HUNTING A WAY OUT.

Here is a pathetic case. John D. Rockefeller, the head of the Standard Oil company, the man of many millions, grown old in the chase of money and power, suddenly discovering that there is something else in life, and now that the flow of money is greater than his genius can dispose of, comes pleading to the nation that it help him find a way to restore some of the thing that has ruined his life back to the people. We say it is a pathetic case, because it suggests the picture of a man who has spent his life getting something that he finds after all is not what he wanted and needed. And the most pathetic part of it is that the congress and the wise men of the day may help to find a way to distribute this vast fortune, and may erect a palace of good and charity and benevolence, but the truth remains that inside this castle, with its pretty walls of sacrifice, are the bleaching bones and grinning skulls of those who have been crushed by the monster system whose money built the palace. Competitors have been crushed, men have been driven to suicide because they could not compete with this great trust, other men in hundreds have been driven like slaves at under-pay, and all to amass this vast fortune that now comes begging for the privilege of getting back to the people. There should come a great lesson from this example. The time to do charity is in the day of strife and turmoil. Let the neighbor live and recognize the laborer as being worthy of his hire. A full confession from Rockefeller, opening his secret mind of the world, would be a great tragedy, and might be entitled "The Friendless Rich Man."

How about the button campaign? Are you on yet?

If every home owner would take a personal interest in his or her home premises, and insist that the city take care of the way places, Palestine would soon be the city beautiful.

The fruit crop is coming right ahead, and if something in the weather line does not happen we will get our peaches and cream and peach cobbles with much regularity this spring and summer.

While snowslides and avalanches are the order out in the great northwest country, here in sunny Texas the people are picking violets, sprouting young gardens, and the more fortunate are going fishing and getting the fish.

In just two days more, March 10th, general clean-up day will be on hand, when every town in Texas is expected to do a good job of spring cleaning. Palestine should get into the work in earnest and make this old town the spotless town for sure.

Anderson county, through the efforts of the boys' corn clubs, is going to make some corn growing records this year that will surprise the natives, and will prove conclusively that this is a good corn country, as well as being adapted to most everything else.

Jack Cudahy, another son of the rich, has stepped into the limelight via the butcher knife route. But before risking an opinion on his performance we desire to know more of the reasons that called for the carving. There are cases where it would have been vastly to his credit.

District Judge Seay of Dallas, in charging the grand jury which is to investigate the recent lynching in that city, said the men who engaged in the lynching are guilty of three crimes, riot, burglary and murder. He wants the grand jury to get busy along these lines. The judge emphasizes the point that it is of no concern in this instance as to the guilt of the negro lynched.

Frank Putnam has resigned from the staff of the Houston Chronicle and becomes editor of the Southwestern Farmer of Houston, and will devote much of his time and all of his splendid talent to boosting Texas. Putnam is an independent chap, knows a thing or two for sure, and never hesitates to say his lay when and where he pleases. Texas is fortunate in getting Putnam to boost through this farm journal. It is likely, however, that he will take an occasional shy at state and national politics. When he does it is a safe bet that he will say something worth while.

Rev. Clavis Chappell of Fort Worth, a Methodist preacher, has the correct idea. In a sermon on "The Home," he said:

God intends that the home shall be the world's school room for the education of the race. Man in his infancy is the most helpless and ignorant of all creatures. For from six to twelve years he is made to depend solely upon those who love him. The world with its traps and its pitfalls is all shut out by the walls of the home. And there within the father and mother have the God-given opportunity to make of their child what they please. Now every school must have discipline or it goes to pieces. The home school needs it most of all. Anarchy is not born in the slums, but in the home. The boy who disobey his parents will disobey his teachers. Statistics show that three-fourths of those that have to be punished in our public schools of this city come from homes of lax discipline. The outlaw at home will be an outlaw at school. The outlaw at school will, so far as he dares, be an outlaw in the state.

with Fort Moultrie Cunyus, the political Colossus of Collin and Commerce. The Signal says:

Candidate Cunyus (do your own pronouncing) opened his campaign for governor at Cooper Saturday. The Signal stakes its reputation as an election forecaster on the prediction that Mr. Cunyus will not be elected, and yet it is already convinced that the McKinney candidate will contribute largely to the gaiety of the campaign if he remains on the track till the home stretch. He is a free-lance of the purest ray, and either through lack of judgment or honesty of purpose, throws discretion to the winds and says what he writes to. His platform is a Turn-Texas-Loose affair that would give everybody and every concern a free hand. He takes the position that trusts are good things, and that it is a mistaken policy to fight them or hold them in check. Like all free-lances, Mr. Cunyus is interesting, and it may turn out that his vote will be one of the surprises of the campaign.

