

HOME JOURNAL.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE. DECHERD, TENN. NORTH. SOUTH.

Sacramental meeting at the C. P. Church next Sunday. Commencement exercises at Mary Sharp College to-day.

We are now having real summer weather, the mercury going above 90° daily.

The Rev. Dr. Howard will preach at Trinity Church on Thursday evening, 15th, at the usual hour.

Fruit Cans! All kinds, cheap, at J. F. Vaughan's.

Miss Mattie Engleman, of Fayetteville, is in attendance at the examination exercises this week, the guest of the beautiful and accomplished Miss Virginia Jackson.

DEED.—At the residence of her brother, (Mr. Thomas Arledge), in this place, last Wednesday night, 7th inst., Miss Ida Arledge, aged about 20 years. We extend our sympathies to her brothers, sisters, and other relatives.

Geo. Handley, col., whom we mentioned last week as being confined about three miles from town with small-pox, died last Saturday night. His remains were not interred until Monday morning.

The annual address delivered by Gov. A. S. Marks at the Winchester Normal last week was a most praiseworthy effort. It was not lengthy, yet lengthy enough, and was couched in the purest of English.

Among the number of Winchester boys who are visiting their friends and relatives in our midst, we are glad to see Mike Plamlee, of Wartrace, Tenn; Mark Houghton, of San Antonio, Tex; and Harlan P. Baird, of Guntersville, Ala.,—all promising young men, and the pride of their parents.

The Jackson Tribune says that ex-Gov. Marks is very clearly the choice for Governor of a majority of the Democratic party of Madison county. We infer the same from the reports of many other counties, and we believe he will lead any other man in the Convention of the 20th inst.

We had the pleasure of hearing Prof. Willoughby Reade last Friday night at the Normal, and Monday night at the Mary Sharp. If we could think of words adequate to the expression of our admiration of him as a reader we would use them. We simply say: He has no superior.

Mr. J. M. Griffin, proprietor of the Winchester Woolen Mills, who had been confined with consumption for several months, died at his residence, near the Mills, last Friday night, the 9th inst. Mr. Griffin was born in Dingle Derry county, Ireland, March 25, 1827. He was an enterprising citizen and an honest man. We sympathize with his bereaved family.

Good plasterers' laths for sale by G. G. Phillips.

Rev. P. A. Lyon, having been called upon by the Statistical Secretary of the Middle Sunday School Convention to furnish a full statistical report of all the Sunday Schools in this county, requests the Superintendent, or any member, of such school in the county to send to him, at Winchester, a full report of his school—number of officers, teachers and scholars, amount of contributions, and any other statistical information. He is anxious to have all reports sent in during this month—June.

Among the numerous visitors and patrons from abroad attending the examination exercises of Mary Sharp College, is Judge D. D. Wilkin, of Mississippi. He is a true type of the Southern gentleman, and we are always glad to meet him. His wife and sons accompany him here, and after the close of the examination, they, together with three daughters—all bright Mary Sharps—will go to Tate's Springs, in which property the Judge is a large stockholder, to spend the summer.

Graham Bro.'s plasterers' laths for sale by G. G. Phillips.

At the semi-annual exercises of the Winchester Normal Literary Society, last Thursday night, the large hall was crowded to overflowing. The subject for debate was "Resolved, That tariff should be levied for revenue only." Affirmative—B. F. Jones and L. P. Crigger; negative—H. J. Phillips and J. R. Stong. Dr. E. C. Marks, Hon. Jno. R. Bessley and Rev. J. T. Currey acted as Judges. The argument on both sides was very creditable. A majority of the Judges—Messrs. Marks and Bessley—rendered a decision in favor of the negative. Before and after the debate the audience was treated to some splendid music, vocal and instrumental.

Our Taxes.

Deputy County Clerk M. C. Forbes has completed the tax-books for the year 1882, and kindly furnishes us a list of the taxes assessed for each district. This includes poll, State, county and school tax. We give the total amount, by districts, from his list, together with the amount assessed for 1880, (which is copied from our file papers) showing the increase and decrease:

Table with columns for District, 1882, 1880, Increase, and Decrease. Includes districts 1st through 18th.

The total amount of taxes just assessed is $16,586.30, divided as follows: Poll tax, $3,678.50; State tax, $3,442.08; County tax, $5,688.62; School tax, $7,455.60. Total tax for 1880, $14,718.61; increase, $1,867.69.

The Nashville Banner, some time since, classed the Winchester Home Journal as a supporter of Wilson for Governor. This is an error. The Home Journal did not support Wilson, and only for political reasons did it support Hon. John V. Wright. It would have supported Wilson in order to defeat Hawkins, and not that it agreed with Wilson as to the State debt question. The Home Journal believes that we owe the debt—that it would be wise in us to settle at 60 and 6. It believes, honestly, that disgrace will follow any attempt to not pay the debt, and that any such attempt will prove futile.

