JUDGE FELIX W. MOORE

Appointment by Governor Patterson to Court of Civil Appeals.

The announcement Monday that F. W. Moore, of this city, had been appointed to fill the vacancy on the bench of the Court of Civil Appeals, caused by the resignation of Judge Lamb, of Paris, was received with unanimous approval. The intelligence was especially agreeable to Governor Patterson's warmest admirers, who have the utmost confidence in Judge Moore's ability to add renown to the State courts.

Judge Moore's legal career is identical with the largest measure of important litigation transpiring in this section of the State for many years. He began the practice of law in Union City in 1874. For many years he was the law partner of Major J. G. Smith, the Nestor of the county bar, whose office was at Troy. In 1885 he formed a partnership with John E. Wells, which continued for eighteen years, considered generally one of the strongest law firms in the State. After Mr. Wells' death Mr. Moore was associated in practice by W. W. Cochran, afterwards with W. E. Hudgins, both young practitioners. On different occasions Mr. Moore has acted as special judge and judge pro tem. of the Circuit Court. His legal retainers comprised some important business concerns in many of the large cities, including the M. & O. Railroad Company, and his practice claimed attention in the State Supreme and Federal Courts and in the Chancery and Circuit Courts of this and other divisions of Tennessee.

In civic affairs Judge Moore has not given a great deal of time, but has served the city in the capacity of Mayor in one of the most acceptable and satisfactory administrations.

In politics he has always been a Democrat, having never scratched the ticket nor failed to support the nominee. There has never been a Democratic State Convention which he did not attend as delegate from the county since his majority, and in 1888 he was elected as a delegate from the Ninth Congressional District to the National Convention nominating President Cleveland for the second time.

Judge Moore is not only a close student, but his judgment is ripe and sound. As advocate his appeal for justice is logical and convincing, as counsel his entrenchments are in law and fact, the interests of his clients encompassed and guarded securely. A salient point is the safety of his position, and upon these bases is formed a notable career. In chancery practice he has long held undisputed lead, and this is the secret of his ultimate conquest of legal procedure.

Judge Moore will give the bench added dignity and respect, and there are hundreds of his friends and associates who heartily and thoroughly congratulate him.

Agnew-Harris.

A very interesting home wedding was the marriage of Mr. Walter W. Agnew and Miss Margaret Harris at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. M. C. Harris, Wednesday morning, Feb. 3, at 10 o'clock, two miles south of Rives.

The decorations were of holly and chrysanthemums, colors green and red. The parlor was furnished with a marriage bell of holly, and the three brothers of the bride and their wives preceded the bride and groom to the altar. Rev. J. H. Thomas, of Newbern, solemnized the marriage service in an impressive manner.

The wedding march was sweetly rendered by Mrs. Knox Harper.

The bride was dressed in a blue traveling suit with hat to match and carried a bouquet of white carnations and ferns.

About forty guests were present at the nuptials, including relatives and immediate friends. From this city Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Harris and Mrs. Enloe Childs attended.

Refreshments of hot chocolate and wafers were served the guests on entering.

The bride is a lady of popular graces and accomplishments and a social favorite. The groom is one of the county's stalwart young men, a resident of the same vicinity near Rives.

Mr. and Mrs. Agnew are enjoying a wedding trip to Waverly and other points.

Quite a number of valuable presents were received.

Naylor Remains at Ranson's.

Mr. Chas. Naylor, for many years with Chas. Dietzel in the furniture and undertaking business and now with J. L. Ranson & Son, asks us to say of the impression created by the announcement that Mr. Jesse Lynn would be with J. L. Ranson & Son that he was no longer with the house is a mistake. Mr. Naylor is still at the same place ready to receive your orders, and there are few who can give them better attention or more capable of handling your business. He wishes his friends and customers to know that he is yet to be found with J. L. Ranson & Son.

Memoriam.

On Jan. 24, 1909, the pearly gates of Heaven stood ajar and the reaper Death appeared in our midst to claim the spirit of DeBow Crenshaw. Therefore, as members of Beulah Sunday school, we take this method of paying tribute to his memory.

Resolved, That although his absence from our midst brings sorrow and regret to us, there is comfort in knowing that he is now at rest, and we humbly bow to Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That we cherish his memory and commend his qualities as a gentleman and his character as a boy worthy of imitation.

Resolved, That we may so discharge our duties and live such Christian lives that when the summons come we may feel, as DeBow did, that "Heaven is not far away."

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be recorded on our secretary's book, copies sent to the Union City papers and a copy to the bereaved family.

Elbert Foland and the Italian Boys.

The announcement that Mr. Foland and the Italian Boys are available for next season, is, in itself, all that is necessary to assure the company of a most prosperous year. The Italian Boys under Mr. Foland's personal supervision have become one of the strongest Lyceum attractions available. Regarding the program, Mr. Foland will offer not only the usual high-class program of instrumental solos, duets and concerted numbers in conjunction with his impersonations and readings, but that he has arranged and will present for the first time the musical and literary fantasy, "A Night in Venice." The name in itself suggests beautiful costumes, delightful vocal and instrumental selections, blended with a story of an American's life in the city of art and music. They will appear at Reynolds Opera House, Union City, Friday night, Feb. 12, 1909, auspices the Review Club.

Last week the U. S. Pure Food and Drug Inspector made a thorough inspection of the Nailling Drug Co., from the heavy chemical room to the prescription department, speaking in complimentary words.

He then went through the patent and proprietary medicine department, and when the inspection had been completed he said to the manager, "I have seen but few stores that conformed to the Pure Food and Drug Act so perfectly as this, the Nailling Drug Co."
