QUERY.—Where is the beligerent lawyer, who headed a crowd the day the Federal gun boats arrived at Memphis, and urged them to fire upon the man who should attempt to hoist the National flag over the Post Office? Wonder if he is still in the city?

THE MISSISSIPPI'S FAVORITE.—The swift and beautiful steamboat Von Phul, now running between here and St. Louis, arrived at our levee last afternoon, and leaves here for St. Louis this evening at 5 o'clock.

J. K. DAVISSON, Editor, writes us from Cairo—too late for the present issue. He says he will make St. Louis in his route before his return.

AN ATTROCIOUS MURDER RUMORED.—There is a rumor in the city that an atrocious murder was committed on Third street, on Wednesday night, but after much search we have come to the conclusion that it was committed by the man in the iron mask, against whom a warrant, specific in name and residence, should be at once issued.

RESTAURANT.—Mr. Wm. Cooper, 37 Madison, between Main and Second, still spreads his tempting viands at all hours, before his well pleased patrons.

CIGARS.—Those wishing good cigars can suit themselves by calling on friend W. R. Hume, at the Mayflower, on Main street, between Poplar and Washington streets.

AUNT SARAH—You call me tief?

AUNT DINAH—You's as bad as Yankees.

AUNT SARAH—You'z another.

Finale—Fight.

RECORDER'S COURT.—Not one case was tried before the Recorder yesterday.

Does this speak well or ill for the morals of the city? No ructions, no drunkenness, no assaults with or without intent to kill, nothing to shape an item from. What will become of us all under the old government. Lots of cases under the secession administration. Northern men to be fined, Southern men to be imprisoned, and now lo and behold the office of Recorder hath become a sinecure.

PROFANITY.—Dr. Grundy preached, a Sabbath or two since, on the subject of profane swearing, but some of the boys of the city, if they heard him, are profiting little by his discourse. Boys, why not give up the habit of swearing? No lady loves to hear it, and every gentleman dislikes it. You will grow just as fast, sleep just as soundly, thrive just as much, live as much respected, and die just as happy, if you never utter an oath.

CONFISCATION OF A CYTHEREAN TEMPLE. A soldier stopped a carriage on Main street last evening, stepped into it, and drove to a certain temple of Aphrodite where he informed the anti-vestals that he was authorized by the military authorities to arrest them all and confiscate the fixtures of the fane. He never gave his authority, and from his reeling gait and hiccoughing speech, our reporter believes his warrant was purely Bachanalian. He left, without injuring any one or taking any thing. He had taken enough already. He said he was going for a guard, and we judge he needed one.

SOLDIER ARRESTED.—A fast soldier was arrested yesterday and brought before the Provost Marshal, for mounting a carriage, and taking sundry extra liberties. He was in a state of intoxication.

L. Buttles, instead of L. L. Buttler, as we printed at the end of the Letter-List, has entire charge of the Post Office, and all persons having business with the Office will call on him.

Mr. C. S. S. Tood, the gentlemanly and business man whose pleasant familiar face we meet every morning dealing out Stamps for National currency, is Chief Clerk. When the cars from Columbus and Nashville make their regular trips again, citizens and soldiers will have plenty of letters once more, and all hands have enough to do.

Board of Mayor and Aldermen.

Board called at seven, met at eight o'clock. S. TIGHE in the chair.

Dr. OGDEN from the Seventh ward was called and sworn.

Mr. TIGHE informed Council all that was last night done was informal and would "have to be done over again to-night."

Moved the Board proceed to election of Permanent Chairman. Passed.

S. TIGHE, from 1st Ward, nominated.

Dr. JOHNSON was nominated, but declined.

A ballot was held and resulted in four votes for Mr. Tighe and five for Dr. Johnson. Dr. Johnson was then held duly elected, and took the presiding seat. He said he was gratified but not qualified; would try to do his best, and trusted to have the co-operation of the Board in all that might be necessary. He supposed the imposition of a tax should be attended to.

Mr. Tighe thought not, and proposed the filling of vacancies—nominating S. T. Morgan for that in the Second Ward. No opposition.

S. T. Morgan being elected by ballot, came forth from an inner room and took the oath.

W. Sides, whom Mr. Henghold looked at at the previous meeting, was again nominated by Dr. Brooks for the Fourth ward, as also Dr. Merrill for the same ward. Mr. Sides obtained one vote. Dr. A. P. Merrill ten. The latter pronounced elected.

Vacancies in Fifth ward then considered. Postponement voted down.

Sixth ward vacancy in consideration next. W. Rozell and J. McInerow nominated. On ballot Mr. Rozell was elected by a majority of eight votes, Mr. McInerow obtaining only two.

Dr. Merrill coming in took the oath and then took his seat.

