TURN ABOUT FAIR PLAY.

The city pocketbook has paid out some two or three thousand dollars to grade the little hill upon Magnolia street, in a radius of about two blocks, and a nice job has been done, enabling the people to establish grade lines for sidewalks and to finish off nice terraces, etc. The work was expensive to the city and the people benefited should show their appreciation. And the best way to show their appreciation would be to come across now and pay out of their own pockets for enough gravel to pave that part of the street, and make a demonstration of what can be done with gravel and a heavy roller. This would be a good move and would be valuable as an illustration of what can be done with our clay streets.

PRISON REFORM.

The present effort to reform the Texas prison system should meet with no opposition, because it is a matter of record that our prison management has not been in keeping with the times. The Herald has contended for a long time that the state has no right to trade on the convict's time and labor. The prison should be made self-sustaining, and the men confined therein should be given such advantages and treatment as will tend to make them better men. This paper has always believed in the indeterminate sentence and the parole, because it appreciates that all men who violate the law in one instance are in no sense criminals. The man who in a moment of passion commits an offense against the state is not to be classed with the criminal who deliberately commits crime. And this fact should be recognized in the prison rules. The whipping of prisoners should not be tolerated, and the short term men should be placed on the public roads.

THAT RAILROAD BILL.

The fight on at Austin just now regarding the responsibility of a railroad as to its debts is creating a great deal of interest here, and many comments are heard as to the merits of the bill. The Herald is persuaded that the people generally think the law should be passed. People who have furnished supplies to the road or who have other just claims against the road are certainly entitled to protection. The outcome of the matter will be watched with interest, as it means quite a sum to the people in this section.

INCREASED PRODUCTION.

In a general way every one doubtless realizes what intensified farming means but when the matter is figured out in actual results there is cause for astonishment.

A Missouri man has been figuring on what an additional bushel of corn to the acre in that state would mean and finds that in a single year it would build a fine state capitol. He says, according to the Kansas City Times:

"Do you know that one more bushel of corn an acre, figuring corn at seventy-five cents a bushel, would provide the money to build for Missouri one of the finest state capitols in the nation? And more than this, there would be enough money left after building the capitol to support the state university two years."

"This corn man" makes his statement good by the figures. Eight million acres of tasseled, waving corn is a part of Missouri's contribution to the muscle and wealth of nations. Only a part, mind you! Wheat and oats, and hay and garden truck, and the minerals down in the "innards" of that good land, are other resources in Missouri's treasure chest.

Now, how about the unimproved roads and a rundown capitol and a university on short rations, all of which indicate a fear of investing public revenues for public good?

When one comes to look the Missuri corn and wheat full in the face one realizes how ridiculous it is to begrudge those improvements of civilization which make a sure market for the wheat and the corn and their sister things. In those good old days when there were no taxes and very few people, except red Indians, there was precious little corn, and what there was went for coonskins. Good roads, good buildings, culture and education and plenty of public revenue mean more people, more homes, a better standard of living for every one. And that means more wheat and corn and cattle and hogs and steadier, better prices for it all.

No one expects the cheerful message of the Columbia "corn man" to work a miracle in the human nature of the farmers. No one expects the sturdy agriculturists to bow their backs to the plow just to get that extra bushel to the acre and give it to the state. But one does believe that the day is passing when the two-by-four court house politicians can make the farmers believe that the most important thing under salvation is to make taxes low. One does believe that from Missouri's great horn of plenty, enough seeds of revenue will be distributed to help fill up some more cornucopias of state wealth.

But listen again to the corn man:

"The corn acreage in Missouri is about eight million acres. The average crop for the past ten years has been, in round numbers, 202 million bushels. If a man could husk and crib fifty bushels a day, and work three hundred days in the year, when he husked the last ear of corn he would be just 13,500 years older than when he began the job!"

Mrs. Jack Cudahy has been granted a full divorce, and everybody seems happy—unless she goes on the stage.

