ATHLETICS WERE WAY OFF COLOR YESTERDAY AND RED SOX HAD A BIG SHADE ON THEM

RED SOX, THANKFUL FOR FAVORS RECEIVED FROM MACK'S ATHLETICS, DEPART WITH KINDLIEST FEELING

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL

ED BARROW and his gang of Red Sox left Philadelphia last night with nothing but the kindliest feelings for Connie Mack and the Athletics. Last Monday the Boston players arrived here in second place in the won and lost column. They departed with a stranglehold on first position, this having been made possible through the kindness of the home town boys. They refused to win from the visitors, although on Wednesday they stuck around fourteen innings before proving it. Two unanimous decisions and one draw were earned by the Sox in three games.

The A's went to Washington this morning to help the pennant hopes of the Senators. Connie's men are are very obliging that way. Whenever a ball club is in a slump, along come the A's and the slump is over. Our boys have restored confidence in many a ball club. It looks as if Connie Mack was practicing for the series with Detroit in a couple of weeks. The Tigers have yet to win their first game, but it will be different when they come here. The series should be intensely interesting.

Yesterday a terrible exhibition was perpetrated. Boston won easily, scoring their winning runs in two innings. The Sox have a habit of doing that. On Monday nine runs were scored in the fourth and seventh. Wednesday the second, third and seventh were the big frames, and yesterday the fourth and sixth were used for scoring purposes. In all, the Boston leaders copped the series by the score of 23 to 8.

Naylor was on the mound, but got into trouble in the fourth when, after one person had perished, he walked McInnis and Foster. Now when a pitcher starts handing out free transportation to the sacks he is getting off on the wrong foot and about to receive an awful slamming. Such was the case with Naylor. His teammates went up in the air and one error by Dykes and two by Galloway, paved the way for five runs. Only one hit was made in this inning, and we shudder to think what would have happened had Boston connected with two safeties.

During the afternoon, the A.'s made more errors than Boston made hits. It surely was a weird and unusual game. Four hits drove in seven runs, while the home-folks swatted nine safeties and could count only once.

* * *

JOE BUSH allowed his former pals to get on base, but tightened up after that and ruined all chances to score. He raced up in the ninth and the A's scored their only run.

Records, but in the Stands

THE fans, however, enjoyed themselves immensely. Customers at Shibe Park refuse to be disheartened and, to make sure they will be amused, they bring their own amusement with them. There was one interested spectator in the top stand. For three innings he followed the game closely, but after the fourth, when the Red Sox scored five runs and put the conflict on ice, he turned to something else.

Winding up a victrola which he had concealed about his person he put on a record and soon became absorbed in the sweet jazz music. The ball game was forgotten. Record after record was put on and a pleasant time was had.

When this act was about completed along came George Young with a lot of gents wearing whiskers and carrying horns. These were from the House of David, and the way they jazzed the House of Mack was something terrible. First there would be a selection from the victrola and then one from the band. Spectators sat entranced. They followed every note, pausing only to chalk up another error for the A's.

The best playing was done by the musicians. Only Bill Brandt, the official scorer, followed the game closely, because he was there for that purpose. As the band played on, the players on the Athletics grew visibly nervous. They imagined the whiskers were fakes and the musicians were minor league scouts in disguise. Some one said Oshkosh, Wis., needed some young athletes and might give some of the boys a tryout.

Therefore, with the music from both ends of the stand, no one can say the afternoon was wasted. As Ring Lardner says, Philadelphia fans must be peculiar or they wouldn't be fans.

Just the same, there were some exciting moments. Firinstance, take the sixth inning. Harris was pitching baseballs toward and near the plate and the Bostonese were acting accordingly. Finally one was grooved and Everett Scott, who was waiting for an opportunity to celebrate his 536th consecutive ball game, socked it into the left field bleachers for what is commonly known as a home run. Then a couple of other athletes were nailed and Harry Hooper lifted another baseball over the right field wall. Result, two runs and two baseballs gone forever. Loss to Connie Mack, 85.

CONNIE says he will use one of his eleven pitchers against Washington today. He doesn't know which it will be, but will make a shrewd selection.

Giants Here Today With Phils

THIS afternoon the Phils will come back to the home lot and will perform with the New York Giants. The victory in Boston yesterday helped considerably, for it gave them an even split with the Braves. Incidentally, Stallings's men are skipping along nicely at this juncture and a victory means something.

