LOCAL NOTES.

Thermometer—red hot.

Days are beginning to shorten.

Picnic at Dunlap Spring to-day.

Next Monday is County Court day.

Quite a party from Bolivar were at Toone Thursday attending the exercises of Toone Institute.

We are compelled to leave out communications from Toone and New Castle this week, but they will appear in our next issue.

The Northbound train that passes here at 10 a. m., was delayed Tuesday by a freight train runnig off the tract just below Holly Springs.

The rains the early part of this week was pretty general, we understand, and came just in time to do unbounded good to young corn and cotton.

Hospitality is the rule instead of the exception at Toone. Every house in the town was thrown open to the guests of Toone Institute last Thursday.

Mr. Jas. Carter was very much agitated over the disappearance of his horse last Saturday night, but Sunday morning he was found in the neighborhood.

Dudley Jones, who some months ago burned a gin and stole a horse from Mr. Robbins, near Pinson, in Madison county, was convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for eight years.

The editor of the Bulletin will be absent for two weeks on business and what's left of us will try to keep the Bulletin up. Remember, if anything is wrong, he is not at home and we are not responsible.

We understand that the Illinois Central with its usual progressive spirit, will in a few days, put on its regular through trains, elegant palace dining and sleeping cars combined. It will then be on equal footing, so far as accommodation are concerned, with any of the great eastern trunk lines.

Dr. C. Swain, of No. 245, Second street, Memphis, Tenn., will be in Bolivar at the Acton House, on Wednesday, July 9th, and invites all suffering with diseases of the Rectum, such as Piles, Rectal Ulcers, Fistulas, &c., to call to see him on above date as he will remain here only one day. No charge for examination.

Arthur McClellan desires to inform his patrons and the public generally that he has recently moved his Barber Shop to the stand formerly occupied by John Jones, where he will be pleased to have them call for a nice shave or hair-cut. He has made several improvements and you can always find his a neat shop, with clean towels, sharp razors and receive polite attention.

C. J. Rogers & Co., of Grand Junction are putting up some elegant marble work at present. One particular monument is that of Dr. Pulliam, which cannot be surpassed in the west. The cost of the monument is $950 and it could not be duplicated for less money by any house in the country. It is interesting to look at the designs of Messrs. Rogers & Co., and they take pleasure in showing them.

We failed to make proper notice of Prof. Price's school in last week's issue. It was not intended to make a public examination of the pupils until a day or so before the close, and no provisions were made for it, and it is considered as wonderful, the manner in which the little boys and girls stood the most rigid examinations by visitors and teachers. Prof. Price is given up to be one of the most thorough mathematicians in the State, as well as an accomplished educator in all the branches, and his school this term is a credit to himself as well as to the town. There should be a more general interest taken in this school. It is capable and is conferring a more lasting good upon the community than we can ever measure, and it is the duty of the corporation and county to put it upon a more solid and substantial basis. Let Bolivar vote a special tax and make a graded school of it. Other towns of less population have such schools, and those who oppose them on the start always fall in and become warm supporters after they have been in operation a term or two, at any rate, we congratulate Prof. Price on the excellence of his work this term, and each of his students upon their diligence in the performance of their school work.

Closing Exercises Toone Institute.

Monday, 23d inst., the closing exercises of Toone Institute, Prof. C. P. Hudson, Principal, began. The programme was very attractive. Below we give it:

Annual address by Hon. Casey Young, of Memphis; annual exhibition, Thursday, twenty-sixth.

Monday, 23, 8½ a. m.—Examination of classes: English literature, Swinton's word book, advanced grammar, second reader, Bourdon, fourth reader, primary arithmetic, music and elocution.

Tuesday, 8½ a. m.—Latin reader, United States history, first mental arithmetic, general history, third reader, advanced geometry, music and elocution.

Wednesday, 8½ a. m.—Latin grammar, primary grammar, advanced arithmetic, Cæsar, intermediate arithmetic, primary geography, intermediate geography; 8 p. m. anniversary exercises of the Clionian Society.

Thursday, 8½ a. m.—Primary geography, algebra, music, elocution; literary address by Rev. Frederic Howard; 8 p. m. annual exhibition.

The programme was carrie out to the letter except that the Hon. Casey Young was detained in Washington and could not be present. The remarks of Rev. Frederic Howard were appropriate and well received, and marked the speaker a ripe scholar and an eloquent orator.

