" at the Patterson railroad crossing, and keep off the track. Time, 12 o'clock, noon.

There is to be an excursion to Gettysburg on the 6th of October, leaving this place at 4 o'clock in the morning.

Any one wishing to purchase a good open top buggy, cheap, can do so by calling on Bowers & Kennedy, Millintown.

Thieves pried the front door of the French hardware store open, on Tuesday night, and stole therefrom, pistols and knives.

The attendance on the schools during Wednesday of the Fair was so limited that an adjournment was deemed proper, until on Monday.

Alexander Ellis did an heroic act, worthy of the days of knight errantry, on Tuesday by saving the life of a lady who in the wandering of her mind plunged into the canal.

The Daily Democrat and Register, issued during the Fair, demonstrated the fact that there is a great deal of latent enterprise among the "boys," and all that is required to develop it is a paying opportunity.

The Republicans of Millin county made the following nominations last week: Sheriff, Wm. H. McClellan; Coroner, John Evans; Treasurer, S. J. Bishin; Commissioners, David Reister, John D. Beyer; Director of the Poor, Wm. Greer; Auditors, Reuben T. Myers, John Henry.

J. E. & W. F. McClellan, will sell at public outcry, at their residence on Water St., in Millintown, Saturday, October 10th, 1875. Five head of mules, wagons, harness and numerous other articles.

Two lots with good dwelling houses and other improvements thereon, in the borough of Millintown. One lot, with a dwelling house and outbuildings thereon erected, in the borough of Patterson. Sixteen hundred acres of mountain land, in Fayette township, with a house and sawmill thereon erected. Terms for real estate: Ten per cent cash, balance in annual payments, with interest.

From a letter it appears that Mr. G. W. Burchfield did not understand the proceedings of the late Democratic County Convention as we reported and published in these columns. The following is his version as per letter:

WALNUT, Pa., Sept. 25th, 1875. R. F. SCHWEIER, Sir:—In your issue of this week, in your report of the proceedings of the Democratic County Convention, you say that the objections to my making a statement, were withdrawn and I declared that I was satisfied. Please correct in your next issue the objections were not withdrawn, and the chairman decided against me. I then said I was satisfied with his ruling that I could not be heard, if any one member objected, not that I was satisfied with the matter in dispute.

Respectfully, G. W. BURCHFIELD. THE WORLD'S SNOW OF P. T. BARNUM.—All questions of both national and personal character, will be swallowed up in the fact that the Great P. T. Barnum's Great Traveling World's Fair, with its thousands of rare animate and inanimate features, vast canvas city concealed wonder treasures from earth, sea and air, and colossal combination of circus troupes, will move on us in magnificent procession on Tuesday, Oct. 12. It would be simply a waste of time and space to reiterate the repeated proofs of what everybody knows—that the great Object Teacher of the age is P. T. Barnum, and his world-wide famous museum, menagerie, Caravan and Hippodrome the most stupendous amusement enterprise ever projected. Press and people are unanimous in enthusiastic recognition.

Under these circumstances, the number and character of the attendance here may be readily surmised, and the wisdom of putting in an early appearance is self-evident.

ASSIGNER'S SALE.—John H. Moyer, Assignee of Isaac Halteman, will offer at public sale, on the premises, at 10 o'clock A. M., on Thursday, October 21st, 1875, a tract of Four Acres of Land situated at Evansdale, Juniata county, having thereon erected a large new two-story Brick Building, intended for a Store and House of Entertainment. There is also a good Frame Stable on the tract.

Also, a tract of land in West Perry township, Snyder county, adjoining the Greenwood Tavern property, and others, containing Seven Acres with Dwelling House and other improvements thereon.

Also, a tract of Timberland in West Perry township, Snyder county, containing Twenty-five Acres.

A Woman's Opinion of Fair—It is Fate, a Rut—The Names of the Exhibitors, and Participants in the Race. Prof. Robinson—Burgles—Their Effects—The Management—Gamblers Outed.