Suffragists at Albany.

Albany, N. Y., March 8.—Suffragists of woman suffrage are gathering here in force in anticipation of the joint hearing by the judiciary committees of the state senate and assembly tomorrow on the Hill-Toombs proposed constitutional amendment by which the suffragists hope to gain access to polling booths. Both the State Woman Suffrage Association, in which Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is actively interested, and the Equal Franchise Society, of which Mrs. Clarence Mackay is president, will be represented at the hearing by large delegations.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

Of the Boys' Corn Club and Also Those of the Awarding of Premiums.

The main points of the constitution of the Anderson County Boys' Corn Club follow:

1. The club officers shall be elected annually, on the second Saturday in January.
 2. All boys between 7 and 20 years shall be eligible to become members of this club.
 3. This club shall endeavor to establish a number of auxiliary clubs all over the county so as to get very near every boy.
 4. The rules and requirements of the Board of Trade shall govern the awarding of prizes.
 5. In all contests for prizes the crops grown are limited to those raised without irrigation, so as to give a "square deal" to the boys without artificial help.
 6. The meetings of the club shall be announced by the president.
- The following are the rules and regulations for the awarding of premiums by the Palestine Board of Trade to the Anderson County Boys' Corn Club:

1. Two disinterested parties are to measure accurately the one acre of corn. To determine the number of bushels on the acre take three average rows and weigh same in the shuck, estimating seventy-two pounds to the bushel.
2. Make certificate of number of bushels and file same with the secretary of the Board of Trade on or before the 10th day of October, 1910.
3. Each member of the club contesting for prize is required to make a written report (before any premiums are delivered) to the secretary of the Board of Trade. Said report is to show preparation of soil, date of planting, number of cultivations, quantity of domestic fertilizer and commercial used, and cost of each, and all cost of growing the crop.
4. Following rules will govern the awarding of premiums: (a) Greatest yield per acre, 30 per cent; (b) best ten ears exhibited, 15 per cent; (c) best written account showing cost of production, 25 per cent; (d) best showing of profit, 20 per cent.
5. Each contestant to exhibit ten ears of corn from his acre showing the most perfect ears.

WORK TRAIN AND CREW

Put on the State Railroad to Improve and Repair the Property—Work Is Needed.

A work train and crew has been put to work on the State Railroad, from this city to Rusk, and some needed repairs and reconstructing is to be done. The old part of the road, nearest Rusk, is said to need work badly, and the rest of the road needs some repairing, as all new roads do before they settle down. There have been rumors as to the final disposition of the road, one of the most interesting that it was to be turned into an electric line. It seems to be the general impression that the state will get rid of it.

To Reveal Secrets.

(Herald Special.)
Council Bluffs, Ia., March 8.—According to reports now in circulation the trial of John C. Maybray in the United States district court here will bring to light the whole inside story of the alleged "swindle syndicate," and lay bare to the world the inner workings of a conspiracy by which more than a hundred victims were fleeced out of a total sum of money estimated at nearly $1,000,000. The jury for the case has already been drawn and the trial is set to begin day after tomorrow. It is said that several men who acted as "steerers" for the alleged swindle syndicate and who were among the eighty-four indicted with Maybray by the federal grand jury here last fall, will turn state's evidence at the trial and reveal the methods of the gang.

GAS OFFICIAL WAS HERE

Vice President A. Volney Foster of the Local Gas Plant Spent Yesterday Here.

Vice President A. Volney Foster of the local gas company spent yesterday here, coming from his Chicago home, and being en route to Mexico. Mr. Foster visits Palestine some two or three times a year, and is getting to be home folks with many of our people. He is pleased with his investment here, and always has a good word for the town. Mr. Foster has confidence in the future of this section, and expects to see the farming industry in time make this a most prosperous country. While here Mr. Foster was the guest of Manager Kneis of the gas company and Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Silliman.