A correspondent of a Nashville paper wants Hon. A. S. Colyar to be the people's candidate for Governor, and says: "In law he never lost a case, and would not lose the Governorship." It does not follow that he would be elected Governor because he never lost a law case, but the Home Journal would gladly support him. For love, sense, common sense, and good sense;—for industry, perseverance, far-sightedness, and general management, Tennessee can boast of no superior to Hon. A. S. Colyar. The only question is: Can he be elected?

Save your fruit this year, and if you want it dried in nice style, so that it will be twice as valuable as it would be dried in the sun, carry it to Dr. S. W. Houghton and have it evaporated.

Winchester Normal.

The examinations at the Normal were well attended, the audiences being large and appreciative. It has seldom been our fortune to visit such exercises and to be so highly entertained. The whole plan of conduct is so perfect that every thing moves like clock-work. Even the large audiences are under the spell of the presiding genius. It is a wonder that so large a number of pupils can be moved from the room into their seats—each occupying his or her allotted place—classes of fifty or sixty pupils falling into regular order without the least commotion or disorder. It was the frequent expression, "How did they all get out? Where have they gone to?" The audience of 300 or 400 would require 15 or 20 minutes to leave the room, but the pupils (200 in number), would go out in two minutes, demonstrating the value of marching, the thing that has been ridiculed so much.

The "Normal" method of school-teaching is somewhat new with us, and like any other new thing, has somewhat of novelty about it; but its simplicity and common sense—the appropriate motto chosen by the school—recommends it so strongly that we look back at our own school-boy days and wonder at the stupidity of the teachers of that period that they did not discover a better plan.

There are to-day more of the elements of substantiality in this school than in any school in the country. It has taken its place in the foremost rank of schools, and is destined to become the rival of the best in this broad land. That it has few equals and no superiors in the South cannot be gainsaid. Our country is feeling the touch of the master's hand upon the youth; boys and girls are growing up around us with that self-reliance born alone of the spirit of genius that holds such sway over them—the faculty of the Normal with J. W. Terrill at its head. These are true-hearted and capable men and women that should be fostered by our people with the most sedulous care, and deserve our most earnest support.

If it could be done, it would be pleasant to mention every student in the school, for almost all deserve an honorable mention; but the improvement in some that we know well is so marked that we feel strongly inclined to write them up were we capable of doing so, and we hope no one will take offense for the mentioning the names of just a few. There is Willie Shook, of Tracy City, but formerly of Franklin county; Carrie Vaughan, Lizzie Embrey, Matt, Garner, Roy Fitzpatrick, Albert Marks, Miss Eula Austell, Miss Ella McElherrer (the only graduate of the year), Wm. S. Dulin, who, if he tries, will make an orator, and Miss Moore. These are the names of but a few of those of our town and county that show a rapid, intellectual growth, and bid fair to become elements of intellectual power in the land. Yes, the Normal has done much to lighten our respect for these children and the honorable regard we feel for the Normal faculty for their earnest efforts to bring light out of darkness and strength out of weakness. May our children always have as good instructors.

THE PIGEON, of Hartford; THE FEINA, of Hartford; THE KNOXVILLE FIRE, of Knoxville, Tenn. Three better Fire Insurance Companies cannot be found. Represented by WM. J. SLATTER. Policies issued at once on all ordinary risks.

The entertainment given by Miss Dunlap at the Winchester Normal last Wednesday night was a very delightful affair, and was highly appreciated by a large audience. The presentation speech, which was made by Hon. John R. Bessley, touched a responsive chord in every heart. Mr. B. said: "Ladies and gentlemen—Miss Mattie Dunlap, of the city of Nashville, whom I have the pleasure to present to you, is a noble and accomplished woman, an honor to her sex, and the pride of all gallant Tennesseans who have witnessed an exhibition of her talent as an actress. Miss Dunlap has given entertainments at Nashville, Pulaski, Columbia and Murfreesboro. She comes to us with the enthusiastic endorsement of the press and the public, and I have no doubt that you will listen to her with pleasure and greet her efforts with applause."

Miss D. presented a charming appearance upon the stage, and won all hearts with her grace, beauty and delivery. She will remain in Winchester until next Friday, the guest of Miss Ida Bessley, when she will go to Fayetteville and give an entertainment there Friday night.

Mary Sharp College.

Another Commencement of this grand old College is upon us. To its exercises have come from all parts of the South a larger number of friends than usual.

