Organize.

Organize now.

Organize in every district.

In unity only can there be strength.

The real issue is Texas. Don't forget that.

Hogg is hampered by the friends he has made.

Hogg's Tyler house will not be for rent next year.

Hogg got the flies fanned off him again yesterday.

When they refuse to listen they are as good as beat.

The conduct of the Hogg crowd at Cleburne should condemn their leader forever.

The political campaign waxeth hot. The weather is in the waxing business too.

There is no discount on the loyalty of Texans to Texas and this is one fact that makes the Clark men glad.

Candidates for congress are cropping out in the new districts. Texas will elect fifteen of them this year.

McLennan must not neglect to send a good working delegation to the congressional convention for G. B. Gerald.

In this issue is presented the cases in which Governor Hogg figured while attorney general. It is interesting reading.

The Waco Clark club should bear in mind that the election is not over, and that there is much work to be done yet.

The acrobatic feats of the Fort Worth newspapers beats the Spring Palace or any other show on this earth for amusement.

There should be a strong delegation from Waco tomorrow at Lorena to hear Judge Clark speak and partake of the hospitality of his friends in and around that pretty little city.

There is no denying the fact that the friends of Judge Clark are more enthusiastic than those of Gov. Hogg. This is the best evidence in the world that reason will triumph over bluster in the end.

The proposition that no man should be permitted to participate in the Democratic primaries unless he will agree to support the nominee of the party is just and will not meet with opposition from any Democrat.

Clarks speech at Cleburne while not heard by but few of those present on account of the indecent conduct of the Hogg rabble was one of the ablest he has yet delivered and when it is read by the thousands it will have the desired effect.

The San Antonio Express notes the action of the McLennan County Executive committee requiring all who participate in the Democratic primaries to agree to support the ticket at the general election, and adds that the test should go further and require that all should help nominate a Democrat.

Mr. Henry Watterson, after demanding Cleveland's withdrawal and failing to get the response looked for, has been up in New York hobnobbing with the Hill followers and writes a letter to the Courier Journal which he doubtless thinks will force Cleveland to comply with his demand. Watterson would like to be a Warwick, but doesn't know how.

JUDGE CLARK AND THE FARMERS.

A well to do and intelligent farmer of McLennan county was recently heard to say, substantially, this: "I would like very much to vote for Judge Clark. In fact I have been waiting for an opportunity to do so for a number of years, because I consider him a man of such pre-eminent ability and unquestioned integrity that he would make a splendid governor. At present I am inclined to support Governor Hogg. I do not deny that Governor Hogg has made serious mistakes, but it has been the custom to give a governor a second term and I have to see the people refuse to extend this honor to Governor Hogg. I wish it was otherwise, because I believe really that the country would be better off with Judge Clark as the governor of the state."

The frank admission of this worthy man is but the repetition of what is being said by a number of farmers in the state. They become attracted toward Governor Hogg because of his strong advocacy of the commission, and under the influences of popular excitement, he appeared to be the most prominent apostle of the commission idea, and for this reason it has been a difficult matter not only for the farmers, but for other people of different vocations in life, to believe that their commission champion could make mistakes in the discharge of the other duties of his office, independent of those duties imposed by the commission law.

