

The Greatest Play As Told To Hugh S. Fullerton That I Ever Saw

Catcher Detroit Tigers, and Who is Regarded as One of the Greatest of the Developing Catchers of the Country.

The greatest play I ever had the pleasure of seeing was one that I came near breaking up through surprise. The play was pulled by Jim Delehanty and Owen Bush and myself...

We were playing Boston and at a time when both of us thought we had a chance to beat out Philadelphia and win the pennant. We of the Detroit team were more than anxious, as we wanted another chance at the National league and Boston, at that...

OSCAR STANAGE.

First, looked to have even better chances to cop the American league pennant than we did, as our team was all shot to pieces by accidents and sicknesses. We were fighting a tough series and had won one game each, and in the ninth inning of the rubber game we had one run the advantage...

Delehanty had cut off two drives from his bat that looked as if they would get through and make more trouble for us. In the eighth inning I kept signaling for balls inside and low, knowing that he was expecting a curve. You know they say he has a weakness in hitting curve balls. We got him on the first ball, and after that I decided to cross him and had the pitcher keep the ball down and in. He fouled one for the second strike and another went wide, so I calculated he was expecting a curve outside and planned to repeat the fast low ball. He outguessed me, or at any rate he hit the ball like a bullet past second base, a little to the first base side, and it looked as if the ball had gone through. Delehanty was moving with the pitch, and when he saw the ball going through he simply took a running dive at it, slid along the ground, grabbed the ball and rolled over flat on his back. It looked as bad, almost, as it did before. Del hadn't time to get up, or even to sit up, but he didn't try. He was still flat on his back when he snapped the ball on the first bound to Bush at second base, forcing the runner who was coming down from first by a step. That alone was a great play, but the moment Bush got the ball he whirled and cut loose a perfect throw to the plate. He threw without stopping or looking, knowing instinctively that the runner who was on second when the ball was hit would try to turn third and score on the play at second. Bush whirled and shot so rapidly that I only half realized what had been done, and the ball was past the pitcher's position before I waked up enough to jump forward, block the plate and grab the ball. I didn't know where the runner was until he slid against my legs as I grabbed the ball and shoved it against his feet.

The play all around was the most wonderful I ever saw for quickness of thinking and acting, and although Delehanty's stop and throw were great, the wonderful part of it to me was Bush's fast thinking.