Said a lady to the writer of this article, "The second Fair at Riverside Park has been a grander achievement than that of last year in everything that is required to constitute a satisfactory exhibition. It is a fair exhibit of all the business and industries of this mountain girt community. True, it is not as large as Fairs under the auspices of the State Agricultural Association, or Fairs in the larger and more populous counties, but it is just as complete in all its departments as the district affords. It is a credit to the county."

How could I say a dissenting word to the fair speaker's statement! It was a concise statement of the conclusion of the intelligence of the assembly. It was the testimony of the senses of the men and women of comprehending minds at the Park. She added, "You are a Presbyterian." Just as quickly as I could say it, I said, "Peace, peace; a truce to creeds and religion now." With a look that was full of reproach, she continued, "I only wanted to say that if the management is as denominational as some have declared it, had better be kept at that, for it could not be better." If you knew who said it you would prize the compliment.

"It must be fate for people to meet in this way. Do you believe in fate?" she asked. And then I began to feel as if my declared truce was about to be ruled out. "Fate," I said, and I looked vacantly out through Floral Hall, over the heads of assembled living feminine beauty, and over the beautiful work of their hands, as if for an answer to come in at the door, but before I got it, she continued, "No, no; I don't mean to ask you if you are fated to bliss or woe. I mean that you are moving along in a rut or groove." I said, "Yes," for I did not know what else to say to this intellectual jewel of a woman; "as far as I know we are stumbling along in about the same way our fathers did before us." "We agree," she answered, and gave me a smile that made my heart ache, in spite of my cynical notions as to the power of woman's smiles and flashing eyes; and I am glad that we do, for I seldom meet a man who admits that. You men all want to be considered original. How much more of the original is there in it than there is in the time when Virgil in his Bacchic song of "flocks, tillage and heroes," when the Jews feasted and gladiatorial displays, and shows, and the private amusements of Barons and Royalty, of the same period! You know there is nothing original in this. It is fate. It is a continuous rut. We can't get away from it. We can't get out of it. We call it a Fair; a new name, truly, and that is all."

I had not seen the situation in that light. It was a new thing to be told that a modern Fair, such as we were working through, was old as man itself, and if its assembling of the people appeared new, it was only the appearance that was strange. It was only like changing water into ice; they do not look alike, but they are the same elements, changed in form only. Here was a lesson from a woman that taught, that man will meet for show, amusement, social intercourse, in some form or other, good or bad, for all, or a few, just as the spirit of the times are. She calls it fate, a rut, a groove, and I believe in her teaching. The testimony of ages, as found on the historic page, bears her out. Then we have the testimony of the past to prove that people must have show and amusement. But she added further, "These Fairs are the least harmful, and most useful shows instituted among men, unless those of a religious character are considered; and people who are opposed to Fairs should look at them under all of these lights."

I could have passed an hour or two in the company of that lady, and I confess to a sigh of regret when she glided away in response to the beckoning of a lady friend, for I could not tell when the pleasures of her conversation should again be mine.

