If you are enthusiastic over the automobile you are automad; if an enthusiast, an automaniac; if you own or desire to own a motor carriage, a victim of automania. These are the latest additions to the English language.

France, so says Archbishop Ireland, and so say all careful observers of current events, suffers from an element of instability because she retains a large portion of the monarchical system. The time is not distant, however, when she will make radical changes in this respect, slough off the antique methods which she has inherited, and adopt the republican principles which have made us what we are. When she does that, the rumors of imperial intrigues with the purpose of re-establishing a throne will cease.

Lady Georgina Vernon, daughter of the tenth Earl of Haddington, is well known as an authority on dairying as an occupation for women. She spent some time in Normandy studying into French methods in cheese-making. She strongly urges the practicability of dairying for women as a self-supporting industry, but says that cheese would be the most profitable branch of the work. Most of the bad butter, she claims, comes from small dairies with only two or three cows. It is to be hoped, remarks Harper's Bazar, that many women of this country may be induced to follow some of her suggestions, going into the manufacture of some of the more delicate cheeses.

During the Paris Exposition there will be over a hundred congresses of all sorts, kinds, tongues and conditions, comprehending everything from a bacillus to the universe itself. There will be a great hall, two-thirds on land and one-third on water, with vast galleries and such arrangements that thousands can be meeting at once. For instance, the 7000 members of the Congress of Medicine will be divided into 23 sections, and not only will each be taken care of, but the members will all be entertained and will have special opportunities for visiting the Paris schools and hospitals. This illustrates the whole proposition. It shows that Paris is doing everything to get the world to visit her, and that she will exhibit all her varied interests to the millions that attend her end-of-the-century show. The attendance promises to be enormous.

Unexpected success has followed the opening in Philadelphia of a children's branch of the public library. It is the first library of the kind in the city, and the children have availed themselves eagerly of the opportunities it offers. Although it has been in existence only three months, there are about 2,400 names registered on its books as regular readers. "With clean hands and a clean face" is the only rule of the place, besides that of orderly silence. During the whole time of its existence no child has had to be sent out of the library for misconduct. Even on rainy days, when the place is crowded, order and silence always prevail. The little folk come in and are allowed to go straight to the shelves in search of reading matter. Each child is allowed to take out two books at a time, one of them fiction and the other instructive. On the average, the child readers are about 14 years old, and the boys outnumber the girls nearly four to one. History is the favorite literature for the boys, while the girls revel in fiction. It is said by the library people, to the credit of the children and the shame of their elders, that the proportion of instructive books taken out by the little ones is far in advance of those perused by older card holders.

LAND PARADE GREAT CLIMAX

Admiral Dewey Reviews a Great Host of Patriots at New York.

FIFTY THOUSAND IN LINE Event Unparalleled and Wonder of Modern Times.

Schley Divides Honors With the Hero of Manila.

The land parade in New York Saturday in honor of Dewey capped the climax. The city, state and nation united in one vast demonstration worthy of the hero of Manila. Fifty thousand men were in line and the air was torn with the shouts of millions. The naval parade of Friday was a magnificent and superb spectacle, but the wonder of modern times was the great land parade which occurred Saturday. Thousands of brave men of our land and sea forces, militia of fifteen states and the veterans of the civil and Spanish-American wars swelled the procession and gave it the dignity in size that it boasted in sentiment. Walls of people, miles long, stretched down the line of march on either side, a dense, impregnable mass. Fifth avenue from Fifty-ninth street to the Washington arch at Fourth street, where the parade disbanded, was solidly packed with spectators, who overflowed into the buildings and windows and on to the roof lines, sat in embrasures and crowded scaffolding. Along Broadway where it crossed the avenue the skyscrapers were as crowded at the top as at the bottom, and for blocks down the intersecting streets tenants hung from the windows and fire escapes, and multitudes of them were on the roofs lying flat on their stomachs peering down. For hours they waited patiently and good naturedly to see Dewey, and when they saw him they waited on unconsciously for three hours and a half while the whole procession passed. The first ceremony of the day was the presentation from the city hall of a gold loving cup to the admiral by Mayor Van Wyck in behalf of the city of New York.

Parade Begins.

