EAGLES ENTERTAIN

Local Aerie Entertains Large number of Friends Wednesday Evening in Grand Ball.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather one of the largest crowds in the history of Amarillo society attended the reception and grand ball given by the local aerie of Eagles in their hall at the Carson building Wednesday evening.

The event was a grand success in every particular and marks the initiation of social functions which will follow during the entire winter.

Grand Deputy Organizer J. L. Shanklin of the Eagles was a guest of honor upon the occasion and in a very entertaining manner spoke of the growth of the Eagles and the fraternity and brotherhood of this rapidly growing organization which now numbers its members by the hundred thousand. He told how the order from an original membership of five formed in Seattle in 1898 it has grown to be a fraternal organization of over 300,000 members and one of the foremost societies of the land.

The organization and growth of this order has been phenomenal and is clearly a demonstration of the popularity of fraternalism and brotherhood so strongly featured in the American people. The five men who first interested themselves in a fraternal organization of this order called it the "Order of Good Things" and in its general acceptance and popularity these

Son Lost Mother.

"Consumption runs in our family, and through it I lost my mother," writes E. B. Reid, of Harmony, Me. "For the past five years, however, on the slightest sign of a cough or cold, I have taken Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which has saved me from serious lung trouble." His mother's death was a sad loss for Mr. Reid, but he learned that lung trouble must not be neglected, and how to cure it. Quickest relief and cure for coughs and colds. Price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed at L. O. Thompson & Bros' drug store. Trial bottle free. 36Ftf same men decided to make the organization a national one and in forming their plans were attracted to the name of Eagles by the sight of a large eagle soaring from one mountain peak to another with its illustrated impression of things of a higher order.

Mr. Shanklin closed his talk by comparing the growth and organization of local lodges in Texas and with the statement that Amarillo aerie represented the largest new lodge in the state.

The main hall used for the dancing was beautifully decorated with the emblems of the order, while ferns and chrysanthemums were artistically arranged about the room making a most harmonious effect to the color festooned in the draping of the national colors of the order.

The Grand March was led by Mr. Robt. Clark and Mrs. Gus Hollander and was followed by waltzes and two-steps with occasional quadrilles and shottishes. The dancing continued to a late hour with an intermission at the midnight hour at which time a well appointed banquet was participated in by the guests.

The tables were arranged in the main hall of the building and were loaded with delicacies intermingled with beautiful flowers and ferns which presented a most tempting appearance. During the course of the banquet two hundred and fifty-three guests were served and in a manner that affords much credit to the local Eagles who had charge of the entertaining.

The local members are well pleased with the success of their first effort in intertaining their friends and especially thank Messrs W. L. Thompson, J. N. Kirkman and F. A. Bryan to whom much credit is due in bringing about the delightful occasion.

In Choosing a Home.

There are so many features to consider in choosing a place for a permanent residence. It is a question of great importance to ones family as well as ones self, and there are many features of vital importance to take into consideration. A healthful climate should be foremost, for prosperity is but a poor blessing when there is constant ill health. If the bitter, rigorous winter of the north, the close sultry summers of the south, or the low malaria infested regions are not suited to ones temperament, then choose sections with medium winters, a pleasant summer or of sufficient altitude to be free from malaria and disease.

Such is the Panhandle of Texas, not the long bitter cold winters, but enough cold weather to insure crops. No long hot sultry summers, but always a fine breeze sweeping over these great plains, and heat prostrations never occur.

The altitude not too high, but sufficient to make malaria, chills and ague a perfect stranger.

A county with sufficient rainfall to insure crops, and where it falls during the season when it is needed. According to the U. S. Weather Bureau at Amarillo, there has been an average of 22 inches per annum of rainfall during the past thirteen years, and to date during 1905, more than 27 inches.

The deep well water is pure and wholesome, free from alkali and impurities.

The convenience to schools and churches should be well in mind, for it is not just or right to deprive ones family of the opportunities of education and the influence of the church. Neither is it right to locate too distant from market, for of what use to raise stock or grain when the expense of marketing it consumes all the profit? In many new countries it takes years to accomplish these things.

Then the land conditions are to be carefully studied. A country where diversified farming is possible is always most profitable and prosperous. If one crop fails, another helps out in the emergency.

Both land and climatic conditions are most favorable for such farming in the Panhandle. Cotton, corn, wheat, oats, alfalfa, maize, Kaffir corn, millet, fruits, melons, berries and vegetables are very profitably grown, and with less expense and labor than in the northern states.

Farmers who know how, and will, are prosperous in the Panhandle.