All this took place in Department III, and the first object that I distinctly looked on after the disappearance of this brilliant woman, whose powers, if she remain in Juniata, will forever remain unobscured and unused, was the handsome photographs of Mr. Hess. Not far off was the penmanship of Wagner, and paintings by Miss Mary Wilson, Miss W. Thompson, Mrs. George Gordon, Miss Kate Berger. In the same Department were the Flowers and Designs, by Miss Ella B. Crawford, Miss Julia Salouff, Miss Namie Coffman, Mrs. Coffman, Mrs. John Copeland, Mrs. Clara Thompson, Joseph Oberholzer, Michael Stoner, D. R. P. Bealor, Miss Mamie Bealor, Mrs. S. B. Leonard, Samuel Parker, Miss Mamie Kulp, Mrs. Millie Goshen, Mrs. A. G. Bonnell, Miss Lizzie Andrews, Miss Kate Reardon, Miss Julia Salouff, Mrs. Kate Jackson, Miss Jennie Murry, Miss Ella B. Crawford, Mrs. George Goshen, Mrs. I. D. Musser, Miss Anna Parker, Mrs. Reuben Caveny, Mrs. James Simons, Miss Lucy Wilson, Mrs. S. B. Leonard, Miss H. Bealor, Miss Mattie Hamilton, Mrs. J. N. Moore, Miss Rhettie Todd, Mrs. Martha Wilson, Miss Mary Wilson, and Jettie and other good things, that I would have liked to have had the lady, whose charming conversation is yet lingering in my mind and will not out at my bidding, at my side to tell and talk about them—I do wonder if she is an Epicure—were there by Mrs. W. Thompson, Mrs. P. Hawn, Miss Sallie J. Irwin, Miss Lizzie Adams, Miss Alice Sieber, Mrs. S. A. Shamp, Mrs. John McNeel, Miss Kate McNeel, Mrs. S. B. Leonard, Mrs. Daniel A. Notesman, Miss Mary Christy, Miss Sallie Christy, Mrs. G. M. Davis, Mrs. John Valentine, Mrs. John Copeland, Mrs. J. Banks Wilson, Mrs. Sarah E. Stoner, Mrs. John Moore, Mrs. George Goshen. I did not get through with the nice things under this roof when I was called down to see the Poultry. It was supposed that the prescribers would give them special attention, but there was no one of that God given calling about when your correspondent looked at the fowls, and learned the names of the exhibitors to be, James McNeel, H. W. Berger, Elizabeth McAuley, W. H. Moore, S. W. Henderson. The same party, after we had done the chickens &c., would see the vegetables &c. I knew London's California pumpkins and monster cabbage. Vegetables in great variety were exhibited by Mrs. Martha Wilson, John McNeel, George King, Henry Berger, Jacob Leonard, Isaac Eika, Charles Mitchell, J. Banks Wilson, Simon Ush, and the most delicious grapes of 30 some kinds by the Oberholzer Brothers, and other fruit by James McNeel, J. S. Robinson, M. Leonard, P. H. Hawn, J. W. McAlistet, Simon Ush. Some one said there was wine there, but in consequence of my companion being a cold water man, or at least an abstainer from all stimulating drinks except tea, I could not interest him sufficiently to help look it up, and I never got back for that purpose. For the stomach of wine, either for the stomach's sake or other purposes, my friend would go to see the stock, and before we quite knew it we were over at the southeast corner of the enclosure, admiring a magnificent French Percheron horse owned by John McNeel and Matthew Rogers. The same gentlemen had on exhibition an Alderney bull and cow, that did one good to see. There was other blooded cattle there by Wm. Christy, James McAuley, Amos Stouffer, Matthew Rogers, Edward Kauffman, James McNeel, W. H. Moore, J. Banks Wilson, Harvey Smith, David Doty, G. W. McAlistet.

There was a fine exhibit of sheep by James McAuley, A. Latimer Wilson, M. Leonard, William Kauffman, Edward Kauffman, James McNeel, W. H. Moore, J. Banks Wilson, Harvey Smith, David Doty, G. W. McAlistet. The exhibitors of horses were Theodore Thompson, G. W. McAlistet, J. Purdy Johnson, William Hartman, G. M. Diven, Henry Groninger, Ush & Brother, David Doty, Kurtz Kauffman, H. W. Berger, John Cunningham, C. M. Johnson, James Kauffman, J. S. Tyson, Banks W. Kauffman, Col. J. K. Robinson, James McNeel, George King, Matthew Rogers.

