The Bible Revised.

The new revision of the Bible recently completed brings it up to date without changing its meaning. There are thousands of people, however, who will always prefer the old original copy without any modifications. There are also thousands of people, who having once used Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will never use any other medicine, because they know its value in cases of sick-headache, nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia or liver and kidney troubles. Be sure to try it.

Using the Old Strawberry Bed.

An excellent location for a garden next year is an old strawberry patch plowed under. Strawberry beds are usually well manured, and the leaves shade the soil in summer; hence there is more or less increase in humus. The bed should be plowed under very early in the spring and the plot well covered with fine stable manure, which should be worked into the soil.

Obtaining a Permanent Sod.

On a field which it is desired to get into a permanent sod, we would not sow oats at all. As the result of observation we are satisfied that it is a mistake to seed a grain crop with grass seeds; and we are satisfied that this is especially so in the South, where the object is to get a good stand of grass. There may be some excuse for it when the grass crop is the prime consideration. Grain seeds shaded by a grain crop, especially if the crop is heavy, are so much shaded and so weakened in their growth by the stronger root growth of the grain crop, that at best, they make but a poor showing when the grain is cut off. In the South the harvesting of the grain crop is done at a time when the power of the sun is greatest, and the result too often is that the grass, deprived of shade and in a weak condition, is burnt up. Seeded alone, the grass seeds make a vigorous growth from the start, and are inured to the power of the sun, and able to withstand its scorching rays without suffering. We have seen a crop of grass so raised that made an excellent crop of hay the first year, and went into the winter able to withstand the frost without damage.—The Epitologist.

Wild Grass.

What is enclosed grass? It must have come in with grass seed last year, and this year has come up since haying, and is now dry and blowing over everything. There are many acres of it. Answer: This is Panicum capillare, commonly called witch grass. It has also received the name of "tumble weed" in some places, in allusion to the method of its dissemination, the stems breaking from the root and panicles tumbling and rolling about in the wind, scattering their seeds wherever they go. It is a late grass, and a common one in cultivated fields and in gardens. It is also very variable in size and in its degree of hairiness and general appearance.—The Country Gentleman.

Save Your Own Seeds.

Why not save your seeds? It is wiser, better, cheaper, and adds materially to the pleasure of gardening. You desire the best. To secure that, select the best of that which suits you the best. There is a great diversity of taste; some prefer one form or color, another quite a different one. This is an individual matter, and in no way affects the principle. We all have our preferences as to species. We all want the best defined of a given type. To secure this result, selection is necessary, and selection means choice. It means the most vigorous plant that produces the flower or vegetable best suited to your taste. Save the seeds from such for future use. Great care is required to make the selection valuable. After a choice of plants is made, the first flowers should not be allowed to seed, as they are never so perfect as those that come later. If the second flowers are all that can be desired, if they are improvements over those of previous years, carefully remove all the undeveloped buds on the plant, so as to give the blooms the full strength of the plant for the ripening of their seed. This is the way all new varieties are produced, and the way that others may be. If a flower shows the slightest change of color or marking, it is a sure indication of a new variety. From this plant save the most marked, even though the flowers in other respects may not be desirable. Save the flower for seed that shows the greatest change, and do not trust another to bloom until that seed is ripened. Follow this up for a few years and a variety may be produced of more money value than the cost of the whole garden during those years.

"DEAR MRS. The Distinctive Value

of Syrup of Figs is due to its pleasant form and perfect freedom from every objectionable quality or substance and to the fact that it acts gently and truly as a laxative, without in any way disturbing the natural functions. The requisite knowledge of what a laxative should be and of the best means for its production enable the California Fig Syrup Co. to supply the general demand for a laxative, simple and wholesome in its nature and truly beneficial in its effects; a laxative which acts pleasantly and leaves the internal organs in a naturally healthy condition and which does not weaken them.

To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value and Syrup of Figs possesses this great advantage over all other remedies, that it does not weaken the organs on which it acts and therefore it promotes a healthful condition of the bowels and assists one in forming regular habits. Among its many excellent qualities may be mentioned its perfect safety, in all cases requiring a laxative, even for the babe, or its mother, the maiden, or the wife, the invalid, or the robust man.

Syrup of Figs is well known to be a combination of the laxative principles of plants, which act most beneficially, with pleasant aromatic liquids and the juice of figs, agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system, when its gentle cleansing is desired. The quality of Syrup of Figs is due not only to the excellence of the combination, but also to the original method of manufacture which ensures perfect purity and uniformity of product and it is therefore all important, in buying, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.
