Accepted the Situation.
An interesting contribution to history has just been made by Major Wingate, who has written a narrative of the revolt in the Sudan. He says the Mahdi never claimed originally to be anything more than the forerunner of the Mahdi, who, all the faithful expected, would come some day. He was an eloquent man, and during one of his addresses to his followers, weary as they were of Egyptian rule, they shouted, "You are the Mahdi." The idea seems to have occurred to him to make himself a greater personage than he had thus far claimed to be. "I am the Mahdi," he replied, and from that time he was accepted as the true Mahdi, and began the open revolt which led to his installment at Khartoum as an absolute ruler.

Whole Families at the Same Calling.
Here are a few notable instances of how railroading runs in families. On the Erie and Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania railroad are five brothers named McDowell, all conductors. There are also five brothers named Fitzmaurice, all engineers. There are also five Petereses, father and four sons; also five Donlins, father and four sons. The Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railway has among its employees Mr. Falor and eight sons.

Alaska seems to have turned out anything but a bad investment. The country cost the United States $7,300,000, and last year the exports of goods amounted in value to $8,941,515.

What Your Great Grandmother Did.
She hatched the flax and carded the wool, and wove the linen, and spun the tow, and made the clothes for her husband and her children. She made butter and cheese, she dipped tallow candles, to light the house at night, and she cooked all the food for her household by an open fire place and a brick oven. Yes; and when she was forty years of age, she was already an old lady whose best days were over. Her shoulders were bent and her joints enlarged by hard work, and she wore spectacles and a cap.

Her great granddaughter, with all the modern conveniences for comfort, refinement and luxury, may be as charming and attractive at forty-five as at twenty. Especially is this true if she preserves her health by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which wards off all female ailments and irregularities, cures them if they already exist, keeps the life current healthful and vigorous, and enables the woman of middle age to retain the freshness of girlhood upon brow and cheek, the light of youth in her eyes, and its elasticity in her step.

Go to your drug store, pay a dollar, get a bottle and try it—try a second, a third if necessary. Before the third one's been taken you'll know that there's a remedy to help you. Then you'll keep on and a cure'll come.

But if you shouldn't feel the help, should be disappointed in the results—you'll find a guarantee printed on the bottle-wrapper that'll get your money back for you. Can you ask more?