Exhibitors under the classification of Home Manufacture and Agriculture were, J. H. Simons, with his magnificent and substantial harness, Oberholzer & Brother, J. B. M. Todd, Wm. Hartman, Amos Stouffer, James Kauffman, Samuel Stimmel, J. Fred Hummel, Kurtz Kauffman, Davis Kauffman, John McNeel, Geo. King, Henry Berger, Jas. McNeel, Wm. H. Banks, Matthew Rogers, Jacob Slauterback, John and Harry Moore, O. W. Ort, William Thompson, James McAuley, J. E. Jamison, W. H. Graybill, C. Altman & Co., G. M. Diven, E. A. Smith, W. F. Snyder, S. W. Henderson, Cora McAlistet. The display of Embroidery was bewildering, and the fair makers of all this profusion of adornments were, Mrs. Geo. Goshen, Mrs. Henry Groninger, Mrs. Frances Ush, Mrs. Catharine Shirk, Mrs. Margaret Leonard, Mrs. James Kauffman, Mrs. E. J. Nangle, Mrs. James Simons, Mrs. James McNeel, Mrs. Reuben Caveny, Miss Rebecca North, Miss Lizzie Andrew, Mrs. Davis Kauffman, Miss Sallie Arnold, Miss Ada James, Miss Ida Jones, Miss Lizzie Moore, Miss Julia Salouff, Miss Ella Thompson, Mrs. A. G. Bonnell, Mrs. W. H. Henderson, Mrs. Mary Moyer, Mrs. Annie Rogers, Mrs. Mary Coffman, Mrs. John Thompson, Mrs. S. F. Parker, Mrs. T. W. Auker, Miss Susan Bealor, Mrs. D. R. P. Bealor, Miss Hannah Bealor, Mrs. J. Lyons, Mrs. F. Halderman, Mrs. William Hartman.

The trotting races were all pleasantly gone through with, and the horses were ordered or driven by T. J. Middegh, Abraham Meist, Reuben Meist, E. D. Parker, Dr. Braese, John Cunningham, John Hays, Samuel Strayer, Isaac Sieber, C. H. North, David Sieber, all of this county, and B. F. Myers, of Altoona, and H. Byers, of Harrisburg, but the crowning horse race or trot was reserved for Prof. John Robinson, a most skillful Knight of the razor, in Patterson, to conduct, to the infinite amusement of all. His profusely cut Brother Jonathan style of clothing, and the preferred hat of the same character and all the trappings of his horse and vehicle, led a number to exclaim, "The Professor is the very Don Quixote of the races." His profusion made many feel as if all the races had better be denominated a farce. The Professor is a character, and when the lives of the local distinguished people come to be written he should not be left out. I missed the companionship of the lady referred to in the opening of this communication, when the Professor was in the height of his performance, for I should have been glad to have had her opinion as to its effect. Would she say that in effect it would reach as far as any other performance for good on that ground, considered as a burlesque! It is said that Don Quixote did strive to extinguish Knight Errantry, its tournaments and attending gambling, than all the serious exhortations that had been delivered against it.

The half-mile race, participated in by two Indians and one white man, S. B. Rickenbach, was an interesting one. They all ran well, and as the white man followed the Indians closely, I could not help thinking that it looked like destiny running out the Red Man. The white man was following him as sure as fate.

The race of one fourth of a mile, indulged in by boys under 12 years, was as spirited and exciting to the spectators as a race by the coming generation of that age could be. The participants were John Ellis, Willis Caveny, S. London Todd, Fred Wright, William Banks, Charles Doughtman and others. The pedestrian, James Adams, delivered himself of a walk that has given many people a new and possibly a better idea as to how speedy walking may be accomplished.

The management of the Fair was kept to a moral status. At one time gambles were in a glee; they thought that an entering wedge had been effected, and by the opening thus made a lodgment for the whole fraternity, from the selling of pools, openly, to the Three Card Monte game, would be certain. But fate was against it. The management ruled in such a way that the ground was soon rid of them, and the outside concern that was set up, was denounced upon by Officer Wilson, and the offenders arraigned before Justice Huzzard, who, in the leniency of his judgment and heart, and agreement of the parties, left them off by ruling that they return the fleece that they had shorn from a green county youth, pay the costs, and leave the country, which it is believed they did, for they were not seen afterwards.

I would write you more of this pleasant and profitable Fair, but I have already trespassed largely on your space. So adieu for the present, with the expectation of hearing soon again from MAIN STREET.