Seventeen aerial bombs from the top of the Waldorf-Astoria heralded the approach to the reviewing stand in Madison Square. Jackies of the Olympia marching rank on rank at the head of the column, their appearance being the signal for great cheering. The commander was on foot, walking in front of his men as army officers do. A squad of sailors dragging a rapid-fire six-pounder brought up the rear of the Olympia battalion. Then came the hero, the admiral, and the officers of the fleet. All were in open barouches and at their head was the man of the hour. Mayor Van Wyck sat beside Admiral Dewey in the carriage. The front seat was banked with beautiful floral pieces. The admiral was recognized on the instant and the cheers and hurrahs that had greeted the Olympia's men seemed tame compared with the shout they raised. The gallant captains of the ships engaged in the destruction of Montejos's fleet, except poor Gridley, who died a month after the battle, followed and also got a rousing welcome. The three admirals, Howison, Sampson and Philip, as they rode by with their brilliantly accoutred staffs, were easily recognized and got flattering applause, as did many of the popular officers of the north Atlantic squadron. The governors of the several states, who rode in carriages, though many of them were popular and would have received big demonstrations at any other time, passed almost unnoticed. The crowds would have none of them. They yearned only for the brass buttons and gold lace of military and naval heroes and would have nothing else. Both Major General Miles and Major General Merritt got ovations. But it was Rear Admiral Schley who divided the honors with the central figure of the day.

ADMIRAL DEWEY INTERVIEWED.

Speaks of the Philippine Question—Says Otis Tries to Do Too Much. In an interview with Admiral Dewey in the New York Evening Post, among other things he says in the following: "I thought that this thing in the Philippines would be over long before this, as it should have been. Of course there was the rainy season, and I suppose little was done. One great trouble has been that General Otis has tried to do too much. I told him so. He wants to be general, governor, judge and everything else—to have hold of all the irons. No man can do this. This is the great trouble."

He received a demonstration second only to that of Dewey. People all along the line fairly arose at sight of him, shouting their already lacerated throats to the breaking point. "Hurrah for the hero of Santiago." "There is the man that smashed Cervera's fleet." "Hip, hip, hurrah for Schley," and kindred cries came from all parts of the line.

In upper Fifth avenue some enthusiastic lady threw him a handful of roses. They landed fairly in the carriage. The admiral leaned forward, picked them up and lifted them to his lips. Instantly all the ladies in the balcony seemed possessed with the desire to have their flowers similarly honored and he was fairly bombarded. Many of the flowers fell into the street, only to be caught up by eager spectators and carried to the carriage. Before he got to Madison square, Admiral Schley was up to his arms in flowers.

The marines and sailors of the north Atlantic squadron, eight battalions of them, attracted much attention.

Governor Roosevelt, riding a spirited black horse at the head of the national guard of New York and surrounded by brilliantly uniformed officers, received a hearty ovation from one end of the line to the other.

The national guard of all the states made a brilliant showing and were evidently proud of their appearance and of the reception they received. Before Madison Square was reached Admiral Dewey and the receiving party, in carriages, passed the front of the procession and alighted at the reviewing stand opposite Twenty-sixth street, and took their places in the boxes reserved for them. There for the first time the admiral saw the great arch of victory erected in his honor. Captain Coghlan and Captain Wildes joined him a moment later, the crowds cheering like mad. Here the admiral reviewed the entire parade.

Admiral Schley was very warmly received at the reviewing stand. He smiled constantly and bowed to right and left. He and General Miles both carried bouquets of flowers presented by some enthusiasts on the line of march.

The greatest applause given to any of the military organizations was accorded to the crack Tenth Pennsylvania regiment, which got back from the Philippines a short time ago. This regiment marched in the regulation khaki uniform which they wore during their service before Manila. The colors, torn to tatters, set the crowd wild with enthusiasm.

Next to the reception to the Tenth Pennsylvania was that to the Georgia troops, who marched by with state and national colors flying to the tune of "Dixie." They were loudly cheered.

About 600 veterans of the civil war were in the parade and about 200 of these were Grand Army men.

There were several thousands of veterans of the Spanish war. Most of them wore their service clothes and were repeatedly cheered.

The unarmed section passed quickly in review and the parade was over. It had taken just three hours and twenty-eight minutes to pass. The first body of the admiral's sailors passed him at 2:12 p. m. The last man in line went by at 5:40 p. m.

Hardly had the ambulances, which brought up the rear, pulled under the arch when squadron "A" galloped into place for the admiral, ready to escort him to his hotel.

Saturday night a smoker given at the Waldorf-Astoria to the sailors of the Olympia concluded New York's wonderful reception of Admiral Dewey and his men.

Admiral Dewey was very tired at the end of the parade. He was driven at once to the residence of Manager Boldt, of the Waldorf-Astoria, escorted by squadron "A," and accompanied by Mayor Van Wyck. He dined with his lieutenants, Brumby and Caldwell. Admiral Dewey did not attend the "smoker." He was feeling too fatigued to leave his apartments, and retired at 10:15 o'clock.

HOWISON ON TIME.

Ranking Commander of Sampson's Squadron Reaches New York. The United States cruiser Chicago, flagship of Rear Admiral Howison, reached New York Wednesday from a long cruise, during which she touched the coast of Africa and visited Port Said. The cruiser proceeded immediately to the government anchorage off Tompkinsville, S. I., and took a position astern of the old ship Lancaster. A few moments later the blue flag on Rear Admiral Sampson's ship, the New York, was lowered and a red flag substituted, indicating that Sampson was no longer in command of the fleet.

