

For the Farmer.

The best Medicine for Stork.

The question is very frequently asked, "What shall I do for my cow?" or "My colt is sick—can you tell me what to give him?" These inquiries are sometimes accompanied by descriptions which would enable a veterinary surgeon, or one acquainted with diseases of animals, to form an opinion as to the nature of the disease. It is often that no account of the symptoms is given, and very frequently the owner is unable to give one.

Many farmers have certain specific remedies which they administer in all cases, without regard to the nature of the difficulty. In some instances they may be useful, in others they are of no benefit, and not infrequently they do much harm. These remedies are very numerous, almost every one having some favorite dose which his father used before him, and which is believed to be a cure for all manner of complaints.

There is another class, who depend entirely on what their neighbors recommend, and who pour everything down the poor beast's throat that anybody advises. We have in mind the case of a very valuable Merino ram, in those halcyon days when wool was $1 a pound in the farmer's garret, and $1-000 was considered a small sum to represent the value of such an animal; the poor creature, with constipation succeeded by an excessively heavy fleece, and superabundant deposit of yolk, broke down under the strain of unnatural and stimulating food and excessive services. The owner, who had refused an offer of $2,500 for him, was in dismay, and knowing nothing about treating stock animals, asked the opinion of every one, and followed the advice of all. Through wort, squills, turpentine, castor oil, decoction of tobacco, pain killer, camphor, rum, laudanum and a dozen other drugs followed each other in rapid succession, until the stomach that needed rest, was filled with a fermenting mass of matter that would have burned a passage through the sides of a skink. Of course the ram died. This is a literal truth, and no fancy sketch, and although it is an extreme case, it is just as rational as much of the treatment received by sick animals.

It is not strange that farmers do not understand doctoring cattle. They have too much to do to study the subject. Veterinary surgeons are so few that it is not possible to procure their assistance in many cases, and the common "cow-doctors," or "farriers," as they style themselves, are usually too ignorant to be accused of quackery. As a general thing, sick animals live or die, as nature helps them or not. The farmer can write to some agricultural editor, and obtain valuable information after his best cow has gone to her rest in the compost heap.

There is one remedy which is suited alike to all diseases, all animals, and to every climate, and never fails. It costs nothing—less than nothing, for the improved condition of the stock in consequence of this magical, all-healing balm being kept on hand, is worth many dollars, and every farmer may have it. It is Prevention. With proper care and suitable feeding, that attention which it pays to give to stock, ninety-nine per cent. of the cases of sickness would not occur. This is strong language, but is true. There is no need of having sickness among domestic animals.

Sickness is the result of violation of the laws of nature. The domestic animals are in the absolute control of their owners. If they are sick it is the fault of the owner. A creature that will not thrive and perform all its natural functions and duties, and maintain good care of, is afflicted with some constitutional weakness or disease, and should be disposed of to make room for one that is sound.—Vermont Farmer.

LAZY FARMERS.—Laziness prevents a man from getting off his horse to put up the first rail that gets knocked off the fence and through this lazy neglect a whole field of corn is seriously damaged. Laziness keeps a man from driving one nail when one would do, and finally costs a carpenter's bill for extensive repairs. Laziness allows a gate to get off the hinges and in the mud, or stand propped by rails—or a stable or barn to leak and damage hundreds of dollars worth of provender. Laziness, in short, is the right and proper name for nine-tenths of the excuses given for bad farming. But by far the most profitable of the many wastes that are due to laziness in that waste is in itself so great and has so many ramifications, that we will have to defer its discussion for another time.—Dixie Farmer.

BAD SEED.—Many thousands of dollars are lost annually in consequence of planting poor seed. Acres of old and worthless carrot, beet, onion, and similar seeds are sown every year, which might be avoided if every one who is growing such crops would take the trouble of testing a few of the seeds previous to sowing. The loss of preparing the ground and sowing is usually far more than the cost of the seeds, and generally when their worthlessness is discovered the season is too far advanced to remedy the evil.

It is a very easy matter to start a few seeds in pots or boxes, and determine what proportion will grow, without running the risk of losing a crop in addition to the cost of preparing the soil and sowing.—Hearth and Home.

GIVING BEES CHLORFORM.—J. H. Thomas, of Canada, writes the Bee Journal: "Chlorform may be safely used in proper quantity for quieting bees. As an agent for introducing queens I have found it very effectual. The quantity used should never exceed one-fourth of an ounce and even that quantity may be found too large if the hive is tight and all the fumes are retained in the hive among the bees. It is not best to give so much as to make the bees fall down out of the combs, because if so many of them would get a doctor's dose. Not dead drunk, but simply drunk, is all they require.

O, YES! O, YES!! A GOOD FARM FOR SALE. Persons desirous of purchasing a farm, are directed to examine that valuable property in Lincoln township, and situate at the mouth of Clearfield creek—two miles East of the Borough of Clearfield, and convenient to schools and churches.

The property contains ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY ACRES, part of which is improved and under a high state of cultivation—the whole being well fenced. Coal, iron ore, and other minerals are found on the same.

The buildings consist of a good TWO-STORY DWELLING HOUSE, 25 by 48 feet—a GOOD BARN, and other convenient outbuildings. And there is growing on the premises a young bearing orchard of choice fruit trees.

This property is very pleasantly situated and being at the confluence of the creek and the river, it is a very desirable and inviting residence for private family. Its position on the creek and river also renders it a good situation for a boarding house during the rafting season.

The west and north sides of this property being bounded by the creek and river, makes it one of the best rafting grounds in this section, and as such yields a handsome revenue yearly.

The owner, Mr. M. A. Frank, having permanently settled in the west, is the reason for disposing of this valuable property. For terms, etc., apply to S. J. BOW, Clearfield, Pa. October 1, 1869.