Cravath's club has done much better than was expected. Four pitchers came through beautifully, and the sluggers managed to slug when the opportune time came. Most of the sluggers do their fence busting in the morning when it doesn't mean anything. The local line-up, with Williams, Stengel, Jack Miller, Ralph Miller, Meusel and Le Berveau, is a dangerous one, as any one of these persons is likely to bust up the game at any minute.

* * *

THE Phillies will be here for eight games, playing the Giants and Boston. Then they go on their next western trip.

Doctor Orton Makes Relays Success

THIS afternoon the Penn relays will open, and judging from the interest in the events, one of the largest crowds in history will be present. The relays are an institution. Nothing like it is seen any place else in the world, and athletes from all over are entered. Dr. George W. Orton has staged the races successfully, and it is due largely to his efforts that the affair has been a success.

The best part of the relays is the fact there is no delay. If an event is scheduled to start at 4:36 p. m. that event starts at that time. Nobody knows how it is done, but there never is a slip-up.

DETROIT lost another game yesterday. This made the eleventh straight. The Tigers now have forgotten how to score.

AIN'T IT A GRAND AND GLORIOUS FEELING?

ACADEMIC TITLE FOR GERMANTOWN

Manheim Nine Beats Penn Charter—Northeast Trims Central High

Germantown Academy did the expected when they captured the Interacademic League baseball championship on the Tabor Field yesterday, beating Penn Charter for the second time this season and making it five straight in the league. There is every indication that the Manheim athletes will win all their league games this season.

Germantown Academy used the squeeze play to advantage, scoring two runs in the fifth in this way. Brill's homer featured for Penn Charter. Braddock Binsmore was the star of the game, as he pitched a fine game and was steady in the pinches. Episcopal Academy and Penn Charter are now tied for second place in the league.

Northeast High won from Central High in the Interscholastic League game yesterday, 5 to 3. Russell only walked one man and that came at a bad time, as it forced in a run for Northeast. Frankford High and Catholic High play a postponed league game this afternoon and the West Philadelphia-Germantown contest on the West Phillies' field will decide which of these two teams will move into first place.

One bad inning gave the Haverford School players another jolt, for La Salle Preps won the game on the Main Line field yesterday by a score of 8 to 7. La Salle scored all the runs in the eighth inning.

Swarthmore High is out of the relays because of scholastic difficulties. The faculty ax fell at Swarthmore High with the result that Powers, catcher; Yarnall, third baseman, and Troxell, center fielder, are relieved temporarily from their strenuous baseball duties.

St. Joseph's Preparatory School dropped out of second place to third position in the Catholic School League series as a result of the Villanova game. Villanova, in winning 12 to 3, sprang a big surprise. The Villanova team presented a number of changes, and Aniston, who pitched, held the visitors to five hits.

In a five-inning game the Chestnut Hill Academy team defeated the Pennsylvania Institute for the Deaf, at Chestnut Hill, 16 to 5. Ross, Rawles and Carrigan formed the battery for the Hillers. Errors by P. I. D. helped the Academy boys to the victory.

Collingswood High upset Wilmington High in the baseball game at Collingswood, winning 8 to 4. Roberts's triple in the eighth inning scored three runs. Another game which attracted a large crowd was between Moorestown High and Clayton High, the former winning, 3 to 1, by a rally in the sixth, when Bennett and Shay scored on Baylor's hit.

Friends' Central School will have a busy week in baseball. Starting next Monday, the little Quakers play Germantown Friends', and then comes the game with Abington High on Wednesday. On Friday Penn Charter will be played in the last game of the Interacademic League season.

Friends' Central and Penn Charter have been close rivals in baseball. Prior to the opening of the 1920 Interacademic League season, Penn Charter had a record of eight victories to Friends' Central's total of five in the last seven years. This year the Friends' team won the first game, and should the Blue and Gray triumph in the contest next week, it will result in a tie at 8 to 8.

Episcopal Academy came back strong in the baseball game with Friends' Central yesterday, winning, 6 to 1. Williams pitched the best game of his career, holding the Quakers to a single hit. Williams and Kraft made two base hits, and Kraft figured in a double play to Rittenhouse. Minster pitched for Friends' Central, but the Churchmen had their batting eyes in trim and landed on him for nine hits.