Mr. Henghold suggested that Mr. Rozell take his seat, which, after taking the oath of office, he immediately did.

Mr. Tighe moved the taking of the Mayor's message. [Motion passed.]

MESSAGE OF THE MAYOR

MAYOR'S OFFICE, July 1st, 1862.

Gentlemen of the Board of Aldermen:

In accordance with a previous custom I submit to you my annual message in relation to our municipal government and affairs, trusting that it will receive at your hands that consideration which I hope you will be ever ready to extend to matters which concern the city of Memphis, its prosperity and the happiness of its people.

The subject of city finances being a matter of paramount consideration, and to be made to a greater or less extent, the basis of your legislation and future action, ought to be thoroughly understood by you before you proceed to the adoption of any measure which is to involve the expenditure of money or credit.

The receipts of the corporation for the past year have exceeded the appropriations over a quarter of a million of dollars, the amount having been applied to the liquidation of our floating debts and other city liabilities, and for a detailed statement of which I refer you to the report of our very efficient comptroller addressed to the retired Board of Aldermen, to all of whom I must tender my sincere acknowledgements for valuable services rendered in reducing the city debt, and in the restoration of her credit.

There remains now outstanding only about two hundred thousand dollars of bills payable and city indebtedness, which has heretofore been styled: "Floating Debt."

The interest on Coupons time bonds now due and unpaid will approximate six thousand dollars.

You will see upon examinntion, or upon application to the Comtroller that the present indebtedness of your City, as compared with that which met your predecessors, when they entered upon their official duties, is comparitively, small, and that wise and prudent legislation upon your part may place this city upon a financial footing which few, if any city in the country can boast.

Your resources for the present year, out of which you can hope, in part, to discharge your liabilities, carry on the City Government, and make such improvements as may be necessary and needful, will approximate as follows:

From Taxes on Real and Personal Property,.....	$472,000
From Privileges.....	40,000
From Wharfage.....	10,000
From Recorder's Court.....	15,000

In addition to these amounts, I will mention $25,000 due from Navy Yard lesees, which will make an approximate aggregate of $562,000.

Owing to the distracted state of the country, it will be imprudent in you to hope that your receipts from these sources mentioned will be as heavy as in times of peace, and your legislation must of a necessity be made with prudence, and exercised with more than ordinary caution; waiting always until the means are in your hands and at your command.

WATER WORKS.

The subject of the erection of water works has been before your predecessors in office for several years past, and authority has been obtained from the Legislature by the city to issue bonds for that purpose. That it is desirable and, in fact, almost essential to the health and preservation of the city that such an improvement should be made, cannot, in my opinion, be questioned. The only question which could possibly arise with the Board of Mayor and Aldermen is whether the measure could be effected without too much of a sacrifice of the means and credit of the city of Memphis.

All the antecedents which I have examined establish beyond cavil that the dividends arising from such works have been greater than the stockholders have anticipated, and from the conclusion at which I have arrived, from a careful study of the question, and the examination of statistics in relation thereto, I am forced, from their importance and the benefit they confer upon almost every citizen, to recommend the construction of water works upon a liberal scale by the city of Memphis, believing, as I do, that the dividends arising therefrom will not only pay the coupon interest upon the bonds as they fall due, but create a sinking fund for the retrievement of the bonds themselves. I make this recommendation with the belief that it will in no way increase the debt of the city or embarrass her finances.

The list of City Police will be presented for your confirmation, and as the law and ordinances now stand, it will be necessary for all new appointments to be confirmed by the Board before they are valid. Much inconvenience has arisen during the past year in consequence of some officer or officers of the city not being vested with sufficient power to dismiss individual policemen for offenses, and to appoint others to fill vacancies, without an application to the Board of Aldermen. I would recommend that the Mayor, or Mayor and Police Committee be vested with more power and authority in such matters than they now have.

I have no special recommendation to make with regard to improvements in the city.

You must be governed by the exigencies of the cases and the state and prospects of your finances.

A place for the confinement of city prisoners should be regarded by you as a matter of the highest importance. The city jail or calaboose was by some authority entirely demolished during the latter part of the past corporate year, and at present there is no place in the city where persons found guilty or accused of crime can be securely and safely confined.

I will recommend, as a matter of the highest importance, the immediate erection of a city prison, and, in addition thereto, I would advise the investigation of the authority or authorities by which the old jail was torn down, and the prosecution of the parties.

In conclusion, gentleman, allow me to say, that I will always be pleased to co-operate with you in everything which is for the interest of Memphis and the happiness and prosperity of her people.

Trusting that your legislation may be harmonious and beneficial to all, and that you may close your administration with credit to yourselves and with the approval of your constituents, I remain,

Your's respectfully,
JOHM PARK, Mayor.

