

Pears' Soap

What is wanted of soap for the skin is to wash it clean and not hurt it. Pure soap does that. This is why we want pure soap; and, when we say pure, we mean without alkali.

Pears' is pure; no alkali in it; no free alkali. There are a thousand virtues of soap; this one is enough. You can trust a soap that has no biting alkali in it.

All sorts of stores sell it, especially druggists; all sorts of people use it.

HOGG AND THE PAPERS.

The feeble effort of the administration members of the house of representatives at Austin to prevent the distribution of anti-Hogg literature will recoil on that gentleman with double force. The Texas dailies are nearly all against Hogg and the proposition to allow each member twenty-five copies to distribute among his constituents was a little more than the administration could stand. The vote was 50 against and 47 for the resolution, and while the vote does not reflect the Hogg and anti-Hogg elements, in the house the fact that the strictly administration members opposed the resolution shows a feeling against the newspaper which if they dared, would doubtless be carried to the extent of an absolute boycott. The spirit of intolerance cropping out in this bit of maneuvering is in keeping with the constant trend of the Hogg administration. When the press began its criticism of the acts of the commission Chairman Reagan retorted with the charge of venality. When some of the papers suggested that Chairman Reagan, when he resigned an office given him by the Texas legislature to accept another office tendered him by the governor subjected himself to unfavorable criticism, the friends of the administration rolled their eyes in holy horror, claiming that Judge Reagan's long service in official station precluded the presumption of indiscretion. The idea seems to obtain among the "ins" that a man can continue in office so long that he becomes infallible--incapable of wrong.

The administration does not only object to the criticism of the press, but its attitude all along reveals a distrust of the people, and a desire to absorb their rights and privileges. Governor Hogg's refusal to allow the people the right to elect their commissioners dates from his first month in office as governor, and proclaims him a conscienceless dictator. His personal efforts to defeat Mr. Mills and force upon the people of Texas a senator of his own selection after the people have spoken in a manner that leaves no doubt whatever as to their choice, confirms the proclamation. His recommendation to the legislature that the attorney general of the state shall pass upon all county and municipal bonds, and that none shall be registered by the comptroller without the stamp of his approval brands him as a man who would take from the people every vestige of the right of self government and place all power in the hands of state officials. Such is the trend of the Hogg regime and when the Democratic newspapers ever mindful of the people's rights, and guarding always the citadel of true Democracy, warn their readers against the encroachments of the dictator, they are charged with venality. All newspapers are not always right in their utterances, but the people of Texas have a way of putting this and that together. The papers will keep them posted and they will do the rest.

"Euthanasia is not an old word as applied to medical science," says Dr. Atkinson, "but it has a meaning which of late has come to be of great importance to every one. Death was formerly considered a great struggle, and vivid, almost shocking, descriptions of the phenomena of dying were given in such exaggerated forms that none cared to think of the eventful moment when death should come to them. Euthanasia, or the pleasure of dying, takes the very opposite view, and proclaims death to be easy and almost painless. As the important time approaches, nature brings her peculiar anesthetic, and the person passes off without suffering half the agony which the sickness causing the death brought to the patient. Even men meeting a violent death in the jaws of wild beasts have a few moments of calm preparation before dying, which brings relief and a certain degree of pleasure. The great trouble in death is the sickness and pain which carries one to the door of death, and it is at such moments that one suffers all of the torment and agony of a dozen deaths. The horror of death, is in this enlightened age, the result of apprehension. It is the thought of dissolution, the contemplation of the change, from a living intelligent being with brawn and brain to that other life with which we are unacquainted. Perhaps the thought of leaving our associations here adds more to the mental suffering of the person approaching death than all other things combined. The serenity of the faithful Christian or the confirmed spiritualist in the last struggling moments would seem to prove this.

Col. Henry Wattersons demand that Cleveland withdraw is positively funny, in the light of the correspondence in yesterday's News between Bragg and Cleveland. Bragg tried in vain to force him to declare himself a candidate. Col. Henry, like several other politicians, has become frightened at Cleveland's popularity and, of course, thought he could save the party by pronouncing him unavailable.

"My friend Brown says that I am playing tail to Mills' kite. Now I never play tail to anybody's kite. But if I ever get ready to go into the tail business I will grasp the tail of the eagle that bathes his plumage in the clouds and gazes unflinchingly into the blazing face of the sun, and not catch hold of the tail of an animal that grovels in the mire."—(GEORGE CLARK AT SHERMAN)

Gov. Hogg is still hard at work trying to persuade the legislators to disregard the instructions of their constituents and vote for Chilton.

Turn Texas loose and let her grow. Let freedom reign anew. Strike off her fetters, give all a show, whether railroad magnate or Jew.

Hill is A. I. At least that is the figure that represents his vote oftener than any other when an assembly of suffragists are polled.

Our Warwick gets better all the time. His Sherman speech was a yell puller.