INVITE ENGLISH TENNIS PLAYERS

A. E. Beamish and A. Lowe, on Way Home From Australia, Asked to Play Here

New York, April 30.—Upon the receipt of the news yesterday that Arthur Lowe and A. E. Beamish, of the English Davis Cup, had reached Vancouver on their way home from Australia, the United States Lawn Tennis Association lost no time writing Canadian tennis officials requesting their aid in delivering to the players an invitation to play a number of exhibition matches on the leading courts of the country before leaving for England. Every other effort will be made to get in touch with the British tennis stars before they book an early passage for the continent.

In view of the fact that all tennis of an international character is to be played in Europe this year the appearance in this country of Lowe and Beamish would attract a lot of interest. They might be persuaded to meet some of our leading players and leave for England together with the American Davis Cup team on May 29. In the month's time intervening satisfactory arrangements could be made for the Englishmen to appear on the Pacific coast, Middle West and the East.

It is quite possible that the visiting players have had their surfeit of tennis for some time to come. It is now three months since Lowe and Beamish and A. R. F. Kingscote made an unsuccessful attempt to beat the Australians in the challenge round. Since then Lowe and Beamish have played considerably in New South Wales and New Zealand, and they have been away from home for almost a year.

Carpentier Picks Wells to Win

London, April 30.—Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight champion, has picked Bombadier Wells to beat Joe Beckett in the fight scheduled here for May 8. Charles B. Cochrane, London promoter, received this cable from the Frenchman in New York: "Bet me £100 on Wells. Tell him to remember what I told him and he will beat Beckett."

Lever Leads Penn Fresh

Harold Lever, Penn Fresh track sensation, was elected captain by his teammates yesterday. Lever is a sprinter and three times equaled the world's indoor record of 0:2.5 seconds for sixty yards, at Buffalo several months ago in the junior national indoor meet. He entered Penn from Mercersburg. His home is in Utica, N. Y.

EIGHT-CLUB CIRCUIT

Northeast Manufacturers' League to Start Season on Saturday, May 15

With eight clubs in the circuit and all within a few squares of each other, the Northeast Manufacturers' League has decided to inaugurate the season on Saturday afternoon, May 15. At a meeting held last evening J. Maloney, of the firm Louis Walther, was elected president, and C. Geiser, of Schwarz Wheel, was chosen vice president. T. Zebley, of Henry Disston Sons, was re-elected to the position of secretary, which he held down in a capable manner last season.

The eight teams in the league are: Henry Disston Sons, Dill & Collins, Edwin H. Fitler Co., Robert H. Foerderer Co., Schwarz Wheel, Philadelphia Storage Battery Co., Tabor Manufacturing Co. and Fayette R. Plumb. The schedule for the season will be adopted at a meeting to be held next week.

Robins vs. Bethlehem in Finals

Robins Drydock soccer eleven's victory over the Fore River F. C., of Quincy, Mass., last Saturday, in the semifinal round, carried it into the finals for the American cup. The United States Football Association controlling the cup competition has decided on Harrison Field, Harrison, N. J., for the final clash between the Robins Drydockers and the Bethlehem Steel F. C. for next Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

This is the first of the two big soccer contests, and it promises to be one of the greatest battles ever waged between two elevens, as it was the Robins squad that eliminated the steelworkers from the National Cup series for the first time in four years.

It is the same Robins, too, who eliminated the Bethlehem team from annexing the National League championship.

PHILS HOME WITH GIANTS AS FOE

Cravath's Club Finished Boston Series With Sensational Play and 1-0 Victory

On an even keel—a 50-50 basis with the whole of the world—the Phils come home today to meet the Giants with plenty of confidence engendered by their sterling 1 to 0 victory over the Boston Braves yesterday in the city of world championship, and some culture.

It was not so much that the Phils took the Braves, as it was that Lee Meadows crashed in with a remarkable fine pitching performance. It was his third straight coup d'etat. He has tossed each of the three opposing eastern clubs for a loss so far and apparently intends to turn in a record year of flinging for the Cravatheers. He had the better of the spitballing Dana Fillingim yesterday, and two of the hits were droopy, halfhearted things, just too short for the leftfielder. The only real hit of the game was made by Fillingim, the pitcher of the Boston tribe, who is doing the best slugging for that weakhitting outfit just now.