BOERS ADVANCE TO BOUNDARY

Kruger's Troops Prepare to Attack the British Lines.

CLASH IS EXPECTED AT ONCE

Commander Joubert Gathers a Strong Army On the Frontiers.

A London special says: It is now evident that Buffalo river, the north-eastern boundary of Natal, is to be the opening scene of the war. In view of its strategic value, Joshua Joubert has taken personal command of the Boer forces there, establishing a strong line of pickets along the river and has ordered the natives to drive in all the stock.

All the available burghers in the neighborhood have been requisitioned, with the result that some two thousand have mobilized at Wakkerstrom, the chief point of mobilization there.

From all points in the Transvaal, Natal and Cape Colony came reports of renewed military activity on the frontiers, and while the movement of individual command as yet do not show concerted plans, it is evident that the narrow, wedge-like strip of Natal, whose apex is crowned with the ominous name of Majuba Hill, will be the center of the coming storm.

Late Saturday afternoon the Boers established a camp at Scheepers Nek, near Vryheid, and they will mobilize a great force on the Buffalo river, which the authorities at Dundee expect will move across the border to that point, probably at once.

It is believed that a conflict at this point will certainly occur within a few days.

At the same time the Boers are collecting a force of 2,000 men under the notorious commandant, Cronje, in the Mulmani gold fields, near Mafeking, where Colonel Baden-Powell is stationed.

Dispatches from Tuli, Rhodesia, announce that another force of burghers is massed at Peitersburg, fifty miles south, and that outlying parties are posted at all the drifts along the Limpopo river.

The Boers openly threaten to raid Vryburg, in British Bechuanaland, as soon as hostilities open, and The Kimberley Advertiser complains of the apathy of the Cape ministry in not taking steps to prevent this.

AGUINALDO TURNED DOWN.

For Third Time Otis Refuses to Treat With Rebel Leader.

A Manila special says: Aguinaldo's third attempt to shift his difficulties into the field of diplomacy is a repetition of the other one or two, with an impossible endeavor to obtain some sort of recognition of his so-called government.

The Filipino envoys had an hour's conference with General Otis Sunday morning. They brought from Aguinaldo a message that he desired peace, and wished to send a civilian government commission to discuss the question.

General Otis replied that it was impossible for him to recognize Aguinaldo's government in any way.

A STORY OF HORROR.

Fifteen Passengers On An Emigrant Ship Perished In Wreck.

A Montreal special says: Two hundred and fifty scantily clad, baggage-bereft men, women and children were on board of an intercolonial special which steamed into Bonaventure Friday night. They comprised the greater number of those who sailed from Liverpool on September 14th on board the steamship Scotsman bound for Montreal, which was wrecked on the shores of the Straits of Belle Isle, on the morning of the 21st. It was not only a tale of shipwreck that they had to tell, but one of death, of suffering and pillage. Fifteen, at least, of the Scotsman's passengers perished.

WELCOME AWAITS BRUMBY.

Georgians Preparing Great Reception For Dewey's Flag Lieutenant. Interest in the reception which will be given to Flag Lieutenant Tom Brumby, of the Olympia, by Georgia, has been increased by the arrival of the hero in New York, and preparations are going on to make the event one of the greatest in the history of Atlanta, where it will occur. When Lieutenant Brumby visits his native state he will be received with enthusiasm second only to that displayed in the metropolis at the arrival of his chief, Admiral Dewey. All Georgia will join in the effort to give him a rousing reception.

"A Gentle Wind of Western Birth"

Tells no rosiester story to humanity than the announcement that the health-giver and health-bringer, Hood's Sarsaparilla, tells of the birth of an era of good health. It is the one reliable specific for the cure of all blood, stomach and liver troubles.

Johannesburg a Modern City.

Johannesburg is a busy, bustling city—the only real city in South Africa from the standpoint of an American. The buildings would be a credit to any city. The streets are wide, but the motive power of the street railways consist of horses and mules, and as the Boers believe that the substitution of other power would stop the sale of storage and horses, the government will not grant a concession. Of course an electric road would open up new territory. Electrical lines should also be built in Kimberley, East London and Durban. The horse cars still run in these cities and the length of the present roads is great.

Trying to Evade Military Service.

In Europe, all kinds of schemes are adopted to outwit the surgeons who examine conscripts as to their availability for military service, and the Roentgen rays have unmasked such frauds. Some time ago a soldier in a military hospital claimed to have been bitten by a horse. A photograph of the finger was obtained and five needles were discovered in it. The next day another photograph was taken, and it was found that the soldier had removed one of the needles. The soldier had injured himself in order to obtain relief from irksome military service.