We regret that we cannot command space to mention each of the students of the school who so eloquently reflected the hours of patient study to which they had devoted themselves and the thorough instructions they had received. Too much could not be said in praise of Prof. Hudson and his accomplished wife as educators and members of society. As the orator of the day so happily said, "they are pioneers in literature" who will leave works which can never be obliterated. The exercises were closed Thursday evening with a delightful concert, including dialogues, recitations, etc., etc., by the school. This was one of the most enjoyable features of the week, and a very large congregation attended. The elocution was pronounced far above the average on such occasions, the music was excellent. The whole affair was a gratifying success. Prof. Hudson, has abundant cause to congratulate himself, and Toone and neighborhood, and the whole county, has cause to be proud of the school. The attendance from a distance during the week was very large, and the people of Toone, as is characteristic of them, extended the visitors unbounded hospitality. Thursday, the last day, though the crowd was large, there were many of the leading citizens who failed to get as much company for dinner as they had provided for, so general was the determination that all should be taken care of.

We cannot in a notice like this do such an institution as the Toone Institute and its efficient principal justice and will only attempt to say that the good the school has already accomplished is inestimable, and that we hope Prof. Hudson may yet attain higher renown as an educator and the patronage of the school may widen until not even the state may be its boundary.

Editors Bulletin:

On the 24th instant a masonic celebration was given in honor of St. John, the Divine. It was attended by a large mass of people from different parts of the country, who feasted with avidity upon the superfluity of delicacies spread out before them.

There is a small boy (colored) living contiguous to this district, whose prodigious noddle, became entangled with a large size water bucket, and unconsciously slipped into it. The bail and hoops had to be filed in two, before it could be extricated. He is about 14 years old and his head is not less than twenty-six or eight inches in circumference. No doubt had he lived during the medieval ages it would have been taken for a battering ram.

Miss Cigah Mays, has returned to her home somewhere in the State of Alabama.

The yield of the plum crop of this portion of the country is greater than was ever known before. Up to last Friday, two weeks ago, 825 crates were shipped to Chicago; 825 crates or cases being equivalent to 621 bushels. There are very spacious reasons for believing the apple yield will also be great, judging from the number of green apple pies at the picnic.

Misses Tennie and Nannie Clift have just returned from a visit to Saulsbury.

It is amusing to see how tender-footed certain blood remedy proprietors have become of late. They make much ado about "apes and imitators," when none are in sight.

The proprietors of B. B. B. would say most emphatically that their remedy stands upon its own merit. Should we attempt to imitate, it would not be those who do not understand the modus operandi of that which they offer. Our own long experience in the profession precludes such an idea. The field for blood remedies is large and broad affording ample room all present aspirants. We do not desire to close the door against others, neither shall it be closed against us. B. B. B. is the quickest remedy, does not contain mineral or vegetable poison, does not imitate and is in the field as an honorable competitor for public favor. jun26

Miss Mary Adams, who has been visiting in Bolivar, for several days returned to her home in Corinth, last Monday.

Misses Annie McNeal, and Annie Turner, two beautiful and popular young ladies of our neighboring town, Lagrange, are in Bolivar, visiting the family of Mr. Geo. G. Adams.

Misses Fannie Coppedge, Fannie Overton and Laura Hudson, from Toone were visiting in the neighborhood of Whiteville last week accompanied by young gentlemen from Bolivar.

Mr. G. P. Smith, returned last Friday from a trip of several days traveling in the West. He reports pleasant weather, fine country, etc., and was gladly welcomed home by numerous friends.

Mr. Jas. Coleman, who formerly lived in Bolivar, but now of Jackson, is in town visiting his sister and old friends. Jim is a genial clever young gentlemen and we are glad to have him among us.

Toone.

The past week has been an eventful one for Toone. It had perhaps more visitors than on any former occasion since it has been a town. Mississippi, Arkansas, Memphis, Brownsville, Jackson, Bolivar and the surrounding villages, and country were represented by friends, who came here to witness the closing exercises of Prof. Hudson's school.

During the process of the examination several teachers were present among whom were Profs Price, of Bolivar, Futrall, of Cloverport, McDaniel, of Henderson, and others. To test the fairness and thoroughness of the examination, the patrons and teachers present were invited to examine the different classes; several of which were examined almost entirely by the visiting teachers, and the ease and readiness with which they answered the questions, solved the problems, or demonstrated the theorems, illustrated the efficiency of the work, and the advancement made during the session just closed.

