DENUDED TURKEY "CAME TO"

Chloroformed Bird, Minus Feathers, Very Much Alive When the Anesthetic Had Worn Off.

One of New Jersey's most conservative towns is consumed with mirth, and the objects of said mirth are a young, kind-hearted bride and bridegroom. The bridegroom, it appears, took a chance on a turkey that was being raffled off in his New York office and a few days later was notified that he had won the pompous bird. Highly delighted, he gave his address and ordered the prize sent out to his New Jersey home.

In the course of time the bird arrived at its destination, and arrived, much to the surprise of the bride and bridegroom, in a wire crate very much alive, remarks the New York Sun. As their experience in executing birds was nil and the bride "couldn't bear to have its pretty head chopped off," they decided to chloroform it. Consequently, the next night, when the bridegroom got home from the office, the anesthetic was administered on a lovely lace handkerchief and then the bird was plucked and put into the ice box. About 9 o'clock that night the peace and quiet around the library lamp were disturbed by strange noises in the kitchen.

Hand in hand the newlyweds bravely descended upon the kitchen expecting to find the over-looked-for burglar. But no burglar was to be seen. Locating the noise in the direction of the ice box the brave young bridegroom swung open the doors and out stepped a very naked turkey. After a few rounds of the kitchen with considerable flapping of wings he began picking up the crumbs on the floor. The bride and bridegroom looked at each other in horror and fled from the kitchen. An hour or so later the services of a neighbor were called upon and this time the turkey was anesthetized with an ax.

SEEKS BEST WOMAN WORKER

Labor Newspaper of Rio de Janeiro Succeeds in Getting the "Beauty Contest" One Better.

The "beauty contest" is gone one better by the Intransigente, a labor paper of Rio de Janeiro, which has started a contest to ascertain the best "manual or intellectual laboreress of Brazil."

Simultaneous with the opening of a beauty contest by another journal of Rio, the Intransigente announced it would give a valuable prize to a woman or girl securing the largest number of votes for being the most skilled woman in any line of work.

The lists published by the Intransigente of the contestants and their standing include the names of stenographers, actresses, seamstresses, women in all branches of government work, laundry workers, telephone operators, shop girls and numerous others.

Contrary to expectations actresses do not head the list of contestants, the top place being occupied by Senhorinha Baley, a seamstress, who has a total of more than 1,000 votes to her credit, says the New York Sun.

Regiment of Nurses Ready.

In the event of another great outbreak of disease such as the influenza epidemic, the city of Chicago has a nurse militia ready to be called out on a few hours' notice. This consists of 10,000 trained women who have been prepared for emergency work by a school of instruction, and this organization has been the means of cutting the death rate, improving the sanitary conditions of 12,000 homes and has operated a hospital without cost to the city.

Club Sandwiches of Spanish Green Olives

Just the thing for an afternoon tea, or a picnic party. Olive club sandwiches are easy to prepare, pleasing to the eye, tasty, and very nutritious. The ingredients are usually on hand and the sandwiches may be made up in a few minutes.

Toast two slices of bread and remove crusts. Butter lightly and cool, then spread with heavy mayonnaise. On one slice of bread place hearts of lettuce leaves, then spread with stuffed green olives cut in rings. On the other portion of bread, arrange slices of broiled bacon. Garnish with water cream.