EDITOR APPEAL: The members of company E, 47th regiment Indiana volunteers, take much pleasure in returning their thanks to Mrs. Foley, Hernando street, for the magnificent cake presented them to-day. We all unite in pronouncing it excellent, nay, superb. It appears that the above named lady is as successful in making Union cakes as Union flags. May long life and brilliant success crown her efforts and the efforts of all the other Union ladies who remember the poor soldier kindly, when far away from home, wife, children and friends. 'Tis said that

"When the black-lettered list to the Gods was presented,
A list of what fate for each mortal intends,
At the long line of woes a kind goddess relented,
And slipped in three blessings—wife, children and friends."

Mrs. Foley is of the class denominated friends—a class that springs up wherever we go, and like the ministrations of loved ones, are equally welcome and useful. The verse of Holy Writ applies to them: "Inasmuch as ye have done it to the least of these, my brethren, ye did it unto me. "Sergt. H. W. ZENTZ,

Ben Wood Compared to Burke.

From the London Globe.]

We do not think it right to pass unnoticed the pacific sentiments of a member of the Congress of the United States, Mr. Benjamin Wood, who is described as a very popular representative of the city of New York. We published yesterday some extracts from a speech prepared but not delivered by that gentleman, which he solicited and obtained leave from Congress to have printed and circulated with their other proceedings. The first thing that strikes English readers in this occurrence is that a public man who was not afraid to ask, and a public body which is not averse to grant, the privilege above mentioned, need not—the former have been afraid to deliver, or the latter averse to listen to, the speech—a speech which, if it seemed both good to the author and his should have been audience should be read, marked and inwardly digested by the general constituency, might equally have seemed good to be delivered by the representative man, and listened to by the representative House.

There is an ancient story of an eminent client of Cicero, reading in exile the oration "Pro Milone," which was written expressly for his defense, and exclaiming that if his advocate had delivered that oration he should not be where he was. If Congress should be converted to peace along with their constituents, by reading Mr. Wood's oration, they will have some right to complain that a fair start was not given them of the general public; and that they had not the chance of correcting the error of their ways first. It does not, at the first glance, seem complimentary to the temper of Congress, or creditable to the courage of a popular member of that body, that apprehensions should be virtually confessed in this manner, lest the former should not be able to keep his legs, and the latter their temper; and that an appeal should be thus made through the press to the dispersed from the collective wisdom of the country. * * *

Returning to Mr. Wood's speech, what has struck us forcibly in its pervading sentiment, is the close similarity, or rather identity of tone with Mr. Burke's on "Conciliation with America." There must be very many instructed and reflecting persons in the Northern States, to whom that tone must be infinitely more acceptable than the crusading abolitionist, or the major-general style, which they have been more visited with. And it may not be uninteresting to show, by a few citations from Burke's great American speech, which has always been highly appreciated in the country whose cause it pleaded, how naturally the recurrence of violent situations and violent courses calls forth the repetition of calmer counsels from calmer minds.

THE WEATHER FOR WRINKLERS.—"If flowers are wore as ornaments for the dress, those in the hair should, of course, be of the same kind; for elderly ladies they can be intermixed with laces or feathers." Very well, If elderly ladies must wear flowers in their hair, and would choose appropriate flowers, they should decorate it with elder-flowers.—The lace with which these flowers are intermixed should be antique, and the only feathers to match are those of a goose.

"THAT's my business!" as the butcher said to the dog that was killing his sheep.

The steamboat Shingess sank at 4 o'clock A. M., yesterday, a few miles south of Randolph, through coming in contact with a snag. No lives lost. She was laden principally with sick and wounded soldiers, but owing to her nearness to the shore all were saved.

The upper Mississippi is rising slowly. The Ohio is falling at Pittsburg, with 4½ feet by the pier mark.

The Tennessee is falling—only 5 feet scant to Eastport, and 20 inches on Colbert shoals.

The lower Ohio, Mississippi and Illinois are in fair navigable order.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Telegraphic Correspondence Cincinnati Commercial.]

WASHINGTON, July 7.—I suppose that Gen. Pope is about to take the field.

Senators Wade and Wilson, who have been quite ill, came in to their seats to-day.

About one thousand more wounded and sick soldiers, principally the latter, have arrived here. The unanimity with which they declare their wish to pick the flint and try it again, is extraordinary. All battered, and covered with grim-looking wounds, and with war-worn expressions of features, they yet talk with the utmost cheerfulness of what they have passed through, and hope for another chance.

Among the reinforcements which have reached James River, as announced last week, were the 4th, 8th 62d and 67th Ohio regiments.