The elocution was remarkably good and highly appreciated by the audience. "Horatius at the Bridge," recited in concert on Thursday morning, was enthusiastically applauded.

The entertainment of the Clionian Society on Wednesday evening was well attended. The participants of the exercises acquitted themselves in such a manner as to reflect honor and credit upon their instructors. The Clionian Society is now recognized as a valuable addition to the Institute. A very large audience assembled early on Thursday morning.

Hon. Casey Young was absent because his presence in Washington City was imperatively demanded to attend to some local measure, in which his constituents are deeply interested.

The annual literary address was delivered by Rev. Frederic Howard, D. D., Jackson, Tenn. Dr. Howard is a native of our mother country, England, he came to America about ten years ago and is now wedded to the South. He is a true Southern gentleman in every sense of the word. He delivered one of the most able addresses it has been our fortune to hear. His theme was the "Art, Science and Literature of the Future South." To cover this broad subject it required nearly three hours, but the appreciative audience listened with profound attention and interest to the entire address. His powerful eloquence as an orator was ardently admired by all.

The annual exhibition came off Thursday at 8½ p. m. A well filled house greeted the young performers, and no pains had been spared either by teachers or pupils to make the last hours of the school term the most pleasant. With declamations, dialogues, songs, tableaux, &c., the evening was spent in a very delightful manner. Each acted his part admirably, and the ease and grace with which they performed, elicited praise from all and showed they had been thoroughly instructed.

Thus closed successfully the third scholastic year of the Toone Institute. Under the management of such able and thorough teachers as Prof. Hudson and his wife it cannot fail to be one of the best schools in the land.

ANOTHER OPEN LETTER.

Two Cases of Blood Poison and one of Catarrh Cured.

TOWALIGA, GA., May 24, 1884.

Blood Balm Co.: We have been selling your B. B. B. less than 12 months and we find it gives better satisfaction than any medicine we ever sold. It is decidedly the best Blood medicine we ever knew, and you can't say too much in its favor.

Its cures are so quick and decided, and costing so little, that our customers are delighted with it. We know of two cases of Blood Poison and one of Catarrh cured by its use.

One of the above cases had taken about four dozen bottles of a noted blood medicine without any benefit, but he was cured with SEVEN BOTTLES of B. B. B. We can't sell any other Blood Purifier now. Hoping you great success, we remain,

SCROFULOUS ULCER.

Ten Years Standing.

ATLANTA, GA., July, 1883.

I have been afflicted with a chronic running scrofulous ulcer of my leg for a number of years which has steadily resisted all treatment until I secured B. B. B., a few bottles of which healed the ulcer and cured me. My brother for ten years had an extensive running ulcer on his leg which could not be cured, a few bottles of B. B. B. acted like magic—healing the ulcer, and imparting strength to his whole system. I live at Morris' mills north of this city.

"Oh, might I kiss those eyes of fire,
Ten thousand scarce would quench desire;
Still would I steep my lips in bliss,
And dwell an age on every kiss."

That young dude needs something for his blood; he is utterly too fresh. B. B. B. is the best thing for him, because one bottle will cure him. But that dude is not all alone in his terrestrial glory—not by a "jug full." Many others are considerably "rattled" just now about that Blood Poison business, B. B. B. will cure for the least money and in the shortest time. The boom is coming. Purify, purity. Sold in Bolivar by B. V. Hudson.

When and How It Originated that a Woman Can't Keep a Secret.

Written for the Bulletin.

Perhaps the idea first dawned upon the pure and guileless brain of Adam when Eve first shared with him the delicious sweetness of the forbidden fruit, rendered even more delightful to her by being forbidden. Yet if any such thought occurred to him, we know it was prompted by gratitude, love and admiration.

