"L" OPENING IS PROUD DAY FOR LAST OF WORRELL LINE

Scion of Noted Family Will Be Paid Special Honor by Parade in Frankford

Thomas Worcester Worrell, oldest continuous resident of Frankford, built the completion of the elevated. The Worrell residence is more than 100 years old.

Thomas Worcester Worrell, of 4550 Tacony street, Frankford, was one of the distinguished guests at the ceremonies today which celebrated the opening of the Frankford "L."

One division of the parade formed in front of Mr. Worrell's home and a salute with flags to the old homestead of the still-remembered of the City.

Mr. Worrell's great-grand-grand-grand-grandfather, Richard Worrell, came from England with his wife and son.

And it is likely to remain so for a considerable time in the future, but in this city, unless new areas are made available for housing by the extension of transportation, of water supply, and of sewers, it will not be long before housing development on any large scale will be practically impossible.

Mr. Dodge severely criticized the service given by the Frankford, Holmesburg and Tacony Street Railway, and said it should be abandoned altogether.

Another pressing situation in Tacony, he went on, arises from the water supply there, which is given by a private company. It has not kept pace with the growth of the district, he added.

The present Mr. Worrell is Frankford's oldest continuous resident. He was born in the old Worrell homestead in Frankford on March 23, 1822.

Mr. Worrell has been in Frankford since he was a child. He attended the old Frankford school-house, he took some additional tutoring and became a teacher in the public schools of the city.
