ON HIGHEST AUTHORITY

From Lesser's Weekly—

Who is it says that So-and-so is surely on the road to woe? That drink and cards will lay him low? "They."

Who is it says without remorse that Some One contemplates divorce? Who whispers scandal, too, of course? "They."

Who say that Mr.—never mind—the other eye went out and hired with several—well, you know the kind? "They."

Who says that old man What's-His-name, is friendly with a certain dame? Who says it is a perfect shame "They."

Who is it says the Browns and Greens are living far beyond their means? That soon there'll be some dreadful scenes? "They"

Who is it always says that Jones cannot afford the car he owns? Who says his income's mostly loans? "They."

Who says that Crumpy beats his wife and leads her such an awful life? Who revels in domestic strife? "They."

To cut it short, who knows it all? And tell it with an air of drawl? And who, in brief should have a ball? "They."

It will much need to the passage of this section that a number of Red Cedar ties Taylor-Colquitt Tie and Pole Co. have placed a buyer at Westminster, Seneca and Pickens.

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

With the Boll Weevil here many wonder what they will do. Cut your Red, white and post Oak into crossties and sell them to Taylor-Colquitt Tie and Pole Co., either at Seneca, Westminster or Pickens. They now have a tie buyer at each place.