Being very amiable, docile and obedient himself, he would have been perfectly happy and contented to have remained in that charming little garden forever. It was very delightful to him, to lounge on beds of roses, to watch the birds and beasts in their sportive innocence and beauty, to be fed, waited on, caressed and petted by beautiful graceful Eve. He would never have exerted himself to hunt up forbidden fruit. No! not he. But Eve being the "last and most perfect work of God," was of course more highly endowed, physically morally, and intellectually, and that smooth running state of things, after a time, became monotonous. Wearried of the insipid sweets of Eden, and doubtless considerably bored by the continual society of her goody, goody spouse, she wandered off alone, to explore the untrodden pathway of the forbidden ground, attracted by the unrivaled beauty and exquisite fragrance of the tempting fruit, it was but natural that she should desire to taste, and having tasted and "found it good," surpassing all other productions of that wonderful garden, her first impulse was to share her delightful discovery with Adam and he would have been an ingrate indeed had he failed to appreciate her generous kindness. We have no evidence to prove that he even reproached or reminded her of the (so called) violation. But we have it in biblical lore proven as a fact that "he did eat" and enjoyed it too, but finally when summonsed up to account for his disobedience, just hear him throw the weight of the whole offense on the frail white shoulders of gentle, tender Eve. The whole nature of man is so revealed in that craven cringing plea: "The woman whom thou didst give me," bah! how like a man. Any sensitive, true-hearted woman knows just what Eve thought of him them, but in the August presence of her accusers she was silent, another noble characteristic of woman—to bear unjust, unmerited reproach, uncomplainingly, exemplified here in the very first trial of woman, and faithfully tipified by every one of her fair daughters. We have no historical record to prove that she ever regretted the violation of the law; nor do we think it probable nor even possible that she could have done so. For to all reasoning thinking minds, it is a plain palpable fact, that she only obeyed the will and desire of her Creator. And that was only the beginning of her grand mission, to man and to the world. If we doubt the wisdom, and foreknowledge of God we are worse than the infidel, if we admit and believe in it then we most certainly believe that he created her for that very purpose, having planed and executed that most perfect piece of workmanship, is it possible for any rational being to suppose that He did not know just how to use it for His pleasure, honor and glory? Who could for one instant believe that this "wonderful beautiful world," with its teeming millions of immortal souls, was only an afterthought of the Omnipotent, or that their existence is due to accident, or to the willful disobedience of an erring woman? An enlightened and civilized people could never give credence to such absurd doctrine. Old woman's tales in the Chimney Corner and Nursery Fables, were oracles of wisdom comparatively. In violating the law, she only fulfilled the mission, for which she was created, and predestined—chosen by God as his most useful, active, intelligent agent. She was fitted and planed on a higher, more exalted scale of being; tender, sensative and true, her pride her energy, her ambition and aspirations are of a loftier purer type, God knowing and understanding her as no mortal man could ere do, displayed his his divine wisdom in the prohibition, had it been a commandment instead, Eve would never have ventured near the tempting fruit Our grand old world has been an empty void, a vast expanse of space. Adam would have lived on, his ignorant indolent life, not "even knowing good from evil," unblest by the companionship and affection of children, failing in every sense to appreciate the wisdom and goodness of God. To the influence and superior knowledge of woman man is indebted for all the pleasures of this beautiful world, and for his spiritual fitness for the enjoyment of heaven. And tho' he may boast of his power and his exalted position here, he is only woman's slave, her willing God given subject, to kneel and offer up homage to her, every hour of his life. Tho' the chain with which she binds him does not chafe nor oppress, tho' he feels not the weight of its silken fetters, they are firm as adamant, and strong as fate. Tho' he holds the reins of government, a woman's white hand guides them. Tho' his voice alone is heard in halls of state, a woman's smile, a woman's kiss is the "power behind the throne." His victories, his honors and renown, all that he has ever accomplished, that is grand, glorious and sublime, all that he has, his very existence he owes to woman.

'Tis a sad reality too, that in many instances, men fail to appreciate the divine influence, or to profit by her pure upright example, and regardless of her most earnest efforts to the contrary, his native meanness will crop out, and when she finds him so far beneath her moral and mental scale, tis better to leave him to his fate, than to stoop to his level, for while it is her happiness and pleasure to

"Raise a mortal to the skies," its equally his delight to

"Drag an angel down."

And 'tis such fallen wretches as these, and sometimes a crabbed old bachelor, who has aimed too high, and got the mitten for his pains, or at other times a crass grained husband, who never deserved a good wife, who are the authors of these unjust accusations, which woman has ever been subject to; unmerited, unjust, and from beginning to end, a base tissue of unmitigated false hood. There is no such a word as cost in a woman's vocabulary,

But when she says she will, she will, you may depend on it,
And when she says she won't, she won't, and there's the end on it.
