Capt. Pin of Galveston Examining the Facilities for Shipping Cotton in England!

And Also Expresses His Views as to the Importance of the Problem!

The Press Association at the Island City Preparing for Their Work!

NETS FOR THE GALVESTON BAY!

Galveston, Feb. 9.—Capt. Richard Pin of the English navy, arrived in this city yesterday, for the purpose of examining the shipping facilities of Galveston harbor, and to ascertain the practicability of shipping large quantities of cotton to England at a reasonable cost. At an early hour this morning he was accompanied by a strong northern pilot, being advised the distinguished pilot officer advised him to visit the harbor, and to examine the facilities for shipping cotton to England. The captain entered the harbor, and the pilot expressed great satisfaction with the trip, which seemed to him to be a very profitable one. He expressed his opinion that the harbor was well adapted for the purpose, and that the facilities for shipping cotton to England were of a high order. He also expressed his views as to the importance of the problem, and as to the necessity of improving the harbor facilities for the purpose of shipping cotton to England.

Rosaldals for Rheumatism.

Meers, H. Peck & Son, of Streetsboro, O., write us, June 5, 1882: "Why do you not advertise Rosaldals for Rheumatism? Rosaldals is a splendid blood medicine, and it reaches the very root cause of disease by being conveyed through the blood. Druggists, leading physicians, and citizens of the highest standing unite in commendation of Rosaldals. The best smoking tobacco is 'Litt's Joke'."
