MR. CLEVELAND DON'T.

A sample of the Letters with Which the New York World is Besieged.

The following letters are clipped from the World to show the character of the opposition to the snap convention ordered by Senator Hill.

To The World:

"Every true Democrat in the United States ought to be thankful to The World for its timely warning to David B. Hill. —'Governor, Don't.'"

It has undoubtedly, more than anything that has occurred, brought to light the true state of mind of the people that Senator Hill is not their choice for president this time. All the newspapers claim that they are "the voice of the people," although their opinions differ considerably, but your "warning" is one of the best pieces of newspaper work that has been written in a long while, and with such striking effect that it has certainly elicited the "true voice of the people."

Every good Democrat is grateful to Mr. Hill for the services he has rendered his party in many a critical moment and in the exalted position he now occupies he can, with his ability, do more for the welfare of Democratic principles than if he were in the presidential chair, which I have no doubt he will ultimately occupy.

At present the woods are full of Cleveland men. Sound another bugle, as you have done, and you will see legions popping their heads over the fence, shouting, "Here we are!"

As you have warned Senator Hill, "Governor, don't," so would I like through your columns to warn Mr. Cleveland in regard to the letter, as The World asserts, he contemplates writing, declining the nomination for the Presidency. —'Mr. Cleveland, don't.' A GOOD DEMOCRAT.

"Governor don't" was the heading of an editorial in The World protesting against the early convention.

The candidates are coming out slowly and the coming canvass will surely be a lively one. A News reporter heard on the streets today that Mr. Joe F. Ellison would be in the race for sheriff. Whether this is true or not will develop in a few days no doubt, for it is well understood that several candidates have been out some time and Joe's friends says he will be "in it."

ACTRESSES' HAIR.

By Far Most of the Noted Women on the Stage Wear Their Own Hair.

Wigs are seldom worn by actresses on the stage, and indeed why should they be, when so many young women have beautiful hair? The smooth, dark brown tresses Georgia Cayvan wears in almost every part are her own. Helen Danvray's hair is sleek, quite black, in fact, and very heavy. Johnstone Bennett's hair is soft, inclined to curl and of a dark brown that is a little reddish by day. A few months ago it was short like a boy's; now she can just catch it into a knob in the back, and she wears it brushed sleekly back in shiny "Jane" fashion, all the curl being suppressed.

That queer little pointed growth in the middle of her forehead belongs to her very own hair, and she is a wise girl to show it. "Oh, yes, of course, she pins on all those circles of close braids at the back, and they hide the little knob I told you of," said the woman who gave these hirsute facts.

"But it is there, else the curls would begin to ripple and Jane's sleek head would be ruined. Mrs. Kendall's hair is rather a reddish blond by day. Kate Claxton has chestnut red hair. She does sometimes wear a wig, but her wigs are made just like her own hair. Marie Burroughs has soft, dark brown hair, and lots of it. She seldom wears a wig. Annie Russell's hair is a soft, pale blond, just a pretty shoulder length. It was her own hair she wore in 'Elaine and 'Esmeralda,' though most people thought it a wig.

"Beatrice Cameron's hair is about the shade of Miss Russell's, soft, and nearly the same length. If she wears a wig it is almost always made the same color as her own hair. Fanny Davenport's hair is not heavy, and by day the harsh yellow dye hurts it, though it is very pretty at night. Odette Tyler has this shade of hair, and Snyder Armstrong. I have heard that Clara Morris has red hair. Usually she wears wigs. Modjeska's hair is dark. She almost always wears a blond wig for the stage. Effie Shannon's hair is fair, and comes below her shoulders. When she does cover its soft prettiness with a wig it is usually one of hair a little more decidedly golden than are her own tresses.

"Julia Marlowe's hair is rich dark brown, and she has plenty of it. She seldom covers it with a wig. Emma Sheridan always shows her own hair. It is heavy and a pretty length. She wears it in so many different ways in the different parts she plays that she is often suspected of donning a wig. Every one knows Bernhard's short crinkle of red hair. May Yohe has plenty of smooth dark brown hair, though she frequently hides it under a short wig of reddish brown. Isabelle Urquhart has quantities of dark brown hair. Lillian Russell is almost always seen in her own golden hair, real golden it is too. Rose Coghlan's hair is brown. Viola Allen's, too, though she often wears a reddish wig. Georgie Drew's hair is dyed yellow. They do say Ada Rehan's hair is dyed yellow, too, and I have heard she wears a wig always.

"Della Fox has short hair, dyed yellow. Marie Jansen's hair is dark brown. In 'The Oolah' she wore a short wig of the same color, and brushed her own front hair up over it around the forehead. This is a frequent trick of actresses wearing wigs, for few wigs look natural around the forehead. Minnie Maddern's hair is a beautiful red, and abundant. Maggie Mitchell's is a crinkly reddish brown, and Lotta's is dyed yellow, they say." —New York Sun.

A Centenarian.

FAIRBURY, Ill., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Mary Wray celebrated her one hundredth birthday anniversary in this city. She is at the head of a family comprising five generations, all of whom were present at the anniversary. She is the oldest lady living in central Illinois, is in excellent health and bids fair to live ten more years, at least.
