PRESENT METHODS INDORSED.

In a letter to the Herald from Mayor Bowers... the information that after a discussion by the commissioners of the merits of the split log drag it was decided that the present road machinery in use by the city answered the same purpose and possibly did the work better than would the drag. The Herald is not convinced, but it is open to conviction, and if the city fathers can show us a few good streets as the result of their efforts we will be ready to agree with their opinion. But, we admit that we are disappointed because the drag was not given a trial. The best way to determine the relative merits of the two plans would be to work a section of street with the scraper and at the same time or at an opportune time, drag another section of the streets. In that way the matter could be determined. The Herald is interested only to the extent that the town may have the best streets possible, and is ready to agree with any plan that shows results.

In the opinion of the Herald the city scraper cannot possibly be made to do the work of a drag, because it is not made along proper lines for the work the drag would do, even if by note shavers and interest of lecturers.

Corsicana has arranged to see three thousand people who will wish to hear Con Johnson speak there tomorrow. Tyler will send a special train load of Johnson men over there.

The man who refuses to help with his time and means should be modest enough to at least not kick at what the town builders are trying to accomplish. And if he does kick, the should be ignored.

The Tyler Post says Palestine is slow. And here this good old town has been setting the pace for East Texas towns for the past dozen years. Our Tyler brother will have to drag up a bill of particulars and show us wherein we are slow.

Candidate Davidson is putting in his time these days defying Senator Bailey. Two years ago was the time he should have done his defying. At that time war was on, and soldiers were needed. The ex-attorney general tells a story in his speech that seems to fit his case.

Please bear in mind, brethren, that the event planned between Jeffries and Johnson in San Francisco is to be a mere sparring match, and even if one of the contestants gets his head knocked off it is not a prize fight, but merely a sparring match. It is essential that we call things by their right name. The law permits a sparring match, but not a prize fight.

Col. George A. Wright of the Anderson County Oil Mill has presented the Herald men with some cotton seed meal to be used in making bread. It looks good and has an aroma that appeals to the appetite. We have eaten the cotton seed bread and found it very tempting. If the baking is good we will be tempted to send the Beaumont Journal editor a specimen.

Palestine people must stand up for Palestine. Palestine must stand up for the individual efforts of her people. There is a great need here right now for unselfish work on the part of those who have the means to promote public enterprise. Anderson county needs five hundred additional farmers, and many of them could be brought here if a colonization scheme could be put on foot by some of our local capitalists.

The Herald has been invited to put on its top hat and come to New York and get in the parade of welcome to Roosevelt. While we appreciate that we would lend gods of dignity to the event and that Teddy would feel ever so much more cheerful if he knew we were there, yet we must decline. So, the parade will have to do the best it can without us, and maybe later we shall permit Teddy an audience here in God's country.

The agreement of the business houses of the city to close their places at 6 o'clock in the afternoon during the summer months is a good move and an advance one. There is really no reason why salespeople should be required to stay on duty for from ten to twelve hours every day. It is a fact that all of the shopping could be as easily done in the shorter time, and give the people engaged in selling a little time of their own. As towns grow larger people learn more of the value of time, and in many of the larger cities the shorter hours have been in effect for some time.

given a chance. The blades of the scraper are set at such angles that instead of spreading out and smoothing down the mud, which the drag does, the blade catches up and rolls the mud to the center of the street. Instead of being a mud packer and a dryer out of the mud holes, it could only succeed in scraping up and rolling up the mud.
Just for the sake of proving the argument let us reconsider and give the drag a trial.

PALESTINE IS BUILDING.