Be at the Board of Trade rooms this evening.

They can come back; Hoke Smith came back in Georgia, and he will be the next governor of that state. Other statesmen will please take notice.

A good Board of Trade is essential to the town, and the only way to have a good Board is for all of the people to join and take an active interest. Be at the annual meeting this evening.

The Board of Trade meets tonight, and every man interested in the future of the city should be present ready to take a membership and to get busy for the town. New officers are to be elected.

Texas democrats, as represented by the Galveston state platform, stand pledged to the Aldrich-Payne protective tariff, the tariff that is making the republican party hustle for its life. How do you like such a platform, brethren?

Mayor Gaynor got it "in the neck" and survived, and he will be looking a challenge over the republican way pretty soon and daring them to hit him in the neck. Gaynor will in all probability be the democratic candidate for governor of New York, and if he wins this race he will be the logical candidate for president.

Col. George Bailey of the Houston Post, who is now on a triumphal tour of the north and east, and some other states, is creating a sensation wherever he goes, and is dividing attention with Roosevelt. You can't lose the Texas colonel. In the meantime many Texas people would like to know just what Bailey of the Post really thinks of that farce pulled off in Galveston some week or two ago. But he won't tell.

J. R. Walker of this city has sent the Herald a copy of the Cooper, Texas, Review, in which paper is quite an interesting article concerning the city park there. Cooper is only a small town, but already has a beautiful, big park, and the townspeople are now beautifying the park and making it a place well worth while. All progressive towns are coming to recognize a park as part of the town's assets. And a city without parks is an unknown proposition.

The grand jury of Anderson county, in session at Palestine, bear witness to the valuable work and influence of the Texas rangers sent there recently. The rangers went there (as they go everywhere) on the request of the local authorities and the latter were candid and courageous enough to express appreciation. The rangers have done good service in Texas for thirty-four years. There has been a lot of tommy-rot written about their "cossackism," and in nearly every instance it was written because the writer wanted to get a lick at Tom Campbell. And Tom Compbell goes right on, trying to track the law and do his duty as he sees it. And when he gets through, the verdict of the people will be that he was a patriotic and courageous executive, who could neither be cajoled or intimidated.—Waco Tribune.

Davis-Lively.

Mr. Nat Davis and Miss Ida Coleman Lively were married Wednesday night of last week at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lively, Rev. A. L. Carnes officiating.

These young people are well known to our citizens, having been reared here, and occupy a very prominent place in the social circle. Mr. Davis is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. A. Davis, and holds a position as salesman in the large dry goods establishment of Geo. E. Darsey. Miss Ida Coleman has endeared herself to our people by her sweet disposition and womanly graces, and it is the opinion of all that Mr. Davis made no mistake in choosing her for a life partner. She is teacher of music in the Grapeland High School.

The wedding was a quiet home affair and only a few close friends and relatives were present. After the ceremony and usual congratulations, delightful refreshments were served and the wedding cake was cut.

We extend our heartiest congratulations to the contracting parties, and may they have all the happiness and prosperity a worthy young couple should enjoy.—Grapeland Messenger.

The bride has many friends here who extend best wishes.

Woodmen Circle.

THEATRICAL TRUST

Will Open Opposition House In San Antonio—War Is On.

San Antonio, Texas, Aug. 24.—That the war between the theatrical trust and the independents will be carried to this city is shown in the securing by the former of a large hall here. Beethoven Hall, the property in question, will be remodeled to meet the requirements of theatrical productions and throughout the winter first-class performances will be given there.

It is claimed that Klaw & Erlanger, said to head the theatrical trust, were driven to this action by the refusal of Sidney H. Weis, manager of the local opera house and a member of the American Theater Owners' Association, to book trust attractions. Klaw & Erlanger made the deal for Beethoven Hall and in addition to their own companies they will play the productions of Cohan & Harirs, Charles Frohman and several others.