It is only a question of time when all the farmers except those who will not hear or be convinced by argument, will come to the conclusion that in all respects, in fact, in the majority of respects Governor Hogg was not fitted for the place to which he was elected. Whether years of experience would give him the proper qualifications is problematical, but he has not had that experience, and he has made so many blunders that all personal considerations should be waived, and he should be relegated to private life, where the mistakes he may make will not add to the public woes. It is a fact that when Judge Clark began his campaign it was almost impossible to find one farmer, unless it happened to be some personal friend, who favored his election, and now it can be safely said that over the entire state of Texas the prosperous and intelligent farmers, especially those who have by thrift and economy accumulated a competency, and may now be classed as the wealthy farmers of the state, are all almost without exception in favor of Judge Clark for governor. The reason is apparent. Their interests are larger and their intelligence greater. The former, perhaps influencing their choice at the outset, and the latter giving stability to their choice. The farmer must not mistake the sentiments of a preference expressed by these good men, though they are, probably, more prosperous than the majority of the farmers of the state, for ill advised or dishonest selections, nor can the humbler or poorer farmer charge that these men are prompted by sinister motives. It is their broad, liberal view that has enabled them to reach the conclusion that the country has need of the experience, ability and honesty of Judge Clark. The distress of the last two years may be changed to prosperity and happiness, and having seen Judge Clark in so many ordeals, beginning with his career as a soldier, on the bench and the legal advisor of the state, they cannot but reach the conclusion that with that broad experience, and the patriotism that no honest man can question, he is, perhaps, better fitted for gubernatorial preferment than any other man today in the state. The farmer should not be misled by appeals to his prejudices. George Clark is his friend—perhaps is a better friend than Gov. Hogg for the reason that he is equally sincere, and certainly more intelligent. The farmers of McLennan county should bear in mind that if one of them or if any number of them should come to Judge Clark in an hour of need, whether it was pecuniary assistance or advice, that they would be treated as friends, and their demands receive the kindest consideration; and now while he is the candidate of Waco and McLennan county a proper spirit of county pride should make them, all other things being equal, his friends and well-wishers, and it is confidently expected that before this campaign closes, many of these good farmers who have been temporarily misled by the specious argument and charges of the demagogue and creatures of the administration, whose principle interest in the present executive is in the offices bestowed by his favor, will change their allegiance and support Judge Clark.

DRIVEN TO RESIST THE INSOLENCE OF HOGG'S FOLLOWERS.

At Decatur a week ago Judge L. C. Alexander made a speech for Judge Clark. He went to Decatur by invitation and the appointment was made especially for him. Mr. Swayne of Fort Worth appeared on the scene and asked for a division of time, which was generously granted by Judge Alexander, who reserved the right to open and close the debate. Judge Alexander led off in an excellent speech and he scored several good hits against the administration. Swayne followed in a splendid defense of the administration. When Judge Alexander arose to reply the Hogg men began to leave and as they were largely in the majority the audience was cut down to small proportions by their act of discourtesy. Judge Alexander finished his speech to a respectful audience principally of Clark men. The action of the Hogg men at Cameron alluded to yesterday was another example of their intolerance and their fear of giving their opponents fair play in the fight. The climax was reached at Cleburne yesterday when the Hogg supporters refused to allow Judge Clark to speak for several minutes after Hogg had finished his opening speech until exhausted in their attempt to yell him into silence they were compelled to sit and listen to the most eloquent arraignment of the administration ever yet delivered. When Judge Clark had finished and Hogg arose to reply the Clark men saw their opportunity and then and there taught the bigoted followers of the governor a lesson they will not soon forget. They had witnessed the insult to their champion and they proposed to resent it. They yelled and yelled, and every time Hogg attempted to say anything they would pitch their voices higher, and they kept it up too until Governor Hogg gave it up in despair and took his seat. He saw the rebuke to his friends was merited and did not attempt to speak again. While THE NEWS deprecates such conduct as that indulged by both sides yesterday it must be admitted that the pace was set by the Hogg men and the Clark men acted only in defense of what they considered to be their candidates' rights. About one hour of his time was taken up by these intolerant followers of the governor and by reducing his time from one hour and half to a half hour, they did him an injustice that could only be resented by the same sort of tactics. It was resented and it was well done. The Clark men were justifiable under the circumstances and we glory in their spunk. It can be safely stated that there will be no more joint discussions between Judge Clark and Gov. Hogg.

The new song "Turn Texas Loose" has become so popular and is encored so often, that its distinguished author has been called upon again, and the following verse is now sung for the encore:

Turn Texas Loose from Hogg's hand,
And let our Warwick Clark
Clear up the Legislative mess,
On which Hogg left his mark
Then Allen laws will fade away
And money they drove out,
Will soon return and come to stay,
While joyously we'll shout,
Turn Texas Loose etc.