If you are in any way suffering with an ingrowing grouch and have been seeing blue as to the future of the town, we advise you to take a day off now and take a drive or a walk over the town and get wise as to what is actually being done here. You will find, as we have found, that the old town—the good old town, if you please—is forging ahead, and that it is building more rapidly today than at any time in its history. In all parts of the town new houses are being erected; old houses are being improved, repainted, and the premises being built up. New sidewalks are going down in many places, and the people—the builders—are active. In North Palestine, especially, many new houses are being erected, and signs of life and activity are apparent on every hand. These houses would not be building if there was no demand, so it must be concluded that the town is growing and the population constantly increasing. Then there is the big new addition to the southeast of the city being opened up, and the prediction is here made that within less than two years many new homes will be erected in that territory. Just forget your grouch. Palestine is all right. All we need is to keep pulling. Keep trying for new enterprises and new people. The county needs one thousand new farmers, and these are coming. Be a booster, and forget to think blue.

MAMMON OR REPUTATION?

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch takes Speaker Cannon to task for saying, at a recent banquet, that "the rewards of business are greater than the rewards of politics," that being equivalent to a supposition that money is the greatest of earthly good.

The Post-Dispatch says: "To some men, like Morgan or Rockefeller, money is a great reward. To other men, like Roosevelt or Bryan, it is of little value. They can do their work without it." And then the Post-Dispatch asks:

"Can we imagine any patriot-statesman of the revolution saying the rewards of Girard were greater than those of Jefferson? Does any large portion of mankind believe the rewards of Vanderbilt or Gould or Astor were greater than those of Lincoln or Sumner or Greeley?"

Perhaps it depends in some measure upon the point of view. To some persons mammon is more than reputation, honor, love, obedience, troops of friends, but it is hardly to be supposed that a man upon whom honors have been so showered as upon Speaker Cannon that rewards in life have come less to him than to men of more money. For the most part the men who live in history and in the affections of posterity cared very little for the rewards of money beyond the mere sufficiency for their temporal needs.—San Antonio Express.

History bears out the above conclusion. Few men of great wealth have ever won an enviable place in history, but almost always their money stands as an accusation against them. Take the case of the late E. H. Harriman, a man of undoubted ability, almost a genius in promotion of great industries; a man whose efforts in most any other line would have stamped him as one of the great generals of his day, and yet he is remembered only as a great money-maker. The lesson in this is that there is something in life of vastly more importance than the accumulation of money. No one ever thinks of the great Edison, or of Burbanks, or of many other illustrious men, as money makers, but rather as men achieving great works for the good of mankind.

No great city has ever been built

TEMPLE CASE REVERSED

Plaintiff Got Judgment in Lower Court For $25,000, But Higher Court Dismissed the Case.

Yesterday at Galveston the state reversed the case of A. W. Temple vs. the I. & G. N., in which the plaintiff was given a verdict in the district court of this county for $25,000. The case was tried twice, the first trial resulting in a disagreed jury. The judgment was rendered at the last trial, and the attorneys for the railroad company, Messrs. King & Morris, immediately appealed the case. The Messrs. Greenwood were attorneys for the plaintiff, Temple.

Mr. Temple was in the train service at the time he was injured a few years ago, and was very badly crippled through falling between cars at Jacksonville.

Nature's Gift from the Sunny South

Just Think! Not Even One-Tenth of Lard is Leaf Lard!

Here is what the leading lard packer says in a recent advertisement: "Leaf is the cream of lards. There is not enough of it to supply one-tenth of the people, and so it goes only to those who insist upon it."

Does it not stand to reason that if there is only enough of the proper fat produced to make pure leaf lard to supply one-tenth of the demand that the chances are ten to one against your getting pure lard? The only absolute protection against getting common hog fat when you buy lard is by buying Cottolene instead. Cottolene is a pure vegetable product—made from cotton seed oil, refined by our exclusive process. It contains no hog fat and makes palatable, nourishing food which will agree with the most sensitive stomach.

COTTOLENE is Guaranteed Your grocer is hereby authorized to refund your money in case you are not pleased, after having given Cottolene a fair test.

Never Sold in Bulk Cottolene is packed in pails with an air-tight top to keep it clean, fresh and wholesome, and prevent it from catching dust and absorbing disagreeable odors, such as fish, oil, etc.