Had Control

Meadows's secret of efficiency yesterday was his control and his easy flinging. He did walk two men and he hit two, but for all that he could get the ball just where he wanted to in the pinches. Only once did the Braves get a man so far as second base with only one out. Lee might have worked twenty innings at the pace he followed. It was saving of energy, the sort of masterful slab craft which gave Christy Mathewson his great reputation in other years.

Behind Lee the Phils just outdid themselves. They performed feats of cleverness and dexterity on defense, and seemed to act as if there was no such thing possible as defeat with the spectacled Meadows on the rubber. When a team flops into that mental habit, it has a big asset and a sweet start along the victory trail.

Looked Great

Cravath's Quakers looked none too good in the opening game in Boston, but yesterday it was a different story. They played with that happiness and joy-of-living which is as much the stamp of the good ball club as it is the accompaniment of the great actor, the captain of finance or any other top-notcher in any line.

Cecil A. Causey is the lad Cravath said he would work today here, at least that is the statement he made just before he left Boston at 10 o'clock last night for home, with a crew of players who are as much different in demeanor and poise and confidence from the Phils of just a year ago, that old Bill Penn might be excused to believe them imposters.

Notes of the Game

Cravath found some old friends at Boston in the Wilmington brothers, of Harvard crew, football, wrestling, swimming and boxing fame, as great a crowd of brothers as the Crimson has had in years. They were brought up in the same little southern California town with Gavvy, Paul, Lothrop and Ted all saw the game yesterday from a box right in back of the Phils' dugout and they can have it every subsequent game the Phils play at Boston.

True it is that the one run that the Phils got yesterday was due to an error by Catcher O'Neil, of the Braves; but the Phils had the better of the going and it just stood to reason that there had to be a break some time in the Boston defense before such flinging as Meadows was showing.

Maranville's fielding yesterday kept the Phils from getting at least three more hits than the official six they gathered off Fillingim.

Every time the Phils play in the Hub the Rabbit just goes cookoo in his anxiety to show the home rooter that he is a better short fielder than Davy Bancroft. And the Rabbit has to travel rapidly to outfield or out-sensation Davy.

Meadows used a change of variable speed after yesterday, and had it breaking so well that he got many a called strike. But once the lefthanded batting chesterboy, Jack Rollo, of the Braves, thought the pitch was to be a fast ball, stood pat and the curve cracked his coat on the forehead, the ball bounding, on the fly, clear to the grandstand. But it did not cause a headache.

Stengel threw for the first out on the wave the germany Schmidt order, but was robbed by remarkable Ring-ers Scelling, twice by Maranville and once by Pick.

PULL FOR JACKIE CLARK

Victory Over O'Dowd Within Limit Would Give Allentowner Title

Allentown, Pa. ring fans are hopefully hoping for a ring championship. When Jackie Clark starts from his corner in his ten-round match with Mike O'Dowd at the Camden Sportsmen's Club, on May 11, there will be more than 300 rooters from that city pulling for a victory before the end of the scheduled contest.

While this match is a no-decision affair, the middleweight championship is liable to change hands, in which case, however, Clark would have to be returned a winner within the limit. Clark is a clever two-handed boxer and, because of the uncertainty of the game, his ardent constituents are hopeful of a knockout win for the Allentowner.

Three other matches, each an eight-round bout, will precede the O'Dowd-Clark contest, as follows: Willie Jackson vs. George Young Chaney, Ralph Brady vs. Billy De Foe and Johnny Murray vs. Joe O'Donnell.

BRITISH LACK FUNDS

Shy Cash to Pay Olympic Athletes' Expenses

London, April 30.—Plans for British participation in the Antwerp Olympiad are being held up pending the outcome of the money-raising campaign for financing the entrants. Pressing appeals have been made in recent weeks for £13,000, of which only £4300 have been subscribed up to the present.

"There has been no lessening in the country's traditional enthusiasm for sport, nor can the withholding of funds be interpreted as an indication of any lack of sympathy for world games nor of ill-feeling growing out of previous meets," said Secretary Laffan, of the British Olympic Association to the Associated Press this afternoon.