The official confirmation of the report that Captain Wilkes is in command of the James river flotilla causes great satisfaction. His well proved energy, daring, and readiness to take the responsibility, will stand the Government in good stead.

The admission of Western Virginia is postponed for this session, by one vote, in the Senate to-day.

In the House, the bill establishing armories at Columbus, Indianapolis and Rock Island passed, and will become a law.

Mr. Morris, of Ohio, got off a Democratic speech; he supported the war, but was a little too full of brotherly love for these times.

Mr. Richardson, of Illinois, made a sarcastic defense of the Democratic address put forth by what is commonly known as the Vallandigham party.

Mr. Richardson avowed himself the author; he claimed all our best generals now in the field as Democrats. What he didn't prove was, that they sustain his Democratic address.

It is said the rebels refuse to receive flags of truce from McClellan relating to the wounded and prisoners.

Six members of Congress are just leaving to raise regiments in their districts, and it is thought many others will follow their examples.

It again becomes doubtful whether Congress will adjourn. Prominent Western Senators think it unwise for the Senate to leave amidst uncertainty as to the army being recruited, and the delicate position of foreign relations. The House is much more anxious to adjourn.

Some Democrats think that the President should prorogue Congress, which he can constitutionally do, in case of disagreement.

It has been a hot and exciting day in the Senate.

Mr. Chandler's resolution, demanding a categorical statement of past and present history and condition of McClellan's army, although not considered, led to a criminous debate. There came near being a pitched battle between the respective adherents and opponents of Sec. Stanton and Gen. McClellan.

Mr. Chandler charged point blank that the record was made up, and the country had rendered judgment. It was either the President or Gen. McClellan who was guilty.

The Secretery of war was only a clerk, for whose acts the President was responsible. McClellan had, by delays and blunders, lost half of the noblest army in the world, and placed the other half hors du combat.

Messrs. Cowan and Carlile defended McClellan warmly, and inveighed against the radicals and abolitionists in Congress.

This waked up Lane, of Kansas, who made some pretty savage remarks on the negro question, while defending McClellan, now being pronounced a criminal for military mistakes.

In the course of the debate, Mr. Cowan declared the principle that if an actual, undoubted majority of a State resolved on secession, the Federal Government was bound to abandon attempts to hold it by force. This virtually gives up the ground of the war, and returning to the base and imbecile doctrine of Buchanan's last message, sounded strange from the lips of a so-called Republican Senator.

Mr. Cowan has devoted much time this session to deprecating all severe prosecution of the war, as calculated to exasperate the rebels. Perhaps he will find some other people exasperated before he gets through.

Among many fresh rumors to-day we have one to the effect that Capt. Wilkes is ordered to take command of the James river squadron; that Com. Stewart is also ordered into active service; that Gen. McClellan is again to be placed in command-in-chief of the whole army; that either Pope, Mitchell, or Burnside, is to take command of the army of the Potomac, and that immediate, vigorous measures are in progress to take Richmond by a coup de guerre.

The National Intelligencer has an elaborate military criticism, questioning the wisdom of recent military combinations, and regretting the disturbance of McClellan's plans for the capture of Richmond. SIGMA.

Shields' Division.

This celebrated division of the army of the Rappahannock passed through Alexandria during Saturday night, Sunday and Monday of last week, en route for Richmond, going by water. The city literally swarmed with soldiers during these two days, and being the first chance for a year the "boys" have had for a spree, and being "flush," they enjoyed a hearty one—officers no less than men. Since Gen. Shields has tendered his resignation, the command devolves upon Gen. Ferry. He is in high favor throughout his command, and has secured an excellent staff of young, energetic and experienced officers. We learned the names of some of them: Capts. Brayton Ives, E. V. Preston, Dr. (Maj.) Lewis, of Connecticut; Capt. Greene Durbin, of Indiana; Capt. Jerome Foster, of Chicago; Capt. Converse, of Ohio. They left Alexandria with the General at 4 o'clock on the morning of the 30th of June. There were many Ohio boys among them, including the 4th Ohio, under Col. Mason. The 5th, principally from Cincinnati, had lost so heavily in the battles they have lately gone through, that they could not go.

LEFT my stabe, and probably the city, on Sunday morning June 29, a SORREL MARE, seven or eight years old, about fourteen hands high, pony-built, round rump, heavy neck, in very good order, left hind foot white, with collar marks three inches long on both shoulders; black saddle with a blue bridle, broken bit with long branches and steel curb chain, webb reins. I hired her out at 8 o'clock A. M., to a young man about twenty-two years old, five feet nine inches tall, sparly built smooth face, yellowish complexion, black hair and wearing grey cassimere pants and black coat. Any one who will return the Mare or give such information that I can find her, will be liberally rewarded.
