The pupils and teachers of the Convent of the Sacred Heart are holding their annual picnic at Padgett's Park today.

Dr. B. H. Carroll has returned home and will preach tomorrow morning and at night at the First Baptist church.

The four cent rate to Cameron on the Sap, will enable the Navarro, Falls and Limestone delegations to go from Waco cheaper than over any other route. The train leaves Waco at 7 a. m. and arrives at Cameron at 9:10 a. m.

The work on the Parrott natatorium is progressing rapidly. The excavation for the foundation is finished and the stone basement will soon be in place, when the superstructure will begin and will be pushed rapidly to completion.

THE NEWS will again mention the fact that the San Antonio and Aransas Pass railway will give a four cent rate from Waco to Cameron and return, the tickets good until June 3. All delegates who can should come to Waco and go from here.

At the meeting of the board of lady managers of the Texas World's Fair association of McLennan, which was held yesterday afternoon, Mrs. R. O. Rounsaval was elected president, vice Mrs. George Clark, whose resignation was tendered some days ago, on account of ill health. THE NEWS regrets that it became necessary for Mrs. Clark to retire from the important position she has for so long filled so well and hopes she will soon regain perfect health. The association has made a good selection in the choice of Mrs. Rounsaval to fill the vacancy.

THE NEWS is requested to announce that Rev. Dr. B. H. Carroll will preach both morning and evening at the First Baptist church tomorrow. Tomorrow is the fifth Sunday in the month which is usually given to the pastor to attend association meetings and to fill other engagements but on account of his being absent several times during the month he will remain in the city tomorrow.

LAWN TENNIS.

Result of the Continuation of the Mixed Doubles Yesterday.

At the continuation of the mixed doubles in the lawn tennis tournament yesterday the following is the score: Mr. Cox and Miss. Campbell beat Mr. Caruthers and Miss. Jones, 4-6 6-2 7-5. Mr. Jones and Miss Taylor beat Mr. Patton and Miss Jones 7-5 9-7. Mr. Jones and Miss Taylor beat Mr. Parker and Miss O'Neill 6 1 6 1. Mr. Cox and Miss Campbell beat Mr. Beers and Miss Risher 7-5. The latter games were not concluded on account of darkness.

The interest in the lady singles and mixed doubles is becoming as intense as it was in those games where the players were all gentlemen. It was originally intended to complete the games this afternoon but it is extremely doubtful whether it can be done as there are several games yet to be played before it is decided who shall wear the medals.

A Narrow Escape.

This morning while two painters were painting a big sign on the House of Lords building the brick coping to which their swinging scaffold was attached broke loose and the two men, the scaffold and coping fell to the roof of the building below. One of the men got two ugly cuts on the head and the other his shoulder bruised but no serious injuries. As soon as the wounds were dressed they went to work again.

The Miscreant Caught.

A GOOD MOVE.

That is the kind of a move which is made by purchasers of our FINE FURNITURE AND CARPETS

For some reasons it's a better move than was ever made before. One very convincing reason is that not until now have we ever offered these goods at such figures. We have never felt that we could afford to do it and we don't feel that we can afford to do it now, but necessity knows no law and we are taking the bull by the horns. It's a poor rule that don't work both ways. What we didn't feel that we could offer, you certainly can't feel that you can afford to miss. Our goods are on the move and they must go, so don't miss this opportunity, but call at once and get our prices.

ASPIRATION.

The nightingale sat on a bough
And smoothed a shining wing.
"Who taught you?"—scolded the terrapin—
"Who taught you how to sing?"

The nightingale blushed fiery red:
She had not been to school.
She nuzzed on what the tortoise said,
And sighed, "Twas not by rule."

A rabbit skirted down the path,
A-dancing in the sun.
"Who taught you?"—scolded the terrapin—
"Who taught you how to run?"

The rabbit blushed a fiery red,
He had not had a master.
He flung his heels against his head
And tried to run the faster.

The nightingale she cracked her voice
Learning to sing by rule.
The rabbit broke his forward leg
In a gymnasium school.

The terrapin, who could not sing,
Who could not follow after,
She sat beside her native spring
And shook her sides with laughter.

A Wrinkle to Shopkeepers.

A grocer in Vienna (North) has hit upon an original plan of securing the custom of all the servant girls in the neighborhood. He has bought at the price of waste paper, a shoal of "penny dreadfuls," and uses the single sheets for wrapping his wares in such a way as to enable the kitchen or parlor girl gradually to acquire the complete work. Strange scenes are occasionally enacted in the grocer's shop. We will give a few instances:

"Please, Mr. N—, a loaf of bread, and will you wrap it in the 'Son of the Accursed,' number four. Ah! that's all right."

"One pound of coffee, Mr. N—, but I want you to put it in a paper bag made out of the third sheet of the 'Blind Man's Curse.'"

"Here, Fraulein Lottchen, two pounds of soap," says our tradesman, turning to a third fair customer. "Please notice the wrapper. It contains the wonderful story of the 'Marble Bride.' You shall have the continuation the next time, so come to make a purchase." "Fritz, put down Fraulein Lottchen for the 'Marble Bride,' sheet No. 3."

"That grocer is doing a roaring trade.—Berliner Tageblatt.

No Place for a Man.

There was a "bargain sale" of men's gloves at one of the large shops a few days ago, and from early morn until dewy eve lovely woman elbow and pushed and scurried her way, and stood ten deep around the bargain table, where an unfortunate man clerk tried to answer questions, give opinions, find sizes and make out checks all at one time.

During the afternoon a misguided man, who probably had heard of the sale, sauntered into the store and approached the wall of femininity which guarded the glove counter. Then his courage failed him. One glance of sympathy passed between him and the wild eyed clerk over the shoulders of the fair mob, but that was as near as he got to the bargain gloves. He walked sadly out and bought his gloves at a furnishing store.

This is it that higher educated women are assuming their divine inalienable rights, while the tyrant man is being forced to the wall.—New York Herald.

A Church Organ Pumped by Hydraulics.

One of the large church organs in England is supplied with wind by powerful feeders worked by three hydraulic engines and an electric motor. The pneumatic lever is applied to the great and swell organs and the couplers in connection with them. The solo organ and pedal organ are played by means of an improved tubular pneumatic action. The draw-stop action is also pneumatic.—New York Times.
