Among the industrial institutions of Wharton is the well stocked apary of Mr. W. O. Victor. Mr. Victor has 500 stands of bees and ships them to the city markets in large quantities. Mr. Victor is a delegate to the Bee Keepers' association, which meets at Beeville August 15-17.

NEGROES SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

One of Them Dead and Two Others Seriously Wounded. Orange, Texas, August 13.—This morning about 1 o'clock a perfect fusillade of shots was heard in the northeastern part of the city, many citizens being awakened from their slumbers by the terrible din that lasted for a few moments. Soon afterwards messengers notified the officers that a tragedy had been enacted, the scene being a negro gambling house situated on the edge of the river marsh. The house is in an isolated spot surrounded by brush and trees and negroes have been in the habit of congregating there to gamble. There were about twenty in this house at the time mentioned, when suddenly a shot rang out from the brush near the building, then another, followed by a perfect fusillade, as the negroes stampeded for the door and windows.

SHIP CANAL IS IN USE.

The Steamship St. Oswald Steamed Through the Port Arthur Channel. SHE WILL TAKE CARGO FOR LIVERPOOL. The Vessel Was Royally Welcomed by the Entire Population of the Town—Stillwell Congratulated.

Port Arthur, Texas, August 13.—Port Arthur is no longer a seaport simply on paper; she is a seaport in fact. The people no longer need to refer to the time when "our ship comes in," she is here. The steamship St. Oswald, decorated with flags and streamers, entered the port of the canal at 1 o'clock today; steamed through the canal at a speed of eight miles an hour and at ten minutes after 2 o'clock was tied up to the wharf in slip No. 3, where she was royally welcomed by almost the entire population of the city. St. Oswald is a steelclad steamer 310 feet long, forty wide and of 40,000 tons capacity, and when fully loaded draws twenty-two feet of water.
