DAWSON, WITH 5000 POPULATION, IS A DISTRESSING MINE TOWN

DAWSON is a bit of English Newcastle set down in New Mexico. The mines of the Stag Canyon Fuel company are scattered over a series of folds or hogbacks in the northern New Mexico topography.

Dawson is strung along Rail canyon, which answers for a main street. At one end of this canyon is the American settlement, with the offices of the company, the stores, churches and homes of the American officials and foremen.

The left of Rail canyon and forming a background for the scene of the No. 2 tragedy, is the hogback into which the No. 2 tunnel burrows its way like a mole after a mine shaft.

Believes Dust Caused Explosion. The presence of general superintendent William McDermott in the mine when the explosion occurred is considered a substantial theory of the dust explosion.

It is believed he entered the mine to take precautions against an explosion because of coal dust and arrived too late, sharing the fate of his men.

Miners Rush to Scene. The disaster thrilled the coal camps of Southern Colorado, only 125 miles away, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It reached the office of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company at Trinidad and orders to forward the company's mine rescue car followed immediately.

EAST LAS VEGAS SENDS ALL COFFINS IN TOWN. East Las Vegas, N. M., Oct. 23.—Local undertakers today received orders to send to Dawson all the coffins they had on hand.

MINE RESCUE EXPERT PAUL MURRIES TO DAWSON DISTRICT. Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 23.—J. W. Paul of the United States bureau of mines, who was here giving demonstrations of mine rescue work in connection with the meetings of the American Mining congress, left today for Dawson.

The No. 5 mine mouth, which connects with the No. 2 tunnel. The air shaft which pierces the mountain at its apex extends down to the connecting tunnel and pours pure air into it.
