

Pears' Soap

People have no idea how crude and cruel soap can be. It takes off dirt. So far, so good; but what else does it do?

It cuts the skin and frets the under-skin; makes redness and roughness and leads to worse. Not soap, but the alkali in it.

Pears' Soap has no free alkali in it. It neither reddens nor roughens the skin. It responds to water instantly; washes and rinses off in a twinkling; is as gentle as strong, and the after-effect is every way good.

All sorts of stores sell it, especially druggists, all sorts of people use it.

"I am for free commerce with all nations."—Thomas Jefferson.

"That right is right, though it is not always popular, and I stand by it whether it retires me to private life or lifts me to higher honors."—Roger Q. Mills.

Blaine is too shrewd to risk a second defeat.

Did Cleveland's ascending star obscure Blaine's moon-eyed boom?

They call Mills the Corsicana Cobden. That is all right. Democracy makes no kick against the name.

A primary election is only necessary where there is a close party fight. No such contingency exists in McLennan county.

Build half a dozen natatoriums in Waco and her future prosperity is assured. Build a dozen and advertise the artesian water liberally and she will need a dozen more in less than five years.

Since the publication of the Reagan-Gerald correspondence considerable interest has been manifested here as to what effect it might have upon the shattered nerves of that member of Chairman Reagan's official family upon whose vitals the Fantods are knocking. The following dispatch was received by a gentleman this morning in answer to an inquiry in that direction:

"AUSTIN, TEX., Feb. 10, 1892.

"Thanking you for kindly interest in my unfortunate brother Uriah Sufferings, can say that while there is no hope of ultimate recovery from the dread disease, he is though 'umble,' still able to draw his salary with that patriotic devotion to the public service that has ever characterized his official career.

[Signed] "A. HEAR."

EVERYBODY SMILE.

The following from the New York Sun makes us laugh—beg pardon, it makes us smile!!—:

"Both the Rev. Joseph Cook and the Hon. Roger Quarles Mills were in town last night. It is seldom that so much missionary zeal is found even in this town, to which all the talents are drawn. Tremont Temple is, of course, a very different place from the house of representatives, but the Boston Monday Lecturer and the Corsicana Cobden both carry on an educational campaign. Both are positive and dogmatic, passionate and vehement, burning and boiling. If Mr. Cook has the more learning, Mr. Mills has the heavier repartee. If Mr. Mills is the handsomer, Mr. Cook can be heard further. The main difference among many minor differences between the two is that the Bostonian is a general reformer who wants to smash things in general, while the Corsicanan concentrates his destructiveness upon the Tariff.

"A phrenologist who examined Mr. Cook's head when that head was worn on youthful shoulders, gave this chart: 'Is fond of applause; has much verbosity and faculty of speech; is given to repetitions, is confident and loud. I advise that he follow the calling of an auctioneer.'

"An inferior strolling phrenologist who examined Mr. Mill's bumps early in 1888 wrote enthusiastically: 'You have the biggest head I have ever seen. Your combativeness, well-developed self-esteem, and tenacity indicate that you would have succeeded as a policeman in a western town if you had not taken up another field of public life.'

"Yet neither combativeness nor self esteem is more developed in Mr. Mill's than in Mr. Cook. So much for phrenology."

Oh, what a fortunate thing that the same phrenologist did not examine the head of the New York Sun! The exposure would have been humiliating to the people whom the Sun supports.

STRICTLY IN IT.

The local newspaper has so many missions to perform that it is often the case that said local paper will single-foot out on one, two or three of the said missions to the neglect of all the rest. For instance, one paper may claim to give all the local news, state news, and the political "ins-and-outs." Another paper will make other claims, perhaps, as broad as these, but covering entirely different ground or performing other missions. In the main, newspapers are sound documents. They are necessarily sound, as they form a web over the country, one is a checkmate and critic of the other, and when one paper gets "out of line" all the balance feel the effects of the said paper being "out-a-lyin'." So the erring brother is called back and taught to know the meaning of "straight up." The papers are great agents for good or evil, and as the brethren know this they feel a common interest in the common press, and a general desire that all papers should be "straight up," and that justice and truth should prevail in news paper circles throughout the country. Most editors are as scrupulous as most of the clergy. They have not forgotten the precept of the father of their country. George W. was always "in line" and not always "out-a-lyin'," and in this the editors of today are simply imitators. They very much revere their illustrious father and some of his teachings.

The newspaper that furnishes daily a full local and foreign news summary, the market reports. Kindly but keep personal mention, wholesome, useful and interesting miscellany, and is at the same time an expounder of the gospel of truth, the exponent of the people and their sentiment, the upholder of right because it is right, and the censor of wrong because it is wrong—we are going to say right here, unblushingly, that such a paper as this is a power in the land!

To endeavor to place a proper estimate of the value of such a sheet to any community would be a task for which but few are fitted.

The newspaper is the balancing weight of the world. Today with church, tomorrow with state—where truth and justice are, there the newspaper will be found. Its shafts of criticism are sent fast and deep into the vitals of wrong, and sooner or later it triumphs, and justice is vindicated.

THE EVENING NEWS is endeavoring to cover all these points, and while it is enabled to walk boldly between justice and mercy—borrowing of neither but disseminating both—yet it is always gratifying to us to be enabled to discern in the mists that arise daily from the battlefields of life that light, that beacon—light of approval and public appreciation which lures one on to more victories and greater achievements, and which nerves one to the full discharge of duty.

In other words, if you appreciate your evening paper, let your card show up in its columns. Also, throw your job printing around this way. Our job department is first class in every particular, and having engaged permanently the finest job workmen in the state we are prepared to execute and turn out all kinds of job work, upon short notice, excelled in style and workmanship by no other well appointed establishment of the kind in Texas.

THE NEWS is strictly "in it," and don't you forget it.

Battle in a Boat House.

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va., Feb. 10.—A desperate and bloody riot occurred in a disreputable boathouse kept by a woman named Morgan near this place. A party of six men were at the house carousing, when Charles Knapp and John Casey began a fight over a young woman named Clark. Casey drew a dirk and stabbed Knapp four times. Knapp's brother came to his rescue and the rest of the gang engaged in the fight, the four women taking part. The battle was fought with knives and revolvers. Casey was frightfully cut about the head by a knife in the hands of the Clark woman. Luther Knapp received serious knife and pistol wounds, and John Burk was shot through the arm. Knapp and Casey will die. Ora Clark, over whom the fight started, escaped unhurt. All the participants are under arrest.