The exercises of Mary Sharp College are all that its most sanguine friends could wish, and fully sustains the reputation for thoroughness and deep culture which this institution has so long enjoyed. Without giving particular notice of classes, we have heard several of them specially mentioned with words of high commendation and praise. All the classes have shown that the work done at this College is worthy of its fame, and to a greater degree than ever before even demonstrate that to its students is given culture that is substantial.

The Preparatory Department is in a very flourishing condition, and the prospects of the College in this direction are most flattering. It could not well be otherwise with the rare advantages afforded. Every Professor, except that of Ancient Languages, supplements the able efforts of Prof. Bessley by teaching each one class in the Preparatory grade, and that class being in the line of his own special work, secures to the little one the benefit of all the talent which the entire Faculty possess.

The appointments of the College are admirable, and especially is the Art Department attractive. The same thorough work is done in this branch of the College work that we find elsewhere. Free-hand drawing is taught in all the grades of the College, and the examination of the Preparatory class in this subject contained every one of the great advantages the little folks had already derived.

The examination exercises closed yesterday. The classes this session are unusually large, and seemed anxious to answer the many questions asked by the examiners. The Senior Class, we are told, displayed rare attainments, and has several members who are the peers of any whom the College has ever graduated.

The Commencement sermon was delivered last Sunday at the C. P. Church, by Rev. T. G. Jones, of Nashville. It was a grand discourse, and was eloquently delivered. It is evident to every one that the Mary Sharp deserves the high place she occupies in the affections of the Southern people. There is abundant proof that the character she has won for thoroughness and broad culture will be sustained and made higher as the years pass.

We would be glad to hear from our new Belvidere correspondent ("J") every week. Don't become offended because we failed to publish your last—others were treated the same way.

The Winchester Normal, For Both Sexes.

A LEADER and model in educational work. Other schools follow, the Normal leader. Others copy, the Normal originates. Many features can be found in the schools and colleges around us borrowed from the Normal. The boasted progress of these schools is simply "the great awakening." What has caused this great awakening? What has given this energy and vigor? Let the truth be spoken—the Normal has awakened it. We are glad to note the advance made by our schools, but it is not the "silver-fleece" for them, while following the Normal "star out," to claim equality with her? It is both wise and safe to imitate the institution that has wrought in our midst the changes of the next few years, and which guarantees steady progress in the years to come. Seek to be the Winchester Normal.

THE TEACHERS are young, energetic and vigorous in mind and body, who make teachers and not for hire, and which guarantees steady progress in the years to come. Seek to be the Winchester Normal.

The teachers in the Normal possess individuality in their work in their own way. Methods constantly change, and even take for a limited time, and are not rigidly fixed in study and bring to the work a self-impelling enthusiasm unknown to the old school. The students thus become co-workers with the teachers, and mutual helpers of one another in their investigations. These teachers possess a high skill and their work yields. Their own teachers and assistants, who wash them as you are, are engaged to this work. They cannot copy this feature of the school; hence deny it to their own schools.

The course of study is extensive, flexible and practical. Students can pursue what they need, but must do thoroughly what they attempt. Schools should be for usefulness—for citizenship. The old plan—Framingham, Fennell, and Sewing with five or six studies for show and quick in the course that is not the result of the time. These schools that may have in this plan and live. They may boast their hundreds of students and graduates, but these in the business of life have learned that their Alma Mater lacks modern ideas and does not meet modern needs. Hence these representatives fail to send high patronage, though the institution be being praised by its students. Such are living witnesses that the higher education of the old colleges is wholly disconnected from the work of life, and that the education received in them is a total failure. They now see that the "higher education" which is the result of this kind of training is a waste in the air. They have learned in the "great school of experience" that to give one-half or three-fourths of one's school life to Latin and Greek is a great educational waste and mistake; they have learned that dead languages are no longer the foundation of learning; they have learned to use properly the strong and simple living languages, so rich and so full of the truths of science, business, government and religion, and regrets are constantly heard from their lips that they spent so much of life in the dead past to the neglect of the living knowledge of the present. Many sensible men would not be practical at all, and would be ready to say, "so many and so fatal have been the mistakes of these schools. Often do we hear it said, 'The colleges ruin more than they fit for business life.' With the old schools of study, the old teacher and his self-interest, the old classroom methods and their training processes, the results will be commensurate with the wants of our age—cannot be satisfactory.

The course of study in the Normal is modern, but complete and thorough.

THE GROWTH has been steady and healthy. The following exhibit will show this: The attendance for 1878-'79 422 " " 1879-'80 239 " " 1880-'81 283 " " 1881-'82 343

THE NEXT SESSION will begin TUESDAY, AUGUST 29, 1882. All students who think of entering this should send for catalogue to get terms, &c.
