UP-TO-DATE GIFTS FOR BRIDES.

At this season so many demands are made upon one's resources for wedding gifts and others, that it takes careful thought and planning to send something pretty and acceptable, without risking the harrowing duplications that so often spoil a present.

THE WEDDING CHEST.

The modern girl takes as much pride in her well stocked wedding chest as in her personal outfit, and it is becoming increasingly the custom to give even the little school girl matching sets of spoons and other pieces that will add to the furnishing of the bridal chest some day. There is a quaint old timey flavor about this custom that harks back to olden lands, where a girl's dowry is provided from the time of her birth. The whole world of woman-kind is alike in the pride felt in substantial and handsome belongings for the home.

EMBROIDERED LINENS.

Embroidered linens for table and household use are always prized for this outfit, and cross stitch patterns are as much in vogue for towels here as they have always been abroad.

For doilies, centres and carving cloths, Madeira open work is most popular but one sees a good deal of heavier solid designs while the amount of handsome lace used with such pieces is limited only by the length of the purse strings.

"THE DIANA PATTERN."

Among the new designs in silver nothing is daintier than the wreath pattern shown in the illustration. This is called "Diana" after the Greek Goddess of Hunting, and is made up with a soft gray finish, so perfectly imitating the style and appearance of the most expensive sterling ware that it deceives even a jeweler, nor does the mark "Alvin Patent" show that the ware is plate, since the same concern makes sterling pieces as well as fine plate.

THE WRAPPING OF GIFTS.

Half the effect of a gift is lost if it is not properly wrapped and tied. Silverware placed in a satin lined case appears especially creditable to the giver and attractive to the recipient. There are no end of pretty separate pieces to be had in matching pattern, so that any desired amount may be invested. If only intimate friends and relatives would consult together before selecting their gifts, girls would receive matching pieces instead of hodge-podge of patterns, also exasperating duplicates would be avoided.

Where silver is to be stored it should be perfectly clean and dry, and enclosed in bags of cotton flannel, then it needs only a brisk rubbing to be ready for use at short notice.

CHINA AND GLASS.

China and glass offer another field for co-operative selection. The "Open Stock" patterns that dealers carry are the best choice since the pieces can always be matched up if broken, or added to as the need for more arises.

BLUE AND WHITE.

Blue and white designs are standard favorites, and the old "Onion" pattern can scarcely be improved upon. India wear with its quaint pagodas and bridges in the same color is another popular choice. White with a touch of gold is always elegant if the china and gilt are of first quality. Cheap gilt is an abomination and wears off quickly. Crystal and Colonial glass is rather more favored than cut glass this season.

ELEANOR FRANCES.

It's too late to laugh at gemp. That day has gone by and there is no medium more deadly than the common HOUSE FLY. DAHNKE'S CREAM BREAD is wrapped in GERM-PROOF WRAPPERS.

A COLLEGE TOWN—COMEDY

By Pupils of the City High School
Thanksgiving Night.

GENERAL OUTLINE.

Jimmie Cavendish, a typical college good fellow, has been out for a lark and in his rash, rash enthusiasm has broken windows, painted statues, called at the home of Professor Polk and kissed his tyrannical wife. He manages to escape the clutches of the discipline committee by pleading that he was with his Aunt Jane the night before, who had just come to town to endow a chair in the college. He is told to produce the aunt, and thereby hangs a tale.

Mrs. Polk gives a dinner party. Jimmie's aunt is invited. One of Jimmie's chums assumes the role until brought face to face with the real aunt. In the meantime, Major Kilpepper has fallen in love with Jimmie's supposed aunt while Jimmie falls deeply in love with the girl from Dixie.

At the football game the real aunt is mistaken for the supposed aunt and rushes into the game only to be rescued by Jimmie and to bestow forgiveness.

The Major cannot distinguish the two aunts and gets more involved until the joke is finally revealed.

Dedication.

Dedication services at Shady Grove in connection with the Thanksgiving services on Nov. 30, 1911. We thank every contributor and especially the good people of Union City, for their valuable assistance in building this church on the ground that has long been the place for Methodist services.

The ladies will serve dinner and the public is cordially invited.

Dr. W. A. Freeman was to preach the sermon, but since he has been placed on the Dyersburg district and Rev. W. C. Waters has been assigned to the Union City district and should Dr. Freeman's business be such that he cannot fill the place, Rev. Waters, our new presiding elder, will be asked to do so.

Change of Train.

The "Nightrider" running from Meridian to Union City will be changed on Sunday, the 27th inst., to run through from Meridian to Cairo and we understand the schedule will be changed to read leaving Cairo about 6 a. m. and return at 9 p. m. That will give Union City still better railroad accommodations than she now has. The M. & O. is making this change, it is understood, to better take care of the express between the points on the route.