Among the many meritorious things on exhibition at the late fair of the Riverside Park Association, none were more interesting than the display of fruit by the Oberholzer Brothers, and others. Our people could there see that as fine fruit is produced in Juniata county as anywhere in the country. We were recently shown a number of peaches raised by Daniel Kloss, Esq., on his farm in Walker township, which surpass in quality, flavor and size any we have heretofore seen, one of these weighed 6 1/2 ounces, and was as fine a specimen of perfect growth as can be produced anywhere.

THE Perry county Advocate says:—On Tuesday of last week Mr. Abtaim Stahl was found lying behind his plow team, in George Cornegable's clearing, in Spring township, in a dying condition. The other hands in the field noticed the team standing and Mr. Stahl lying on the ground behind the plow. On going to Mr. Stahl, they found him dying. A physician was called, who pronounced the cause of his death to be heart disease, to which he was subject. Mr. Stahl was an industrious man, and leaves a widow and five children.

Mr. Schweier—Sir: To ask for space in your columns at this late date after inspection, in acting on, or under the stage of "better late than never." It is "better late than never" to tell something of our trip to Pottsville for inspection, and I will do it as briefly as I know how, for you know that the first duty of a soldier is not to talk much but to act to the point. We were called to meet at our Army on Monday night, September 13, to prepare to march, at 5 o'clock next morning. On our arrival there we found Col. Robinson there with the "Juniata Scouts," in line, with between fifty and sixty men—commissioned officers and enlisted men—and the "Graybill Zouaves," commanded by Captain Cornelius McClellan, numbering forty commissioned and enlisted men. The Juniata Cornet Band accompanied us and enlivened us with their superior music. A Company, numbering forty-nine commissioned and enlisted men, joined us in Perry county. They were fine-looking soldiers. On our arrival at Harrisburg we were largely reinforced by infantry companies that were changing cars at that place for our destination, namely, Pottsville, for which place we started by way of the Reading Railroad. At Jonestown we were reinforced by one company. At Lebanon our number was increased by two fire companies, and the Colonel and Major of the Regiment. Col. Gabin is every inch a soldier. He commanded a company in the 47th P. V. in the late Rebellion, and many Juniata boys marched under him through the swamps of Florida, and with him as leader took a part in the Red River expedition, and notably worthy of mention is the old flag bearer, Ben Walls, over sixty years of age. The Colonel says he was a remarkable man for endurance, and was wounded from the lowest depth of his heart.

We reached Pottsville at 11 o'clock A. M. The Colonel formed the line, and marched up Central street to headquarters, and there reported to the gentlemanly commander, General Latta, and his assistant, J. M. Avel. The command was moved up Market street to the Peoples' Line Railway depot, and there the boys were taken some two miles to a beautiful grove, where they were inspected by Governor Hartman and staff, upon the completion of which we were returned to town, where the Zouaves were met by gentlemen properly delegated to invite, to dinner at the tugboat house, the "Good Intent Fire Company." The invitation, it is needless to say, was accepted, and ample justice done to the good things provided. The citizens of Pottsville may be proud of this company. They threw open their parlors for our reception, which was quite a treat after the fatigue of the cars and inspection. After a short rest we formed line and counter-marched and then filed left, down Norwegian St. to the heights that overlook the town, when all the troops were drawn up in line and reviewed by the Governor and staff, after which the march of review was taken up through the principle streets. This maneuvering consumed the afternoon. At the proper place and time the command was halted and put under command of their respective commanders and dismissed.

Two hours remained, in which to do Pottsville, and many of the "boys" saw a good deal of the town in that time. Traite time came; we boarded it, and the next morning at 3 o'clock we arrived at Millin, safe and sound. The members of the Band and the Zouave company are of opinion that there are few men better at entertaining strangers than the members of the Good Intent Fire Company. Their name is most appropriate. Everything passed off pleasantly, and Paddy McGuire kept in his hole, as there were too many "goons" about for good health. And thus we close for the next year. VETERAN.
