TO ADVERTISERS.

THE NEWS will take advertising with the understanding that if it has not a larger local circulation than any daily paper published in Waco, no charge will be made for the advertisement.

Clark's reception at Austin was a grand affair.

There is a big fight ahead for the Clark men, but they are willing and they know how to win.

Gov. Hogg has called a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the election of Mills to the senate, for June 14th in the old Ninth district.

McLennan county sends an unstructured delegation to Lampasas and the Lampasas convention should send an unstructured delegation to Chicago.

Clark's speech at Austin created a sensation and his supporters there are happy over the splendid impression made. Travis county is solid for Clark.

THE NEWS gives space to a series of articles on sanitary science the second of which appears today. As the hot summer months approach the question of sanitary improvement becomes of vast importance and every person should guard well his or her premises. As a gentle reminder of the vigilance necessary to avoid sickness these articles are published.

The Eagle Pass Clark and Elective Commission club comes to the defense of the press. The press, Hogg and anti-Hogg, will agree that Hogg's charges of corruption is baseless, but in view of the fact that Hogg's denunciations of the daily papers are intended to prejudice the people against the only medium through which they can keep posted on the official actions of their servants it is proper that the people collectively extend to the press that which is due every agency for good. The newspapers are the friends of the people and they are a holy terror to the demagogue. The daily papers have held up Hogg's administration to the light of reason and its miserable failure has been exposed without fear or favor. If Texas is saved it will be attributable principally to the brave and manly course of the newspapers.

The congressional election called by Governor Hogg for June 14, will perhaps be the most exciting election held in this district for years. The People's party have nominated a candidate and are preparing to make a determined fight and the majority of the Republicans will assist them. The Democratic party in this district do not seem to be on the alert. The election is less than one month off, still there has been no Democratic convention called. If the Democrats know anything about the situation they know this will be the hardest fight they ever had. The enemy has its candidate in the field and we do not know who we will meet him with. Mr. W. W. Sears of Washington county, is the chairman of the Democracy of this district and there are several of us who want to know why he does not call the Democratic convention. The convention ought to be held next Monday. We will then have only twenty-one days in which to make the canvass.

THE NEWS believes it will take a strong man to beat Barber, and with ten days the start of us and only double that number to canvass the district, it will not be a soft snap for a strong man. Let us be up and doing, there is no joke about this.

A PLEA FOR NEWSPAPER ASSISTANCE

The friends of Gov. Hogg in some quarters are becoming alarmed at the want of enthusiasm at his appointments and have taken the cue of their candidate and are accusing the newspapers of misrepresentation. In view of the fact that Gov. Hogg has in every speech endeavored to discredit the newspaper reports it is a little singular that his friends should enter a plea for more flattering accounts of his receptions, but a friend at Seguin has entered a plea for the patronage of the press, notwithstanding the governor's reiterated assertion that the daily papers are not to be relied on. The San Antonio Express, though attacked in its own bailiwick by the governor as utterly unreliable and unworthy of belief, the enmity of which was as acceptable as its good will has been appealed to for more favorable reports of Gov. Hogg's speeches. In response the Express says editorially: "An Express communicant at Seguin writes a lengthy protest against the report of Governor Hogg's speech at that place. Instead of being met with wild and infrequent applause, he says, the approval of the governor's utterances at times rose to the dignity of enthusiasm. So much the worse for Seguin. If since the inception of the campaign his excellency has said or done anything that ought to arouse enthusiasm in a man who has the well-being of his state at heart The Express has not heard of it. He has attempted to defend an administration that has been prolific of harm to the commonwealth of his birth; he has stood as the chief exponent of policies that have been ruinous in their tendencies; he has done more than any man within the state lines to drive out such foreign capital as we had and to repel such capital as contemplated coming to us; he has come to be regarded by all liberal men as the portly incarnation of the spirit of narrowness and intolerance; his sombrero, like the white plume of Navarre, has been the guiding star of the frenzied hosts which have rushed to the butchery of corporations. In attempting the defense of the conduct of a government that has cost Texas millions upon millions of dollars, Mr. Hogg has undertaken a hopeless task. What is there in it to arouse enthusiasm. Land titles clouded, homes impoverished, honest industrious citizens made miserable, reputable men of business bankrupted, banks devoided of cash, vast and beneficial enterprises strangled in their birth, an enormously high rate of interest, the checking of all railway building, a weakening of the confidence of the world in the stability of the prosperity of the state, are a few of the foissam of destruction that Governor Hogg has left in his wake. Enthusiasm in the front of such a speaker and in the face of such facts would be excusable if it were the enthusiasm of condemnation."

Mr. W. C. O'Bryan, of McGregor was a delegate from a primary convention which passed resolutions indorsing Governor Hogg. When confronted in the county convention with a Clark majority he introduced a resolution protesting against the indorsement of either candidate for governor, upon the ground that such indorsement "would be premature and an unfair and unjust advantage, and an attempt to forestall and stifle the will of the people." Mr. O'Bryan was perfectly willing to "forestall and stifle the will of the people" when he believed it possible to "commit our county to a candidate for governor" if that candidate was Hogg "for the effect it may have over the state." In view of the fact that McGregor indorsed Hogg, it is pertinent to ask if Mr. O'Bryan voiced the will of his constituency when he protested against the indorsement of either candidate for governor.

A SHOOTING SCRAPE AVERTED.

A Pistol is Drawn, But Bystanders Interfere in Time.

A terrible murder came near being committed this morning, and that it was not committed was due entirely to the quick actions of one of the bystanders. Two young gentlemen about 10 had a difficulty in which it was claimed that a very opprobrious epithet was passed. The gentleman to whom the epithet was applied either did not hear it at the time, or, if he did, did not become fighting mad, and waited some time to get up a stock of courage and anger. Later in the day he conceived the idea that he had been insulted and immediately began to hunt for the villain. He immediately proceeded to the establishment where his traducer was employed and discovered the monster engaged in his usual nefarious occupation of absorbing the contents of a Jesse James dime novel. He instantly pounced upon his foe and began to rain blows upon his head. The attacked party soon recovered from his surprise and reached for an umbrella with which to defend himself. The assailant seeing such a deadly weapon drawn immediately drew his own weapon, a cast iron nickle plated, twenty two calibre, dollar a piece seven shooter. He snapped the weapon at the crouching villain two or three times before it could be taken from him. Though snapped repeatedly it failed to fire possibly on account of the fact that there were no cartridges in its chambers. He was ejected gun and all fortunately while the aforesaid crouching villain immediately started for tall timber at a 2:10 gait.
